Aldrich Bans Chase Pools; Wiggin Bares Huge Profits

Board Chairman Denies Subsidiaries Now Deal in Issues.

Banker's Firms Won $10,425,494

Operations Revealed at Senate Probe Under Pecora Grilling.

A repudiation of policy, banning pool operations by Chase subsidiaries in Chase National Bank stock, yesterday was outlined before the Senate Banking Committee by Winthrop W. Aldrich, chairman of the Chase board.

His statement followed disclosures of trading operations netting privately owned companies of Albert H. Wiggin, former chairman of the board, $10,425,494. Trading in the same stock, Metpotan, a Chase subsidiary, made only $156,614.

Aldrich said the present management of the bank "is absolutely opposed to such transactions."

"As a matter of fact, today the Metpotan Corporation does not deal in Chase stock," he said, "and as long as I have anything to do with the management, the market in Chase stock shall not be affected by the operation of trading accounts by the affiliates of the bank."

Points to Answer.

Asked by a newspaperman if he "disapproved" of Wiggin's policies, Aldrich replied:

"I couldn't say any more than I have, could I?"

One of the Chase officials said yesterday's testimony by Wiggin gave them their first complete information of the profits and practices of his private companies.

The Wiggin corporations, known as the Shermar, the Murlyn and the Clingston companies, during the five years from 1928 to 1932, netted his family respectively $5,594,333, $386,161 and $4,445,000, or a total of $10,425,494, Wiggin testified. The Clingston profits included 1927.

During this period, the Metpotan Corporation, organized by the Chase Securities Corporation for trading purposes, made a book profit of only $156,614, or a profit on an income tax basis of $159,573, he said. He told how his companies frequently participated in trading operations in Chase stock managed by Metpotan or other banking associates.

Grilled by Pecora.

Ferdinand Pecora, committee counsel, asked Wiggin how he accounted for the large profit by his private companies, while the Chase affiliates barely broke even.

"Their method was purchasing and selling every day," he said. "My companies practiced long-time operations."

He said the cash profits of the three companies did not represent a true picture, inasmuch as Chase stock, which his family still held, had shrunk from $280 to $40 a share.

Wiggin asked permission to read a prepared statement "to remove any misconception as to the objects and operations of the trading accounts for the purchase and sale of Chase stock, in which Metpotan

11 Die as Arabs Protest Jews

Many Injured as Natives Fight Immigration to Palestine.

Jaffa, Palestine, Oct. 27 (AP).—Eleven men were killed today in a riot of Arabs protesting against Jewish immigration, according to an official statement. A reliable witness estimated the dead at 20.

One of the dead was a policeman; the rest were Arabs. The communique said also that 20 rioters and two policemen were injured seriously. A large number were arrested.

The police fired into the mob after a reading of the riot act, when repeated baton charges failed to disperse the rioters. The situation was brought under control without military intervention.

The riot resulted from a previously announced intention of Arabs to hold a demonstration against the present increase of Jewish immigrants into Palestine.

Litvinoff Speeds On U. S. Journey

Leaves Warsaw for Berlin; Silent on Plans.

Warsaw, Poland, Oct. 27 (U.P.).—Foreign Commissar Maxim Litvinoff, of Soviet Russia, passed through here tonight on his way to Washington.

He arrived from Moscow at 9 p. m. and left at 10 p. m. for Berlin. He said he would not decide what boat to take until he reached Berlin. Litvinoff added he had no statement to make on his impending recognition negotiations with President Roosevelt.

Sick Alexandria Lad Gets Carnegie Medal

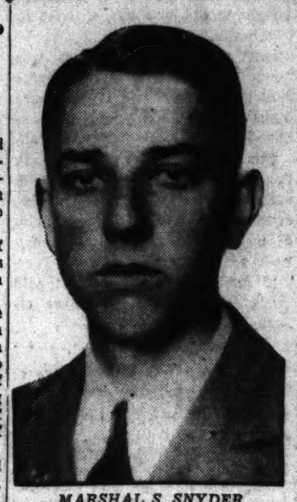
Honored For Attempt to Rescue Drowning Boy Two Years Ago.



MARSHAL S. SNYDER.

An Alexandria youth—an invalid from asthma—yesterday was awarded a bronze Carnegie medal for trying to save a younger boy from drowning more than two years ago in Hunting Creek.

The youth, Marshal S. Snyder, of 803 Franklin street, that city, was notified of the award as he lay in bed.

The award was announced by the Carnegie Hero Fund Commission in Pittsburgh and was in recognition of Snyder's unsuccessful attempt to save William C. Gillum, 8, also of Alexandria. William fell from a log in Hunting Creek, on the fringe of the Bellhaven Country Club golf course, June 20, 1931.

Although he was fully clothed and frail from years of illness, Snyder jumped into the stream, diving under William. The struggling boy grasped him and both went under. Forcibly freeing himself, Snyder rose and then swam again to William, who again grasped him.

Both went down again and drifted 35 feet. Snyder, exhausted by his efforts, was saved by Aaron S. Rippey, of Chevy Chase, Md.

Snyder was graduated from Alexandria High School last summer. He suffered from asthma since he was 5.

U. S. Orders Alleged Nazi Agent's Arrest

Spanknoebel Accused of Posing as Diplomat; Faces Prison.

New York, Oct. 27 (AP).—Heinz Spanknoebel, reputed to be a Nazi agent in the United States, was charged today with falsely representing himself to be a German diplomatic agent in a warrant issued by U. S. Commissioner Francis A. O'Neill.

Federal agents began a search for Spanknoebel, who disappeared Wednesday a few hours before Mayor John P. O'Brien banned a meeting scheduled for next Sunday in commemoration of the first German immigration to America 250 years ago.

U. S. Attorney George Z. Medalie personally swore to the complaint, which asserted that Spanknoebel purported to act as a diplomatic agent of the German government in the United States without having diplomatic or consular status and that he had failed to notify the State Department of his alleged relationship.

Repudiated by Embassy.

The warrant was applied for after Medalie received word from the State Department that the German Embassy had said Spanknoebel was not registered as a diplomatic agent.

"This case came to my attention," said Medalie, "from the publication of the facts by Victor F. Ridder and Bernard H. Ridder, publishers of the Staats Zeitung and the New Yorker Herald, to the effect that on or about July 6 Spanknoebel called at their office and displayed to them documents purporting to show that he represented the presse abtheil (press division) of the German government.

Claims He Was Leader.

"He said, so the Ridders stated, that he was authorized by the German government to act as leader of the Germans in this country, to take charge of his government's affairs in this country and that the Ridders must submit to his censorship."

Spanknoebel's disappearance, Medalie added, "was undoubtedly in anticipation of these proceedings.

"I believe he is either in hiding or is on his way out of the country. This is a sad contrast to the heroics in which this man previously engaged."

A subpena was issued for Carl Nickolay, who is wanted for questioning about Spanknoebel's activities.

Wales Stays in Bed To Get Rid of Chill

Sunningdale, England, Oct. 27 (AP). The Prince of Wales remained in bed today because of a chill which has troubled him several days.

On doctor's orders he planned to remain indoors over the week-end at his country home here.

Office Seeker Is Kidnaped In Kentucky

Four Threaten Candidate With Death, Then Drag Him Away.

Pikeville, Ky., Oct. 27 (AP).—Willis Staton, candidate for circuit judge, was threatened with death and whisked away by four masked men today, his nephew reported, because he refused to sign a mysterious paper.

"Sign that or die," Joe Staton told officers the men demanded, and the former judge replied, "I'll die."

"He was kidnaped by political enemies," Mrs. Staton declared tonight. She said her husband had received two letters in the last few days telling him he must not stay in the race, but that he had refused to quit.

Supported Coal Miners.

Mrs. Staton said her husband had support of the coal miners and that a miners' rally had been scheduled for Pikeville tomorrow.

"My husband had no other enemies outside politics," she asserted.

Staton and his nephew were returning from a political rally at Pand Creek. The youth said that before dawn their automobile was blocked on the highway by another car.

Four masked men approached and when Staton refused to sign the paper bundled him into the back seat of their machine, gagged him and headed into the hills. Young Staton said they left him bound beside his car. He got loose several hours later and reported the matter to officers and to Mrs. Staton. The sheriff's office started an investigation at once, but hours passed with no trace of Staton found.

At the sheriff's office it was said it was not believed that politics had anything to do with the kidnaping, but that some other reason, possibly revenge, was behind it.

Court Holds Two As Gold Hoarders

Boston City Employe and Lawyer Accused.

Boston, Oct. 27 (AP).—Gerald T. Driscoll, 32, city employe, and Edward Spiegel, widely known lawyer, were held in $2,500 bail each today after arraignment on gold-hoarding charges.

Indictments were returned yesterday by the Federal grand jury after evidence had been presented under orders of Attorney General Homer Cummings in Washington.

Students on Hunger Strike.

Guadalajara, Mexico, Oct. 27 (U.P.). More than 200 striking students of the University of Guadalajara, arrested during rioting at the university, went on a hunger strike in the penitentiary today after smashing prison furniture.

Boy Who Begged President's Aid Sees U. S. Save His Home

Trenton, N. J., Oct. 27 (AP).—Adam M. Schmidt, a 12-year-old schoolboy, who worried about a $5,400 mortgage on the family home, found out today he won't have to "sleep under a tree," as he wrote President Roosevelt he was willing to do.

Puzzled a bit by the legal machinery, Adam was jubilant as foreclosure on his parents' home here was averted—the first in New Jersey to benefit under the Home Owners Loan Corporation.

Adam, his mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Schmidt, were in the office of G. Frank Shanley, State manager, to see the two mortgages canceled.

The family's plight, after six months' unemployment by the father, long had weighed heavily on young Adam. Then he heard in school about "some things" the President was doing.

Unknown to the family, he addressed a letter to "Pres. Roosevelt."

"Please, sir Pres. Roosevelt," he said, "I feel sorry for my mother. Mother cries day and night because we are going to lose our home. The man is going to sell our house on the 30th of August and make an action of our furniture because my father can't pay the mortgage.

"Please, sir Pres. Roosevelt," he concluded, "I always worry that something might happen to my mother. I'd lose everything what I got. I am willing to sleep under a tree, but I feel sorry for my mother and father and sister and the rest of the family. Please help us to do something. Thanks a thousand times."

Federal Bank Trade Report Assails Codes

Declines in Industries Paying Processing Tax Stressed.

Johnson and Wallace, Aroused, Defend Recovery Aids.

By Elliott Thurston.

Conflicts of opinion over administration policy emerged openly last night when the latest Federal Reserve Bulletin came out with the declaration that industrial declines of the last two months had been "marked in industries in which processing taxes or codes have become effective recently."

Recovery Administrator Hugh S. Johnson, for the NRA, and Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, for the Agricultural Adjustment Administration, quickly issued denials and explanations, accentuating a controversy into which Reserve Board officials refused to be drawn any further.

Gen. Johnson, after a vehement telephone conversation with E. A. Goldenweiser, director of research and statistics for the Reserve Board and editor of the bulletin, reported Dr. Goldenweiser had assured him the bulletin's statement was "inadvertent." Dr. Goldenweiser would say nothing for publication nor would Federal Reserve Board members.

Reserve Bulletin Quoted.

The declaration which provoked the ire of NRA and AAA officials read:

"The decline in industrial activity during the past two months has come, in large measure, in the industries in which expansion previously had been most rapid. It has been marked in industries in which processing taxes or codes have become effective recently."

Gen. Johnson, in reply, said:

"Practically every major industry has been operating under a code since last August. Those not under codes have been operating under Presidential reemployment agreements in which the provisions were usually much stricter than the codes. And yet, with the exception of the steel industry, every report we have received from major industries shows a definite upward trend."

The general apparently referred to reports on pay rolls and employment instead of reports on industrial activity, which has declined sharply in recent weeks, according to reserve records.

Wallace Explains.

Secretary Wallace charged that abnormal activity in textiles and flour mills, to get ahead of the codes, caused an expected recent let-up predicted by L. H. Bean, economic adviser to the AAA, in a memorandum of July 25.

Secretary Wallace said:

"The situation is that, in efforts to anticipate processing taxes so as to avoid payment while possible, mills in both flour and textile industries enormously increased their activity before wheat and cotton taxes and the increased wage course under NRA went into effect. Then, when the taxes and higher wages became effective, mills slowed down and in some instances blamed the processing taxes for inactivity really due to their efforts to beat the tax."

Reserve Stands Pat.

So resentful was Gen. Johnson that he tried to persuade Dr. Goldenweiser to have the bulletin withdrawn. The Reserve Board expert stood pat on his figures which show a marked drop in industrial activity, though figures to which John-

Capone Gang's Bailman Slain

Publisher of Cicero Paper Shot Down in Street by Gunmen in Car.

Chicago, Oct. 27 (AP).—Louis (Diamond Louie) Cowen, 35, one-time bondsman for Capone gangsters and publisher of the Cicero Tribune, a weekly tabloid newspaper in the suburb, was slain late today by a volley of shotgun slugs.

He was struck down after he had walked across a street in Cicero to enter his car by gunners, who fired from a small automobile and then speeded away. Witnesses said there were five or six men in the car.

They said Cowen had started to step into his parked automobile when the sedan drew up alongside it. Then came the blast of shotguns.

Cowen was struck in the head and shoulders. Stray slugs from the fusillade scattered pedestrians.

Former West Point Star Jailed in Attack Case

San Antonio, Tex., Oct. 27 (U.P.).—Lieut. John Murrell, U. S. Air Corps, West Point football star of 1927-30, was in jail here tonight under Federal charges of having attacked Miss Blanche Ralls, of San Antonio.

The charge, based on the allegation the attack occurred on a Government reservation, provides a maximum penalty of death upon conviction.

President Joins Ford Attack; U. S. Prosecution Threatened; Magnate Hits "Dictatorship"

No Money in U. S. Bids Without Favoritism, Detroit Reply.

Declares Company Far Ahead of NRA in Recovery Drive.

Detroit, Oct. 27 (AP).—Henry Ford's long-standing "silent controversy" with the NRA was at an abrupt end tonight with the Ford company's statement—the first since the motor magnate failed to sign the auto code—that Recovery Administrator Hugh S. Johnson is "assuming the airs of a dictator" and "attempting a grave injustice upon a law-abiding American industry."

"Johnson's daily expresson of opinion is not law," said a statement from the company offices today. "Signing a code is not in the law; flying the Blue Eagle is not in the law. The Ford Motor Co. observes the law and exceeds it in all its real recovery features."

Favoritism Hinted.

The statement, incidentally, made the charge that favoritism in the awarding of governmental bids is "possible under the NRA."

The sudden breaking of silence by the Ford Motor Co., which since the outset of the national recovery act had remained uncommunicative as to its policy, followed Johnson's declaration in Washington today that he would "turn the case over to the Attorney General" if he found concrete evidence of direct violation of the code by the Ford company.

Ford officials indicated clearly that they believed Johnson had singled them out unnecessarily in his statement, which concerned wage, hour and schedules of employment to be furnished to the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce required by the NRA code.

Ford Not a Member.

Ford is not a member of the N. A. C. C., but he has consistently maintained that working conditions in the giant Ford plants are better than those demanded by the code. The company indicated that the figures would be furnished if they were requested.

The text of the authorized statement made on behalf of the Ford company follows:

"The Ford Motor Co. has not made any Government bids. If bids have been made by Ford dealers, it is because Government departments insist on its being done. They have used our product before, their specifications fit it and, besides, the prices usually are very easy on the department's budget. There is no money in Government bids unless some form of favoritism is practised, such as is now possible under the NRA.

"Situation Simple."

"The situation at Washington, which has so greatly excited Mr. Johnson, is a simple one. A Ford dealer, who is a citizen of Washington, entered his bid at the request of Government men. His bid was something like $200,000 lower than the others.

"Johnson now proposes to charge the American taxpayer a higher price in order to give Government business to a concern that pays lower wages than the Ford Motor Co. does. More money out of the taxpayers' pocket, less money in the workingman's pocket—that is the way it will work.

"To cover his action, Johnson makes the false charge that the Ford Motor Co. has not complied with the law. We have done so in every respect. Signing a code is not in the law. Flying the Blue Eagle is not in the law. Johnson's daily expression of opinion is not law.

Ford Exceeds Law, Claim.

"The Ford Motor Co. observes the law and exceeds it in all its recovery features. Our product is composed of materials produced by industry that observes the law. Johnson now says that a product which 5,300 NRA industries help to fabricate out of material produced under NRA conditions shall not be

Firemen's Human Chain Saves Boy

They Dangle Over Cliff to Reach Climber.

Cincinnati, Oct. 27 (AP).—Firemen dangled a human chain over a cliff today to rescue Yale Rice, 5, who tried to play mountain climber, got halfway and then found himself unable to go any farther up or down.

Three firemen made up the chain that others of their company dangled some 30 feet over the edge of a cliff to reach the boy. Had the lad slipped he would have tumbled 30 feet more down the rocky precipice.

A woman who saw his plight called the firemen.

Grocers' Code Battle Goes Up to President

Major Features in Retail Set-Up Face Slashes; Officials Split.

(Associated Press.)

Officials of the Farm Adjustment Administration have decided to scrap some of the major provisions of the NRA retail code in drafting its companion code for the retail food and grocery branch of the distribution industry.

It was disclosed last night that a new conflict in viewpoints on retail codes has arisen between farm and NRA officials, with the result that the question will be placed in the hands of President Roosevelt for decision.

Unless the codes are harmonized, the merchant with a can of shoe polish on one shelf and a box of raisins on another will find the two articles subject to two separate and distinct sales codes at sharp variance in some respects.

Farm officials, who oppose the flat retail mark-up plan, are now equally opposed to the NRA retail code articles to the consumer should inprovision that "the selling price of clude an allowance for actual wages of store labor, to be fixed and published from time to time by the trade authority."

They are ready to prohibit sales of foods and groceries by retailers at less than invoice cost, which they said was the essence of an agreement reached recently by Secretary Wallace, George N. Peek.

Judge Sellers Sticks to Post; Demands Pay

Contention That Successor Must Be Confirmed Declared Valid.

Judge Kathryn Sellers of the Juvenile Court yesterday refused to relinquish her post despite appointment by President Roosevelt of Miss Fay L. Bentley, school attendance officer, to take her place.

Formal notice she would not resign to permit Miss Bentley to take office was served by Judge Sellers in letters to Daniel J. Donovan, District auditor, and James Lusby, disbursing officer. These officials are in charge of District pay rolls and Judge Sellers said she intended to continue in office and draw her salary until provisions of the law governing the term had been met.

She pointed out that the law provided the Juvenile Court judge should serve for six years or until a successor had been nominated and confirmed.

Surprised District officials learned from their legal advisers the contention of Judge Sellers was legally sound, and they said they were wondering what to do. So far as they could recall it was the first instance of its kind in the District.

Judge Sellers' term expired several months ago and there has been waged a determined under-cover battle over the post. Welfare workers enlisted the aid of Mrs. Roosevelt and Secretary of Labor Perkins in behalf of Miss Bentley, whose appointment was made a few days ago by the President.

Judge Sellers requested the question be submitted to Comptroller General McCarl for decision.

Radium Victim Dies; Waited For 19 Years

East Orange, N. J., Oct. 27 (U.P.). Death, which she had awaited 19 years, came today to Grace Fryer—eighteenth victom of radium poisoning in the New Jersey Oranges.

Miss Fryer died quietly in the Homeopathic Hospital while specialists stood by helpless to prevent the final victorious assault of the poison.

(Associated Press.)

Under the prodding of President Roosevelt's new monetary policy, the Reconstruction Finance Corporation's gold price was run to a new high today and officials were gratified to note that the commodity markets also worked upward.

While there were differences of opinion as to the cause of the market trend, Mr. Roosevelt's advisers noted that wheat led a general advance. Cotton, although quiet, turned upward at the close and stocks followed the trend of the grain market.

The domestic price of newly mined gold was boosted yesterday to $31.76, higher by 22 cents than Thursday, and 66 cents above the day's world market quotation.

The R. F. C., which, under the plan, is authorized to purchase the freshly mined metal, awaited reports from mints and assay offices before announcing the total that had been acquired.

Denver dispatches told of $416,388 of new gold delivered at the mint there and tremendously increased activity among the miners. A total of 8,321 ounces was received Wednesday, said Mark Skinner, who is in charge of the mint. At that time the domestic price was $31.36. In addition, 4,390 ounces were delivered Thursday at a price of $31.54.

Wednesday's price was $31.36, Thursday $31.54 and yesterday's $31.76. By comparison, the London prices for the three days were, respectively, $31.09, $31.06 and $31.10. At the same time the London figures in British currency increased steadily from 130 shillings 1 pence to 130 shillings 9 pence half penny and 131 shillings 2 pence. Disparities in the dollar value of gold at London were caused by fluctuations in freign exchange.

The domestic price is set each day by a committee appinted by President Roosevelt. It consists of Chairman Jesse H. Jones of the R. F. C, Undersecretary Acheson of the Treasury, and Henry Morgenthau, jr., representing Mr. Roosevelt.

President's Sick-Bed Phone Call To Jail Saves Slayer From Chair

Barely three minutes before William Washington, colored, 24, was to be executed yesterday, President Roosevelt telephoned the District Jail and granted a three-day stay.

The President was in bed with a cold when he called the prison direct to make sure his orders were transmitted in time. He explained new evidence had been discovered.

Thomas M. Rives, jail superintendent, was directing arrangements for the electrocution when he received the reprieve call at 9:56 a. m.

A call from the Department of Justice confirming the Presidential conversation caused brief delay in the execution of William C. Robinson, 22, another colored man, convicted with Washington for slaying Mannie Soloman, taxi driver, in a holdup July 28, 1931.

Robinson died without realizing a confession he made last night brought a stay for Washington. The former sang a Negro spiritual in a firm voice as he walked the "last mile."

A dramatic silence fell over a group of reporters awaiting the double execution when Rives picked up a phone, listened a moment and remarked:

"Yes, Mr. President."

Rives said the President intervened upon recommendation of Solicitor General Biggs.

It was learned Robinson told the Rev. James L. Pinn, colored minister, he fired the shot which killed the cab driver and hoped Washington would not be executed.

Death sentence of a third colored man figuring in the slaying, Leonard Layton, 22, was commuted to life imprisonment by President Roosevelt October 10 upon recommendation of the Attorney General.

Informed of the stay, Washington fell to his knees and said:

"God bless the President. God knows I'm innocent."

U.S. Trade Not for Those Without Blue Eagle, Roosevelt Edict.

Administrator Declares "Overt Act" to Bring Prosecution.

President Roosevelt yesterday pledged his administration's full support to NRA in its stand that the Government will have no dealings with Henry Ford or his agents until he flies the Blue Eagle.

Developments, which came thick and fast yesterday in the situation created by the Detroit manufacturer's resistance to NRA, included:

The President's order that, unless the Comptroller General rules otherwise, the recovery act shall require all Government departments to patronize only those manufacturers who have gone along with NRA and to reject the products of all dissenters, even although their agents or dealers may be operating under proper retail codes.

Announcement by Recovery Administrator Hugh S. Johnson that if he can obtain evidence of a single "overt act" by Ford in defiance of the automobile code, he will turn him over to the Attorney General for prosecution and penalties, which may include fines and injunctions against the Ford Motor Co.

The first statement from Ford since he failed to sign the code, to the effect that Gen. Johnson is "assuming the airs of a dictator" and "attempting a grave injustice against a law-abiding American industry." The statement said that neither signing a code nor flying the Blue Eagle was required by law, and charged that favoritism in awarding Government bids is possible under NRA.

Protests to the Secretary of Agriculture and the Secretary of Commerce by R. P. Sabine, president of the Northwest Motor Co., of Chevy Chase and a member of the NRA compliance board for that section, that the Ford Motor Co. was in no way a party to low bids his company submitted to furnish trucks to the Civilian Conservation Corps and the airways division of the Commerce Department.

President Roosevelt's determination to throw his administration's unqualified support behind Gen. Johnson in the latter's barring of Ford products in the event of noncompliance was made known following yesterday's Cabinet meeting.

Court Threat Approved.

It was understood that the Recovery Administrator's proposal to seek prosecution of Ford in the event of an "overt act" against NRA met with administrative approval.

Such an "over act," Gen. Johnson explained, might be either refusal to submit monthly wage, production and hours statistics to the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, the code authority, or refusal to meet his employes in collective bargaining.

The NRA chief disclosed that when he went to Detroit to urge

24 on Boats Feared Lost

Searching Parties Scour Canadian Lake After Violent Squalls.

Winnipeg, Oct. 27 (AP).—Twenty-four persons, passengers and crew of two lake boats, were reported missing today following violent squalls on Lake Winnipeg. The boats are five days overdue.

Rescue parties were organized at Selkirk today and three boats set out on the storm-tossed waters to search for the missing craft.

The missing boats are the Luberc, with a crew of 6 and 14 fishermen, and the Question Mark, with a crew of 3 and 1 passenger.

The Luberc was sailing for Eagle Island, near Grand Rapids on the west side of the lake, and was due back at Selkirk last Sunday. It is a 90-foot oil burner built about six years ago at a cost of $28,000.

The Question Mark is owned by the Selkirk Navigation Co. and carried a cargo of winter supplies for points along the lake.

Plan to Save City's Blighted Areas Offered

Lack of Logical Building Prior to Zoning Laws Cuts Realty Values.

This is the last of a series on revival of home construction, with particular reference to Washington.

By Louis Justement,
Chariman, Committee on Housing, Washington Chapter, American Institute of Architects.

The street lay-out of the older portion of Washington has justified fully the vision of l'Enfant; it is still remarkably well adapted to modern needs, and is an excellent example of entrusting city planning to capable technical experts, instead of allowing property to be developed through the uncoordinated action of property owners.

The development of property within the framework of the streets, however, shows everywhere a pitiable disregard of logical planning and a colossal destruction of real estate values.

The blighting of entire residential neighborhoods by a small percentage of commercial, industrial or otherwise unsuitable developments has at last resulted in enactment of zoning laws in most American cities, the District law having been passed in 1920. Zoning, however, has very little value with respect to improving conditions in the vast portions of this city which were built prior to 1920.

Values Are Receding.

In almost all of the older sections we find so-called "blighted areas," having no speculative future, and in which real estate values are, on the contrary, receding. An occasional warehouse, garage, or similar structure is about the only new building erected in such areas, and each such building adds to the destruction of adjacent residential values.

These blighted areas are rapidly losing their population, large portions of Washington having lost 20 per cent between 1920 and 1930, with no corresponding expansion or commercial development.

The blighted areas, therefore, face the practical certainty of ever-decreasing values and must eventually degenerate into slum areas. While popular fancy has emphasized "slum reclamation" it must be realized that slum conditions exist in Washington only in certain small and widely scattered areas. In several large Eastern cities slum conditions exist over large areas and vast new housing projects soon may be under way, which will remove such conditions. The real problem in Washington is the "blighted area" rather than the "slum area."

Rebuilding Proposed.

Various solutions of the problem have been suggested. The simplest would be the wholesale rebuilding of such areas in units of two to six squares at a time. Unfortunately the value of even these poor "improvements" must be added to the value of the land as the total site cost of any new project. For instance, on a lot 20 by 100, or 2,000 feet, the value of the ground may be 50 cents per square foot, or $1,000; but the value of the house may be $2,000, if this amount is added, the total price which must be paid for the use of the land for a new project becomes $1.50 per square foot.

The only way in which such land values could be capitalized would be by the errection of apartment houses. If extended over any large area, this would be impossible as there are not enough people to occupy the new buildings.

Since it appears to be impossible to rebuild blighted areas on any comprehensive scale, another solution has been proposed. This would involve the accumulation of four to ten squares at a time under one ownership and the renovation of the area as a whole. A great deal could be done to improve the appearance, comfort and general desirability of houses in such sections by general renovization work.

Would Increase Population.

Occasional objectionable buildings could be removed to obtain benefits which would accrue to the entire operation. By such methods it not only would be possible to hold the existing population, but actually to increase it, since many of the areas are desirably situated with respect to nearness to the downtown section.

If these properties could, in addition, be refinanced so the rate of interest on first mortgage was somewhat less than existing interest rates, it should be possible to build up a reserve found for the purpose of amortizing the value of the buildings entirely within a period of 15 to 30 years.

At the end of that period it would be possible to rebuild the entire area on the basis of capitalizing the ground value only and the new buildings need not house any more than the present population.

It seems likely that the first attempts toward reclamation of blighted areas in Washington will consist of renovizing seven or eight squares and rebuilding perhaps one entire square or portions of several squares. In almost any group of squares in the blighted area there is apt to be one in which the improvements are so deteriorated that it may be possible to remove them without incurring too great a loss.

In addition, it may be possible to rebuild both sides of a given street frontage for the sake of improving the desirability and increasing the income from the entire section even though the new building operation, of itself, may not be profitable.

Aid to Employment.

While a single project of this type would, of course, not produce as much work for the building trades as a new building project, it might prove the way for other projects. It is not beyond the bounds of possibility, assuming a reasonable degree of success in the first operation, that the entire older residential section of Washington might thus gradually be renovized in the next 20 years, thereby not only improving housing conditions but giving employment to the building trades. At the end of that period the building of the original renovized projects would be amortized sufficiently to permit rebuilding operations.

Whether or not the renovizing of blighted areas is possible depends primarily on two factors.

The first is the necessity of being able to acquire by condemnation those pieces of property which it is impossible to obtain by direct negotiation. The Copeland bill introduced at the last session would give the right of condemnation to limited dividend housing corporations which would be subject to the control of a housing board.

The second factor which will have to be met is a willingness on the part of blighted area property owners to sell their property to such limited dividend housing corporations at a fair price, based on the income now derived from the properties. From their own selfish point of view such property owners should be glad of an opportunity to dispose of real estate for which there is no active market and which inevitably must depreciate in value unless it can be used in some new way.

Benefit Seen for City.

The reclamation of blighted areas would undoubtedly be advantageous to the city as a whole, to the tenants and to the present owners of the property. But if such owners, or a large proportion of them, insist on prices beyond the real present value the fear of improvement can not be put into effect.

If it should be found impossible to acquire a sufficiently large area to renovize, at a price which would make the project economically sound, existing blighted areas will continue to degenerate into slums and new areas will be developed in the suburbs, constantly draining the population of the older city.

Ultimately the loss in population and depreciation of buildings will reduce the value of real estate in blighted areas to such extent that new buildings instead of renovizing projects may be undertaken.

Troops Moved Into Southern Textile Strike

Reinforce Police After Tear Gas Is Hurled at Workers.

Bath, S. C., Oct. 27 (AP).—National Guard troops moved late today into the troubled Horse Creek Valley textile manufacturing area, scene today of a clash between State police and strikers. The officers released tear gas and the strikers hurled stones.

Twenty-four men and a machine-gun outfit make up the unit.

The guardsmen had instructions from Gov. Blackwood to maintain and were called out after he received reports that groups from Augusta, Ga., where strikes are in progress at five textile mills, had come into this section, just across the Savannah River, and attempted to close mills.

Asks Suspension of Picketing.

"If the people down there want to work," said the governor, "the laws guarantee them the right to work. If they want to strike, that's their business so long as they observe order in doing it."

Strikers at a mass meeting here were told by Paul W. Fuller, representative of the American Federation of Labor, to abandon picketing until Monday.

Twenty-two Arrested.

As workers began entering the mill this morning jeers came from the picket lines and a fight developed. Rocks began to fly. The police released the tear gas and brought a fire hose into play.

A brick thrown through a window of the mill struck J. W. Sellers, a foreman, and injured him seriously.

Twenty-two strikers, including four women, were taken to the Aiken jail. Police said some of the men had guns.

Tropical Gale Moves North Along Coast

A tropical storm was reported moving up the Atlantic Coast last night in a warning by the Weather Bureau. The storm is not expected to strike Washington.

Weather Bureau officials said that at 9 p. m. the storm attended by hurricane winds near the center, was 200 miles east of Cape Hatteras and was moving north-northeastward.

Court Action by Ousted Trade Board Member Believed Near.

While William E. Humphrey, Federal Trade Commissioner ousted by President Roosevelt, kept silence on his dismissal, his successor was installed yesterday.

In the presence of fellow commissioners, George C. Mathews, Wisconsin utilities and securities expert, was sworn into office by Mrs. Edna B. Vincel, personnel officer and notary of the commission. Humphrey, it was said at his residence, was out of the city.

The ousted commissioner, who said he would contest his removal in the courts, recently has been reticent about discussing his case. Nor have "prominent Republicans," reported to have espoused his cause, been any more communicative.

However, it is known Humphrey consulted Col. William J. Donovan, Assistant Attorney General in the Coolidge administration. It was indicated yesterday that Donovan's firm is planning definite action, now that a successor has been installed.

Mathews appeared at the commission yesterday shortly afternoon. Preceding a meeting of the commission, at which it was presumed he was assigned the type of work he will conduct, he was given his oath of office.

A Wisconsin Republican, Mathews served many years on the public service commission of that State. In handling security matters he made a reputation as a liberal. At the time of his appointment to succeed Humphrey he was a rate expert for the Insull receivers.

The new commissioner declined to comment on the Humphrey affair.

Reserve Bulletin Hits Code System

son evidently referred reflecting pay rolls continue to show increases.

"For the past two months," said the Reserve bulletin, "there has been a reaction in industry from the exceptionally rapid expansion of activity during the spring and early summer months. Notwithstanding this reaction business was in considerably larger volume in August and September than in March."

March was the low point of the depression. The bulletin cited that after the banking holiday activity revived.

"The increase," it cited, "was accelerated by the prospects of increased costs and price advances as the result of processing taxes and codes provisions and also by anticipation of inflation."

This comment echoes the growing uneasiness and conflict over the administration's program of planned economy and its monetary policy. The bulletin's declarations served to edge into the open the rift between Treasury and Reserve Board authorities and the group of academic advisers who lately have had the President's ear.

Treasury Overruled.

When the President suddenly decided to proclaim his unprecedented monetary policy, founded on the theory of the commodity dollar advocates, Treasury and Reserve Board officials were overruled.

Jesse Jones, chairman of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, who had already taken command of the program for releasing frozen bank deposits and for fortifying open banks so they may qualify for Federal deposit insurance, emerged as the chief figure in the gold-buying operations incident to the new monetary policy.

The widening influence of the RFC, coupled with NRA and AAA contributions to planned economy, has meant a waning influence of the Treasury and reserve system, with resultant accentuation of differences between the heads of the RFC, NRA and AAA, on the one hand, and the Treasury and Reserve authorities on the other.

Signal for Counterblasts.

Hence the new reserve bulletin, with its factual commentary on the decline of activity in industry operating under codes and processing taxes, was instantly the signal for resentful counter-blasts from the NRA and AAA camps.

However, it was but a faint reflection of the conflict within. More conspicuous eruptions are to be expected unless there is a reconciliation of policy and functions soon.

Wiggin Holds Public Sways Wall Street

Wouldn't Do Anything Now Open to Criticism, He Tells Couzens.

(Associated Press.)

Albert H. Wiggin, retired chairman of the Chase National Bank, New York, believes public opinion has an effect on Wall street.

After the Senate Banking Committee yesterday had traced extensive stock market operations in the past by the bank's Chase securities affiliate and subsidiaries, Ferdinand Pecora, committee counsel, asked Wiggin:

"Do you now think that a national bank affiliate should engage in stock market speculation of the kind you then had in mind?"

"No, sir; if for no other reason than respect for public opinion," replied Wiggin.

"Oh, that's a new one!" exclaimed Senator Couzens (Republican), of Michigan. "So public opinion does have some effect upon Wall street?"

Blames Spirit of Times.

"I think that it has a pretty good effect," said Wiggin, going on to say that he would not do anything "today that, if it turned out unfortunate, was going to be criticized."

The banker blamed the spirit of the times for 1928 stock market trading of the affiliated Chase Securities Corporation running into hundreds of millions of dollars.

Pecora asked:

"What prompted the Chase Securities Corporation to engage in these trading accounts from 1928 down?"

"I think the times," replied Wiggin.

Plenty of Atmosphere.

"I assume you mean the speculative atmosphere?" interjected Senator Couzens (Republican), Michigan.

"I think that covers it," agreed Wiggin. "There was a great deal of atmosphere."

"Did you yield to the temper of the times in that respect?" queried Pecora.

"I am afraid so," replied the banker.

Aldrich Will Ban Chase Stock Pools

Securities Corporation participated."

"Since 1921, Metpotan has participated in 22 trading accounts; some were operated at a profit, some at a loss," the statement read. "The net result of the operations of all accounts has been a profit of less than $600,000. These accounts were not organized to advance the price of the stock and then liquidate.

Wiggin Lists Aims.

"On the contrary, the thought was to provide both a purchasing power and a distributing power so that the stockholders might profit by the more orderly resulting market. I believe that were it not for the steadying effects of the Metpotan trading accounts, Chase would have advanced in 1929 far beyond the high price reached."

When Pecora wanted to know what prompted Chase to organize affiliates for trading purposes, Wiggin said he thought it was the spirit of "the times."

"I assume you mean the speculative atmosphere," observed Senator Couzens (Republican), Michigan.

Pecora brought out that Chase Securities Corporation participated in 35 pool operations between 1928 and 1931, and the volume of its operations totaled $860,000,000. He detailed purchases made totaling $430,772,795 and sales aggregating $429,949,210.

$50,000,000 in Losses.

Actual realized losses of Chase Securities Corporation were estimated at nearly $50,000,000, although $120,000,000 has been set aside to meet loss from security sales.

Hearings will be resumed next Tuesday morning, when Wiggin will again be placed on the stand.

Meanwhile, committee investigators began work in the State Department yesterday on records covering Chase loans to Cuba during the Coolidge and Hoover administrations. Other committee accountants prepared to leave for Cleveland and Detroit to investigate the closed bank situation in those cities. Pecora said he probably will begin the distribution of revised questionnaires to members of the New York Stock Exchange tomorrow or next week.

Anne Just Looks At Paris Frocks; Must Fly Light

(Copyright, 1933, by United Press.)

Paris, Oct. 27 (U.P.).—Mary Knight, of the United Press, found Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh visiting Paris with her famous husband, a rather lonely girl when she interviewed her today.

"There's nothing I'd rather do than buy a couple of new dresses," Mrs. Lindbergh confided, "but Charles insists there is no room for more baggage. We must travel light, you know. If we shipped the dresses home, the customs probably would be severe—so I must go without, although I haven't seen Paris in nine years."

In response to Miss Knight's query whether she preferred the life of a flier's wife to that of housekeeper, she said:

"I do both, and it's an ideal life. I like to make such trips as this, and they sometimes are most exciting. But I enjoy housekeeping very much, and I will be mighty glad to get back.

"The latest news from home was that the baby (Jon) is well. Mother is always glad when I go and leave our baby with her," she laughed.

Roosevelt Behind NRA in Ford Fight

Ford to come under the Blue Eagle, the latter's son, Edsel, told him his father "never would consent to collective bargaining," as provided under the automobile code.

Gen. Johnson declared flatly yesterday that Ford could not sell to the Government, even if the low bidder for a contract; that Ford dealers, even if flying the Blue Eagle themselves, could not sell Ford products to any Government department, and that, to show his determination to put the Detroit manufacturer out of the picture, he was trading in his Lincoln limousine, a Ford-made machine, for another automobile.

Sabine's Bid Rejected.

The reference by Gen. Johnson and the attitude of the President regarding Ford dealers referred to the Sabine case.

It was learned yesterday that Sabine, although a member of the Montgomery County compliance board, had been called before officials of the Civilian Conservation Corps and the airways division of the Department of Commerce early this week and told his bids to furnish trucks, although low, could not be considered because the Ford Motor Co., whose products he proposed to sell, was not operating under the Blue Eagle.

Sabine estimated "It will cost the Government between $169,000 and $250,000 to purchase this equipment from the next lowest bidder" and argued that only the chasis of the trucks he offered the C. C. C. and the airways division are made by Ford.

In the statement from the Ford Motor Co. challenging Johnson's authority, these points also were raised.

But the Recovery Administrator refused to be drawn into a controversy with Ford spokesmen.

In "cracking down" on Ford through the White House and through the threat of prosecution, the Administration was reversing the policies it has pursued heretofore. Previously Gen. Johnson had said he was "depending upon the public to crack down" on the manufacturer; again he had indicated that if there was to be prosecution it would have to be initiated by some Federal district attorney and not by the NRA.

Public Indifference Seen.

In the reversing of these policies, it was said, is indication that the public has not carried out Johnson's desires sufficiently, and that therefore action by "mailed fist" is essential.

Disclosure of the Government's new program, began at a press conference, called during the morning by Gen. Johnson, when a reporter asked.

"General, this is a very ticklish question, but what are you intending to do with Ford if he does not furnish information in violation of the code?"

"As soon as I have a clear-cut violation of the code, I will act under the code," said the general. "I will turn the case over to the Attorney General's office."

Johnson then was asked whether he considered the manufacturer eligible to bid for contracts at the present time, "inasmuch as to date the fact is that he has complied with the code."

Not Eligible, He Says.

"No," retorted Johnson. "I do not think he is eligible, because he has publicly stated he was not in sympathy with the code and would never put into effect anything that looked toward collective bargaining. At least, he told me that."

Again, referring to the bid by a Ford dealer for a Civilian Conservation Corps contract, he declared that he had "taken the position that a billion dollar manufacturer can not hide behind a $10,000 company."

"On this truck business, you have been in communication with the Agricultural Department?" he was asked.

"No, I have not," Johnson replied. "The thing I know is that the President has got out an order that the Government would not receive bids or make contracts with those who were not complying with the code provisions, and the C. C. C. man called me yetserday and said he was going to reject those low bids. That is all I know about it."

"The National Labor Board is of the opinion that the Ford company is going in for collective bargaining, and that the Pennsylvania plants are awaiting word from Dearborn," another reporter pointed out.

"Well, I am not familiar with those developments," Johnson shot back.

"General, what is the attitude in the case of the Lincoln car?" was another question.

"You mean the Lincoln I ride around in?" smiled Johnson. "We are going to trade it in."

Gen. Johnson thought the deadline for submission of the operating statistics was "about November 7," but he was not certain.

Lindys Feted By New French Premier, Fliers

Colonel and Wife Ask to Be Considered as "Tourists."

Paris, Oct. 27 (AP).—France's aviators and her new premier, Albert Sarraut, paid homage at a dinner tonight to Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh.

Most of the conversation was "shop talk," tales of heroic flights over oceans, in which the colonel's flight to Paris six years ago was hailed as the most glorious of all.

The Lindberghs were back in Paris as "simple visitors," they said, and, where in 1927 he swooped out of the Atlantic mists to the acclaim of millions, Paris respected today their desire for privacy.

"I am happy," the colonel said modestly. "I have been here already."

Noted Fliers Present.

The dinner was at the home of the famous flier Dieudonne Coste—an apartment at the foot of the Eiffel Tower.

Among the guests were Paul Codos, Maurice Rossi, Maurice Bellonte, Jean Assolant and Rene Lefevre, all of whom have Atlantic flights to their credit.

The premier dropped his cares of state and arrived alone in his car to join one of the most sparkling assemblages of airmen it was possible to bring together in France.

Air Minister Pierre Cot, not able to attend, was represented by the chief of the cabinet, M. Corbin.

For another person, too, the Lindbergh's visit was a happy one. She is the mother of Capt. Charles Nungesser, who, with Capt. Francois Coli, was lost on an attempted flight from Paris to New York in May, 1927.

Will Visit Mme. Nungesser.

Mme. Nungesser plans to invite Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh to observe the birthday anniversary of her son next Friday at Le Bourget.

Mme. Nungesser and Lindbergh have exchanged letters annually since that time.

Paris was excited over the visit today and newspapers printed long articles about him and his wife.

M. Cot issued a request to the public tonight to respect the fliers' wishes for privacy.

M. Cot has arranged for Lindbergh to tour airfields and factories with French experts. Everything has been done to facilitate his studies and to help him preserve his incognito.

Again tonight Col. Lindbergh made it plain that he wants to be considered "just a tourist."

Ford Lashes NRA Chief as Dictator

sold in this country because it carries the name Ford, a name which stands for better conditions than NRA has dared to stand for.

"Johnson is not boycotting us. He is boycotting 5,300 American manufacturers who cooperate with Johnson.

"It would make no difference if the Ford Motor Co. signed a code. This company would be under attack by the enemies of independent business just the same.

"Not only has Johnson attempted a grave injustice upon a law-abiding American industry; he also has assumed to talk like a dictator and the Supreme Court combined.

"Will Let Him Go."

"Failing to induce the American people to demean themselves by boycotting decent industry, he seems to have hopes of better success with the Government. Naturally, we are willing to let him go as far as he can.

"As to Johnson's statement concerning our attitude toward collective bargaining, we have a record of 30 years on the wage question and fair conditions.

"We have not had to bargain against our men in all that time. We have always bargained for them. We doubt that Johnson will be able to change that situation. It is too profitable for our men. They have always been paid more than any professional bargainer would ever have the nerve to ask."

Cooking School Will Present Variety in Excellent Foods

The Post's Demonstration Offers Dozen Dishes Each Day.

In the number of dishes prepared, the practical value of the demonstrations and the general richness of the program offered, The Washington Post's New and Different Cooking School, to begin Tuesday, at 2 p. m., is designed to surpass anything in this line ever offered to the home-makers of Washington.

Miss Ruth Chambers, cooking expert of the National Live Stock and Meat Board, who conducts the school, has as her assistant Miss Emily Conklin, a young woman who is an artist in arranging and garnishing the dishes for display.

With two such experts in charge, The Washington Post Cooking School is able to offer a much more interesting and varied program than most cooking schools can boast.

Tempting Variety.

Each day will see the preparation of a dozen or more dishes, including in addition to the meat dishes the salads and vegetables, the pies, cakes and puddings which Miss Chambers will suggest as accompaniment to the main course. Delectable stuffings and special sauces will be prepared and the recipes for these given.

The Washington Post School will be a cooking school de luxe, for Miss Chambers conducts her sessions so that the foods are beautifully arranged for a final display which marks the end of each day's program. This closing array of dishes is like a picture exhibit.

Crisp lettuce, parsley and carrots are used in new and artistic fashion as garnishing and even the plebian onion is knowingly employed to grace the presentation of savory roasts, steaks and chops.

At Washington Auditorium

There are pies and cakes of exquisite perfection, salads crisp and tempting, vegetables cooked as vegetables were meant to be cooked.

The method of obtaining such beautiful results are shown, step by step. Then, when all have seen and admired them, Miss Chambers gives away the delicious dishes to members of the audience.

The demonstrations will be given at the Washington Auditorium, Nineteenth and E streets northwest, at 2 p. m. Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday and at 8 p. m. Friday.

Speculation Data Studied By Roosevelt

President Is Expected to Ask More Supervision From Congress.

(Associated Press.)

President Roosevelt is finding out how much speculation there is in the stock and grain exchanges.

Data submitted pictured the grain exchange as 80 per cent speculative, with 135,000,000 bushels of wheat thus involved. About 20 men were said to own 25,000,000 bushels.

Mr. Roosevelt is inquiring into stock transactions to determine how many are real investments.

Legislation to extend Government supervision over the exchanges is considered virtually certain of presidential recommendation. A special committee under John Dickinson, Assistant Secretary of Commerce, is preparing a report on means of superivsing the Stock Exchange.

3-Wheel Auto Kills Driver

Two Foreign Air Experts Injured in Crash of Invention.

Chicago, Oct. 27 (AP).—A three-wheeled automobile of radical streamline design swerved suddenly on the South Shore drive today and rolled over twice, crushing its American driver and severely injuring two distinguished foreign guests.

F. C. Turner, of Birmingham, Ala., and Pittsburgh, an advertising man for an oil company, died as his wife rushed here by chartered plane from the Southern city. His face was crushed and skull fractured.

His two passengers were expected to live. One was Col. William Francis Forbes-Sewell, eldest son of the Baron Sempill, of the Scottish peerage. An authority on civil aviation, he was a war-time member of the Royal British Air Corps, seven times competitor for the King's Cup, past chairman and president of the Royal Aeronautical Society and advisor to the air ministries of Japan and Greece.

The other was Charles Dollfuss, of Paris, attache of the French air ministry and scion of a thread manufacturing family of Mulhouse, France.

Prison Likely to Doom Georgia Chain Gangs

Atlanta, Oct. 27 (AP).—The end of Georgia's widely publicized chain-gang system today was expected to follow construction of the $1,500,000 prison in Tattnall County.

Hugh Howell, chairman of the State Democratic executive committee, said withdrawal of felony convicts—the backbone of the chain gangs—was the aim of the State administration.

Grocer Code Fight Goes to President

farm administrator, and Hugh S. Johnson, NRA administrator.

This agreement came after the Farm Administration had made clear its opposition to a minimum mark-up of 7½ per cent over delivered cost to grocers and 10 per cent for other retailers. But farm officials said today that the trio reached no agreement that retailers should include a wage allowance and that they believe this will lead to higher prices.

Farmers Impatient.

Farm officials are concerned over increased prices to consumers, and recognize that one of the chief causes of farm impatience with the recovery program is that prices to farmers have advanced more rapidly than prices of commodities farmers sell.

It is estimated that the food and grocery retail business represents roughly one-third of the retail distribution industry. The NRA code exempts stores with five or fewer employes in towns of less than 2,500 population. Farm officials expect to approve a similar provision.

President Roosevelt signed the NRA code and his signature also will be necessary before the food code becomes effective. It comes under the Farm Administration for action through an executive order issued early in the summer placing powers to administer the NRA act in the case of foodstuffs—with the exception of labor provisions—in the hands of Secretary Wallace.

Other Objections Raised.

Objections to other phases of the NRA retail code besides the wage allowance have been raised by farm officials, who are considering two courses in presenting their recommendations to the President.

The first may be a recommendation that the NRA retail code be amended to eliminate those provisions which they consider objectionable. The second and the most likely recommendation will be that the food code be approved in the form in which they finally present it, with principles in the NRA code of which they disapprove eliminated.

The NRA code becomes effective next Monday and, in event it leads to price increases to farmers as farm officials fear, they expect to ask for prompt elimination of some of its provisions.

Peek has made it clear that he has two principal policies in guiding the farm program—first, to raise prices of farm products; second, to "protect consumers."

He has said repeatedly that "I do not conceive of it as my duty or desirable that we freeze the present distribution system," and that "unless a code or marketing agreement brings some assurance of a better price to farmers, it has no place here."

Effervescent with details of his Mount Rushmore Memorial, the bronze statue of William Jennings Bryan which he rceently completed, and a project to safeguard Corpus Christi, Tex., against hurricanes, Gutzon Borglum is in Washington to see President Roosevelt.

The colorful sculptor, who specializes on gigantic mountain portraits of historical figures, came here principally to discuss plans for erection of the Bryan monument and to help Corpus Christi obtain public works funds for development of its bay front and construction of a protective sea wall.

Bryan will be immortalized by an 18-foot statue portraying the Great Commoner in a characteristic speaking pose. It will be erected in West Potomac Park, about 60 feet north of Lincoln Memorial. President Roosevelt will unveil the likeness early next year, Mr. Borglum said.

He was bearded in the Metropolitan Club after having eluded reporters three days. The 62-year-old artist still has all the spirit he displayed eight years ago in destroying his models of the Stone Mountain project, because of "the inalienable rights of an artist in his own creation."

But yesterday he was in pleasant humor. The Public Works Administration has treated him "wonderfully." Everything is shipshape on the Bryan job, and President Roosevelt, he said, has been notified the Mount Rushmore spectacle, in the Black Hills of South Dakota, will be ready for unveiling in July or August of 1935.

The gigantic granite head of George Washington, as high as a five-story building and more than a mile above sea level, is virtually finished. Thomas Jefferson should be completed next year. Abraham Lincoln and Theodore Roosevelt will come along later.

The entire job covers more than an acre, is giving 60 men work, and is the backbone of the tiny village of Keystone, which sprang up around the project. The memorial was dedicated and officially begun August 10, 1927, by President Coolidge, but only 22 months of actual work have been put in.

Mexico Flooded With Smuggled Gold, Report

Embargo Runners Declared Reaping Harvest in Republic.

(Copyright, 1933, by the United Press.)

Mexico City, Oct. 27.—A recent influx of gold into Mexico caused authorities to suspect today that vast sums are being smuggled into the country from nearby countries having embargoes on gold exports.

Whether any of the gold is coming across the border from the United States could not be established, although it appeared possible that some evasions of the United States export ban had been accomplished. It was believed quantities were coming from Cuba, with fabulous profits to the smugglers.

The Bank of Mexico, on inquiry today, reported a considerable increase in gold deposits, which was considered significant because of the past scarcity of gold.

In Cuba, coins are bought at a 12 per cent premium, brought duty free into Mexico, where they are sold at 100 per cent profit.

The gold, reexported from this country, presumably goes to England and other European countries. Three tons of coin and bars were shipped from Vera Cruz last night on the steamship Crizaba, bound for New York, and it was stated the gold would be reshipped to London. The steamship Morro Castle also carried two tons of gold coin and bars, similarly consigned.

Exportation from Vera Cruz of fine tons in a week seemed to indicate that large sums are being brought in by plane, evading embargoes and taking advantage of Mexico's no-duty on gold.

Action Urged In Island Row

Puerto Rico Commisison Demands Ouster of School Head.

(Associated Press.)

Reverberations of student strikes and protests against Gov. Robert H. Gore of Puerto Rico yesterday reached the White House.

While no intimation was given that the President was planning immediate action to settle island disturbances, the Chief Executive was disclosed to have talked with Secretary Dern about the Puerto Rican situation.

Earlier in the day, a commission of the coalition party, which controls the insular legislature, called on Dern and obtained assurance that island problems would be laid before President Roosevelt.

The commission, declaring its support of Gore, demanded replacement of Jose Radin, the insular commisioner of education.

Students at the University of Puerto Rico struck when Rafael Alonso Torres, labor leader, was appointed a trustee of the institution.

The commission told Dern a change in the commissioner of education would restore normal conditions.

Studio Waits

Artist's Jail Cell Still Cell in Alimony Fight.

Bridgeport, Conn., Oct. 27 (AP).—The cell that may become a studio was still just a cell tonight for McClelland Barclay, magazine artist, held on a body writ charging failure to pay $35,000 in alimony to Nan Barclay.

Attaches of the Farfield County Jail said the artist could convert his cell into a workshop, but that he devoted all his attention today to the problem of gaining freedom.

One of his attorneys, John D. Walker, of Stamford, conferred with Barclay in the jail, but tonight—hours after the artist had passed the 24-hour mark behind the bars—the $35,000 bond required was not forthcoming.

Administration To Ask More Public Works

President Backs Movement For Further Funds as Applications Mount.

President Roosevelt intends to extend the Administration's vast public works program after the first of next year and is considering asking Congress to increase the original $3,300,000,000 provided to hasten recovery.

What figure the President may set was undetermined. Secretary Ickes is said to favor an additional $1,700,000, lifting the total to $5,000,000,000.

To date $2,105,216,252 has been allocated by the works administration to all parts of the Nation. Only about a fourth of this has been withdrawn so far for actual construction. At least 85 cents of every public works dollar goes for wages, it is estimated.

Until a decision is reached on the amount, Mr. Roosevelt is holding up completion of a fiscal program for the coming year.

The number of applications, rapidly mounting, has convinced Mr. Ickes that many communities would have to be turned down if the public works fund is not increased. Creation of the Federal housing corporation will also reduce the fund by several hundred millions.

After this corporation has been set up, to direct the construction and leasing of low-cost housing throughout the country, only about $1,000,000,000 would be left to take care of several thousand applications now on file.

Death Takes One of Twins New York Mother Deserted

New York, Oct. 27 (AP).—Marie del Rosso, the subway waif, is dead and her twin is seriously ill.

The mother, who is under bond on a charge of deserting her 2-weeks-old twins, told the story today.

"Marie died Tuesday," said Mrs. Marie de Rosso, "a few minutes before I made my daily call at the foundling home.

"Roberta, the other twin, is very sick There was a blood transfusion yesterday——"

Mrs. del Rosso left Marie in a subway and Roberta near a church altar the day she was dismissed from the hospital.

Her husband makes $10 a week as a bellhop, "and the children needed lots of things I couldn't buy."

She told her husband the twins had died. Her tears gave her away, however, for she wept when officers asked what had happened to her babies.

They were taken to a foundling hospital. Mrs. del Rosso called daily. Marie contracted pneumonia. Roberta, wasting away because of prolonged malnutrition, is a "very sick baby."

A person who asked to remain anonymous furnished bail for the mother, who was allowed to see the twins every day.

Mrs. del Rosso's face was strained with grief today.

"I get crank letters," she said. "saying I was crazy and that I should be put in jail for the rest of my life. I don't think they should pin any medals on me, but I'm having a hard enough time——"

One Is Killed, Another Dying In Farm Strike

Twelve Hurt in Disorder; Movement Weakens in Iowa.

Madison, Wis., Oct. 27 (AP).—One man was slain tonight, another was near death and a dozen others were nursing minor injuries as violence supplanted peaceful persuasion on the Wisconsin farm strike front.

It was the first fatality of the current Midwest agrarian strike.

Gundar Felland, a farmer on a picket line seeking to keep milk out of Madison, was shot down by a man in the driver's seat of a truck which the pickets had stopped, witnesses reported to the sheriff.

At Marshfield, Theodore Weber, 29, was hovering between life and death in a hospital. He was struck on the head by pickets who demanded he turn back with a load of fence posts he was hauling.

Climax at Milwaukee.

Des Moines, Oct. 27 (AP).—Field generals of the National Farmers Holiday Association confererd today as their agricultural strike lost momentum in western Iowa and increased its effectiveness in north and central Wisconsin.

President Milo Reno said the organization's executive board would meet Sunday to draft farm relief proposals for presentation Monday at a conference of Midwestern governors here.

A climax to the Wisconsin situation was expected next week at Milwaukee. The Wisconsin Cooperative Milk Pool, due to join the strike, threatened to bring in many pickets, while the Milwaukee Milk Producers Cooperative, organization of farmers shipping milk to the city, opposed the strike.

Walter Singler, milk pool president, predicted northern Michigan farmers would join the strike next week.

No picketing was reported in western Iowa near the Omaha markets as farmers continued plans to organize tomorrow an antistrike association.

Old Organization Revived.

Plymouth County Council of Defense, a holiday arbitration group disbanded after national guardsmen stopped farm disturbances in the county last spring, was reorganized today, with S. T. Mosher, of Jefferson, S. Dak., chairman.

A Bricelyn, Minn., creamery, which closed Wednesday in sympathy with the holiday for higher prices, reopened.

Elevator and creamery operators in Faribault County said holiday leaders threatened picketing if the produce houses remained open.

The Federal Diary

(Trade-mark Applied For)

ON the basis of data on hand, restoration of the pay scale and its increase beyond the inadequate levels of 1928 are clearly demanded, Miss Matilda Lindsay, representing the National Federation of Federal Employes, told the committee in charge of the cost of living survey yesterday.

"It is imperative in any sound study of living that full and adequate consideration be given to the basically important question of fixed charges," she said. "Especially as such a survey is an attempt to throw light upon the relationship of cost of living to the present Federal salary level is it essential to give these factors their deserved weight.

"It is an inescapable fact that not only have fixed charges remained level while the Federal wage scale has been driven precipitately downward; it is equally true that in many instances these fixed charges have increased in the face of sharply depleted incomes."

Lists Fixed Figures.

Among the budgetary items of Federal employes which have remained practically stationary, she pointed out, are interest charges on home mortgages, rentals, taxes of all kinds and public utility costs.

A further phase of the situation which has made a slash in Federal pay a crushing burden, she added, is the fact that on the basis of "a slight, long-deferred and inadequate increase in 1928," many Government employes purchased homes, using savings and, in some cases, borrowing upon insurance policies, to make first payments.

"In view of their contractual relations with their employer, the Federal Government," Miss Lindsay declared, "these employes were eminently justified in thus endeavoring to provide themselves with shelter against their old age. When these contractual relations were voided by the Government, by pyramiding furloughs and pay cuts, thousands of workers found it necessary to rebudget and refinance. Hand-in-hand, then, with the cut in income came increased refinancing costs, often running to exorbitant rates. At the same time, too, insurance premiums rose and insurance dividends increased.

Distress Increases.

"So employes were faced with overwhelming financial distress. That distress has been so acute, so widespread and so deeply tragic that not even the most calloused industrialist who demanded 'economy at any cost' can close his eyes to the consequences of a misguided policy.

"These are basic considerations," she concluded. "They are, in the final analysis, the crux of the whole cost of living study."

* * * *

Retirement Luncheon.

Officials and coworkers at the Bureau of Fisheries will give a farewell luncheon for a group of retiring employes today at the Department of Commerce cafeteria.

Those to be honored are George A. Schneider, draftsman, with 42 years' service; Charles W. Burnham, superintendent of the Central Station, 41 years; Albert K. Brown, administrative assistant to the Commissioner, 31 years; Alice W. Stearns, secretary to the commissioner, 32 years; Winthrop A. Roberts, statistical agent, 42 years; Mary C. Stilwell, stenographer, 41 years, and Mae Haynes and Kate Ryland, 15 years each.

We'll Do Our Part.

Things are looking up, you hear on every side.
Business is much better, it is pointed out with pride;
But here in Washington things are mighty slow,
For Government employes simply haven't got the dough.

Prices in our midst are rising every day.
It's up to Uncle Sam to quickly raise our pay.

Labor Opposes Code Proposed For Builders

Green Tells Johnson It Is "Not Representative"; Asks 30-Hour Week.

Protesting provisions of a code submitted for the building trade, President William Green, of the American Federation of Labor, yesterday obtained the assurance of NRA Administrator Hugh S. Johnson that labor representatives would be consulted before any such code is approved.

The code, Green said, was presented by the Construction League, which he declared is "not truly representative."

Green emerged from his conference with Johnson with the statement that no construction code had yet been completed.

Labor's insistence on a 30-hour week is involved in the protest yesterday. Green said he had told Johnson that a representative code approved by building trades limited work to 30 hours a week, while the Construction League code specified maximum hours of 40 to 48.

"Those hours," Green explained, "constitute one basic objection. Another is that the code covers all construction, even taking in flood control. It should cover the building industry only."

Still another objection by Green was "denial of worker representation" on boards in the code.

While labor would prefer to have minimum wages established for skilled as well as unskilled workers, Green said the federation would not insist on that point.

U. S. to Spend More for Beef

Another $10,000,000 to Help Relieve Market.

(Associated Press.)

Representative Burch (Democrat), Virginia, said yesterday he was advised by Farm Adjustment Administration officials that another $10,000,000 of Federal funds would be spent to take low grade beef cattle off the market.

The relief administration already has allocated $10,000,000 to the purchase of beeves of the canners and cutters varieties for distribution to the needy.

Burch said he was informed the second $10,000,000 would come from a Farm Adjustment Administration fund to be raised by levying a compensatory tax against meat processors.

The representative's announcement followed conferences with Secretary Wallace, Chester C. Davis, reduction director of the adjustment administration, and F. E. Molin, cattle expert of the Agriculture Department.

Loan for Peanut Growers Planned

Marketing Part Considered to Help Hold Crop.

The Farm Administration is working on a marketing agreement and a loan plan to enable peanut growers to hold their crop for satisfactory prices, according to the Associated Press.

The marketing agreement is taking tentative shape based on proposals advanced by cleaners, shellers and growers at a recent public hearing and on additional provisions being submitted to the Administration.

Tentative provisions include fixing minimum prices for peanuts and setting up a control committee of growers' and buyers' representatives to administer the agreement if put into effect.

Bulk of the peanut crop is grown in Georgia, Alabama, North Carolina, Texas and Virginia.

B. & O. Asks to Merge Line in West Virginia

The Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Co. yesterday asked the Interstate Commerce Commission for permission to consolidate the Coal & Coke Railway Co. with its lines, says the Associated Press.

The railway, a 197-mile line in West Virginia, already is owned and operated by the Baltimore & Ohio.

Mortgagee in Suit Seeks Refinancing

Owner Would Force Home Loan Bond Acceptance.

Suit to compel Lawrence J. Mangan, holder of a first trust on the home of Mrs. Hazel C. Koontz, 3009 Franklin street northeast, to accept bonds of the Home Owners Loan Corporation in the place of his trust, was begun in District Supreme Court yesterday.

Mrs. Koontz charged the Home Owners Corporation had offered to refinance her home at a figure $1,500 higher than the trust held by Mangan. The latter, she said, first agreed to accept the substitute bonds, then declined.

Justice F. D. Letts ordered Mangan to show cause why the substitution should not be made. Suit also was filed in Municipal Court to prevent trial of a case there in which Mangan is attempting to obtain possession of the premises.

25,000 to Be Added To Dixie Work Camps

Population of Civilian Conservation Camps in Southern States will be increased by approximately 25,000 men under the plan of year-round work.

Of 471 winter camps, to be occupied by 97,035 men, 69 will be in Virginia. It is estimated 14,223 men will be put to work in the Virginia camps, building roads, clearing out brush and preparing sites for tree planting.

Truthful Ads Sought in Drive

Better Business Bureau Brings Retail Code Before Public.

First steps in a campaign to acquaint the Washington public with truth in advertising under the retail code were taken yesterday by the Better Business Bureau when a committee was appointed to map out a program of procedure.

The committee is composed of Harold H. Levi, chairman; E. C. Graham, Gerald Grosner, Louis Levay and Frederick F. P. H. Siddons. Their program will be presented at a dinner-meeting of the bureau next month.

The campaign will include a series of advertised messages to merchants and the public, to be published in the newspapers, warning against misleading advertising. A stronger weapon for carrying forward this work, begun by Better Business Bureaus more than 10 years ago, is possible under the trade practices clause of the code, prohibiting retailers from using inaccurate or misleading advertising.

F. G. Addison, chairman of the board of directors of the bureau, declared this provision will put new teeth into the work of Better Business Bureaus.

Gas Rate Appeal Set for February

Three U. S. Judges to Sit at Rosslyn Hearing.

Richmond, Oct. 27 (AP).—Federal District Judge Luther Way today set the hearing of the Rosslyn Gas Works appeal from a State Corporation Commission rate decision for "February 12 or within 30 days thereafter."

The appeal will be heard here before a three-judge Federal statutory court. Circuit Judge Morris A. Soper, Baltimore, will preside. With him will be District Judges W. Calvin Chestnut, Baltimore, and Judge Way.

The gas company is protesting against the rate basis fixed by the commission. This involved the margin of profit made on direct sale to consumers and also the profit made by the corporation owning the Rosslyn works in selling gas to it for resale.

The program has been approved by the county's civic and business clubs.

5 Milk Dealers Cited on Code

Hagerstown Men Insist They Are Not Doing Interstate Business.

(Associated Press.)

Five milk distributors of Hagerstown, Md., charged with violating the Philadelphia milk marketing agreement, yesterday insisted they were not subject to the agreement, because they were not engaged in interstate commerce.

The five appeared before the Agricultural Adjustment Administration on summonses to show cause why their licenses should not be revoked. Hagerstown is in the Philadelphia milk area.

Their counsel said their milk was produced and distributed within Washington County, Md.

"We believe the code does not apply to their business," he said.

Defendants admitted selling milk for 8 cents a quart instead of 11 cents set by the agreement, but said they were paying the producer as much as retailers at 11 cents.

"We contend we have the right to subtract the freight between Hagerstown and Philadelphia from the retail price," was their plea.

The dealers are W. S. Beckley, Charles Eversole, Ross Grove, Abe Martin and Howard E. Shank.

Mixtecan Jewels, New World's Rarest Find, Will Be Shown Here in Pan-American Union

Historic Treasures Link Aztec and Mayan Cultures.

A collection of the rarest archeological jewels unearthed on this hemisphere—and reputed to rival both historically and intrinsically the discoveries in the tomb of King Tut-Ankh-Amen in Egypt—will be exhibited next week in the Pan-American Union.

The priceless Mixtecan jewels are being protected at the Pan-American Union by a detail of Metropolitan Police. Estimates fix their worth at $2,000,000.

The collection was taken from a tomb of Mixtecan warriors on Monte Alban, near Oaxaca in southern Mexico, and is hailed as the connecting link between the Mayan and Aztec civilizations.

The exhibit is composed of thousands of jewels taken from the tomb and includes exquisitely wrought gold work, several crowns of pure gold, 3,000 pearls, jade necklaces, rings of gold and precious stones, engraved vases of gold, and a golden mask described as the most unusual and valuable thing of its kind ever found.

Senor Dr. Daniel F. R. de la Borbella, of the staff of the National Museum of Mexico, said most of the jewels are believed to have been made at a period from 600 to 800 years before the Spanish Conquest.

The collection was found all in one tomb with bodies of 10 Mexican chiefs. Only 35 tombs in the cemetery have been explored and there are 365 vaults which have not been excavated. "These jewels are just a small fraction," he said, "of the number buried in the sepulchre.

The jewels will be on public view until next Friday. The formal opening will be at 4 o'clock Monday.

Stiff competition will mark the 12 classes carded. Nearly 200 horses and ponies will participate and every one of the classes will draw large fields, Bernard Cox, manager, said last night.

Five silver trophies, including two cocktail shaker sets, two trays and a silver loving cup, and a number of cash prizes are at stake.

Samuel Insull now is the subject of a second extradition hearing in Athens, Greece.

Europe Uneasy, McAdoo Says

Senator Found English Better Off Than in Ten Years.

A "feeling of hesitation and lack of confidence" was found throughout Europe by Senator William Gibbs McAdoo, he told President Roosevelt yesterday.

"Due in a measure to the German situation, there seems to be an uneasy feeling in Europe about peace," the Californian said.

"I think there is lack of confidence between the powers of Europe."

Senator McAdoo found England "in the most hopeful frame of mind" of any country he visited.

"The people there seem better off than at any time in the past 10 years," he said. "Business was better there than anywhere."

The Senator repeated previous assertions he could not judge conditions in Russia "because business is the government there, and I was only in Russia three days."

Postal Officials Just "Stumped" On Liquor Ads

Puzzled by Publications Being Mailed Into Dry States.

The position of Postoffice Department officials under the Attorney General's liquor advertising decision yesterday bore the earmarks of a dilemma, as the department maintained deep silence on its intentions.

The Attorney General ruled the Reed amendment forbids mailing of newspapers and other publications containing liquor advertisements into "dry" States. It held specifically that it was the duty of the Postmaster General to pass on mailability of such publications.

This put the job of keeping liquor advertisements out of the mails squarely up to the wet Mr. Farley. But Mr. Farley was attending to certain matters down in Texas.

His unhappy assistants bemused the fact that after handing out the sudden decision, Mr. Cummings also left town.

Pressed for some kind of an announcement of how they intended to enforce the law, they said they would prepare a statement. That was two days ago. Last night the statement still was not ready.

Mr. Farley is due back in town for an hour or two between trains Monday. Mr. Farley is going to New York and is not expected to return until after the New York election, his department said.

At any rate, there was no statement last night, and until the Postmaster General says that liquor advertisements may not go into the mail, liquor-advertising publications remain mailable, despite the law, fortified by the Attorney General's decision, which plainly says they are not.

Cuba Menaced By New Riots

300 Arrested Following Battle in Province.

Havana, Oct. 27 (AP).—President Ramon Grau San Martin and his army commander, Fulgencio Batista, turned their eyes to the east tonight as trouble threatened in Camaguey and Oriente Provinces.

Fighting to end labor disorders and terrorism in Havana and outlying towns, the administration heard alarming reports from Oriente Province and sent Maj. Raimundo Ferrer, President Grau's aid, by airplane to take over command of the garrison.

Fighting between soldiers and Sovietized workmen at the American owned Jaronu sugar mill in Camaguey yesterday and day before resulted in the killing of more than 10 workers, wounding of 16 and arrest of 30.

Those arrested were en route tonight to Havana. They will join in the capital's prisons more than 300 laborers, many of them foreigners, arrested during the three-day drive to halt the threatened general strike voted secretly two nights ago by the National Confederation of Labor, Communist-influenced organization.

Liquor Distilling Trade Code Asked

Plans for Control After Repeal Being Made.

(Associated Press.)

Plans were moving forward yesterday within the Administration for Federal control of the liquor industry. A marketing agreement with distillers is planned between the time of repeal and new legislation.

This agreement already has taken tentative form at conferences between distillers and farm officials.

Officials said the distillers themselves were anxious for some form of Government supervision.

Strict standards for entry into the business of distilling are expected, and the agreement may even prevent new plants on the ground that distilleries in operation have sufficient output to meet the demand.

Farm officials said no decision had been reached, but Secretary Wallace confirmed the report that steps had been taken for control.

Mt. Rainier School Has Party.

Mount Rainier High School students last night gave their annual Halloween dance at the school auditorium. Dorothy Martin, Delores Smith and Dorothy Pfluger were in charge of arrangements.

Fog Foils 4,000,000 As Macon Does Its Stuff

Los Angeles, Oct. 27 (AP).—The Navy's pride of the air, U. S. S. Macon, dirigible, headed back for its Sunnyvale base today after putting on perhaps its best behind-the-curtain show to date.

The curtain was a fog which hid the exhibition flight from view of some 4,000,000 residents of normally sunny southern California.

Illinois Denies Maryland Plea For Jack Hart

Escaped Life Termer Will Serve Sentence in Joliet.

Chicago, Oct. 27 (AP).—State Attorney Thomas J. Courtney wrote the Baltimore prosecutor today he would not return Jack Hart, convicted gunman, to his life cell in Maryland prison.

Courtney said in a letter to State's Attorney Herbert R. O'Connor that Hart must go to Joliet Penitentiary.

He said he advised Maryland authorities that he had written Superintendent Frank D. Whipp of the Joliet prison, notifying him of the desperate character of Hart and suggesting a special watch be kept over him.

He told O'Connor it was up to the Maryland authorities to forward a detainer to Joliet for Hart's arrest upon his release from the Illinois prison. He said this would assure Hart's return to Baltimore upon completion of his sentence.

Nazi Money Strong, Asserts Schacht

Germany Able to Resist Inflation, He Explains.

Berlin, Oct. 27 (AP).—The president of the Reichsbank quoted figures today which, he said, seem "to show a Nazi or Fascist regime is able to handle currency policies less inflationarily than a democratic rule."

Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, the president, spoke at a shareholders' meeting about a bank law reform program to "stimulate the judicious handling of capital" and to give unemployment a death blow.

"At the present time," Dr. Schacht maintained, "when the whole world is raising the cry that Germany is drifting to inflation, statistical figures show that in the United States, France and Belgium the paper circulation is considerably higher than at the end of 1929.

"In Germany and Italy, however, the reverse is true.

"Business under the Nazi regime is showing an unmistakable revival which is organic and not artificial."

1 Killed, 1 Wounded In Breaking Prison

Walla Walla, Wash., Oct. 27 (AP). Four dangerous convicts, making a break from the Washington State Penitentiary here, were halted by a rain of bullets which killed one and critically wounded another.

The three survivors were recaptured.

Pupils Ousted as Nazis.

Graz, Austria, Oct. 27 (AP).—The principal and 11 teachers in the public school at Schladming, Eastern Styria, were ousted as Nazis today.

McKee's Use Of Blue Eagle Arouses Rival

La Guardia Wires Protests Here; Charges Foe Took Fusion Platform.

New York, Oct. 27 (AP).—Fiorello H. LaGuardia today charged Joseph V. McKee with adopting "practically the entire Fusion platform" in laying before the electorate a 21-point program for municipal reform.

LaGuardia, in telegrams to Gen. Hugh S. Johnson and Louis H. Howe, protested that McKee's party was using the symbol of the NRA in campaign leaflets "in a manner unpatriotic, un-American and unlawful."

"In view of the law and policy of the administration," said LaGuardia, "we protest against the use of NRA symbols for outright political purposes."

Scores McKee's Record.

Turning to McKee's record as aldermanic president, LaGuardia asked why McKee had not acted for reform "even after former Gov. Alfred E. Smith * * * pointed the way."

For seven years, he asesrted McKee held high public office and did not "lift a finger" for charter revision or reorganizing of the city's government "which he now advocates."

"The reason for Mr. McKee's inactivity during the seven years of his colorless record is that Edward J. Flynn and John F. Curry would not let him," said LaGuardia.

O'Brien Campaigns Quietly.

The McKee program, pledging destruction of "boss rule," abolition of the board of aldermen and promising to operate the city without any new tax levies, was hailed by his backers as strengthening his campaign.

As LaGuardia and McKee flung charges back and forth, Mayor John P. O'Brien, Tammany candidate, continued to campaign quietly, avoiding conflict with his opponents. Tammany leaders assert the fighting between the two independent candidates would react to Mayor O'Brien's benefit.

Reich Case Against Briton Demanded

England Fights Plan for Writer's Treason Trial.

London, Oct. 27 (U.P.).—A sharp protest was lodged here today against the arrest of Noel D. Panter at Munich. Panter, a British subject, is Munich correspondent of the London Daily Telegraph.

Sir John Simon, foreign secretary, summoned the German Ambassador, Leopold von Hoesch, and bluntly told him Britain would not tolerate a trial of Panter for treason and espionage.

He demanded proof of accusations against Panter growing out of a report Panter wrote on a Nazi demonstration last Sunday, and full protection for the correspondent.

Von Hoesch hurried back to the Germany Embassy to report to Berlin.

15 Trillion in Gold Lost Since Columbus Discovered America

Speaking of gold hoarding, the Bureau of Mines would like to know what has become of $15,000,000,000,000 worth of the precious metal since Columbus discovered America.

Statisticians at the bureau yesterday revealed that 536,563,329 ounces of gold have disappeared from circulation within the last 440 years.

The total gold production up to the end of 1932 is estimated at 1,109,800,000 ounces, but only 407,000,000 ounces can be accounted for.

This lost gold has disappeared in a variety of ways. Some is hidden away in countless graves as ornaments, some is at the bottom of the sea.

The United States ranks third in the production of gold, the Bureau of Mines revealed, South Africa and Canada holding first and second places.

Despite the glamour of the gold discoveries of the early exploration periods of the North American Continent, gold production today is greater. With a world production of 24,000,000 ounces in 1932 and 17,795,000 thus far in 1933, the present decade promises to eclipse all previous records.

On the other hand, experts on gold production believe the peak has been reached, and that present-day gold-mining countries will find their sources reduced before the end of a quarter of a century.

Controversy, but No Action.

A three-cornered fight over the price of steel rails is retarding the program of industrial revival. The parties to the fight are the steel companies as sellers, some—but not all—of the railroads as buyers, and the Government, represented by Mr. Eastman as Coordinator of Railroads.

This is one of those cases where it is not easy to apply any arbitrary standard as to what is a just and proper price. It also is a case where the motive of social reform, properly so dear to the heart of Mr. Eastman, may be unduly delaying economic revival. It is difficult, also, to believe that the program to raise the price level is promoted by breaking down one of the prices, unless it can be shown to be a case of notorious and obvious abuse.

It is understood that orders for 1,000,000 tons of steel rails may be placed if and when the debaters can come to terms. The public interest is being sacrificed while these representatives of Government and industry gratify their taste for controversy.

Waiting upon the settlement of this controversy, iron ore, coal and limestone lie in the ground instead of being mined and quarried. Coke ovens are waiting to be fired. Labor and transportation are idle, waiting to be used. Furnaces and mills are silent, when they should be busy turning out steel rails. There are spikes to be made, angle-bars and tie-plates, frogs, switch points, and other turnout material to be provided. The tie replacement and general track work also are involved.

The season is advancing. Winter will soon be upon us. Social reform and economic revival should have their heads bumped together. The public interest requires action, not controversy. The President could do worse than to take an hour of his busy day to bring this matter to a head.

A Lady and the War.

Writing in Current History for this month, Sidney B. Fay, American historian and investigator of the origins of the World War, brings to light a new factor in the perplexing problem of war guilt. According to Prof. Fay, one trail of responsibility winds its way back, not to a cabal of militarists, but to the heart of a fickle woman. A blighted romance, he says, unknown to the world—a secret locked in the heart of a solitary British official—contributed one fuse to the dynamite of 1914.

The official was Sir Eyre Crowe, one of the influential civil service functionaries of the British government. Sir Eyre had an unfortunate love affair with a German maiden. The maiden promised to marry him and then eloped with an impressively tall, fascinatingly garbed Prussian officer. The embittered Crowe immediately lost faith in German honor.

It was Sir Eyre's lot to read and mark his comments on all dispatches to the foreign office from Germany before they were passed on to Sir Edward Grey, who became Secretary for Foreign Affairs in 1905. According to Fay, Crowe's consistent theming on German dishonesty and ethical askewness, and his morose interpretations of every German move as fraught with the sinister and the dishonorable, developed in Grey a deep distrust of Germany. This in turn hampered Grey in negotiating a satisfactory settlement of such disputes between England and Germany as those relating to the Bagdad Railway, African colonies, and naval rivalry. These problems left unsettled were a considerable factor in the explosion of 1914, says Fay.

Of course, Prof. Fay does not say that a broken heart underlay all. He simply points out its probable influence on the ultimate tragedy.

Historian Van Loon declares that hogs—just hogs—were an agent provacateur of the late struggle. According to Van Loon, when Austria, seeking to curb the growing economic and political power of Serbia, undertook to impose impossible duties on Serbian hogs, Serb patriots, dependent upon the hog industry for a living, singled out the unfortunate Archduke for reprisal.

That a fickle woman and inoffensive swine should have been casus belli makes one wonder what seemingly trivial things may be going on in the world today that tomorrow may influence the trend of world affairs.

Conferring on Leticia.

Delegates from Colombia and Peru are in session in Rio de Janeiro to seek a settlement of the troublesome question of the Leticia corridor on the upper Amazon, which brought the two nations to the brink of war. The conference was opened by Foreign Minister Mello Franco of Brazil at the Itamarity Palace, in the presence of many officials and the diplomatic corps, including American representatives.

The press reports indicate that the parley was inaugurated amid great cordiality and with assurance from Senhor Mello Franco that a peaceful continent looks distastefully upon war, knowing full well that it does not solve definitely international problems. The minister expressed his conviction that the delegates would find a conciliatory formula which would end their differences in the territorial dispute.

The representatives of the interested countries were equally optimistic in their expressions. Foreign Minister Urdaneta, of Colombia, voiced the eagerness of the Bogota government to maintain order on the continent and his confidence that the conference would bring peace. Foreign Minister Maurtua of Peru gave assurance that the Lima administration desired the friendship of Colombia and wished to avoid bloodshed over the Leticia incident.

Latin-America is hopeful that the auspicious opening of the conference at Rio will be followed by a successful outcome, and that this commendable effort at amicable adjustment of international differences may be an example to other belligerent South American countries whose peace negotiations so far have not been successful.

Billions for the Farmer.

Following close upon the administration's plans for reduction of the corn and hog output comes an announcement that the Commodity Credit Corporation will lend 50 cents per bushel on corn in States having farm warehouse acts. Loans will be made contingent upon the signing of contracts in which farmers will agree to reduce their corn acreage 20 per cent and their hog production and marketing 25 per cent. The Government's offer represents about 2½ cents more per bushel than the current price of corn.

Officials of the Farm Credit Administration estimate that farmers owe various agencies of the Government a total of $2,370,000,000. Crop production and seed loans amounting to $123,029,217 are still outstanding.

It is estimated by F. C. A. officials that nearly $1,000,000,000 in Federal credit will be available to farmers this year. The Reconstruction Finance Corporation has set aside $250,000,000 for loans on cotton above the market price. Another large sum will be needed for corn loans. The Commodity Credit Corporation is reported to be working on plans for similar advances to various other agricultural groups.

Loans and price props are only part of the program. Direct benefits are being paid out of the Treasury for acre reduction agreements. Processing taxes have been levied on wheat, cotton, hogs, corn and tobacco for the purpose of raising the necessary funds, but the benefits will be paid regardless of the yield from these taxes. Other levies may be imposed on products that compete with these staples. Direct benefits to farmers under this program during the next two years are estimated at $1,000,000,000.

Gaining on Tuberculosis.

No branch of medical science shows more remarkable results than the persistent and organized campaign against pulmonary tuberculosis. Insurance statistics based upon reports from 59 American cities show that the average death rate from this dread disease last year fell to 56.3 for each 100,000 of population. As late as 1910 the rate was 174.4.

These figures do not represent exceptional years. A tabulation covering 22 years reflects an almost steady decline from year to year, the death rate having dropped below 100 in 1921 and a yearly reduction having been maintained. This speaks eloquently for the efforts of the various agencies engaged in the laudable work of prevention and cure of tuberculosis.

The National Tuberculosis Association was formed 30 years ago, having for its chief purpose the reduction of the tuberculosis death rate on the basis of comprehensive investigations as to causative factors and improvement in the diagnosis and treatment of the disease. Public health policies of the various States have aided greatly, while municipal campaigns have been so effective that, while some of the larger cities virtually have doubled in size, the actual number of deaths from tuberculosis has been reduced 50 per cent.

Washington does not make a very favorable showing among the larger cities in the record of tubercular deaths, ranking thirteenth among those having the highest rates. Its rate for 1932 was 106.4 deaths per 100,000, or nearly double the average for 59 other cities. The highest rate is shown in El Paso, Tex., 201.3, with Little Rock at 154.4, San Antonio 119.5, Sacramento 116.2 and Los Angeles 72.1.

The high death rates in some areas, especially in several cities of the Southwest, are attributed largely to the concentration of tubercular patients in favorable climates and in some cases to the fact that their populations include large numbers of persons particularly susceptible to pulmonary tuberculosis.

Modern Turkey.

On October 29th Turkey will celebrate the tenth anniversary of the founding of the republic. The transformation which has been effected in one decade is considered little short of miraculous by those intimately acquainted with the reforms that have been instituted by the dictator president, Mustapha Kemal. That no other than the Gazi, "unconquered" hero of the Turks, could have so changed the life and habits of the people in so short a time is generally conceded.

The world is about to have an authoritative account of the work of this remarkable man from the pen of Gen. Charles H. Sherrill, who has just returned to the United States after having spent a year at Angora, representing this country as ambassador. Gen. Sherrill has had an exceptional opportunity to secure at first hand from the Turkish president the facts concerning his brilliant career.

The great prestige of Kemal was established throughout Turkey by his leadership of the revolutionary army which swept the Sultan from power, defeated Allied forces in Constantinople, and later administered the disastrous defeat to the Greek army. The world has commented much upon the edicts which banned the wearing of the fes in Turkey and the removal of veils from the women. These were radical changes, but they were largely gestures to awaken the people to the importance of more vital innovations.

Customs dating from the Dark Ages were abolished by executive decree, and twentieth century methods substituted. Women were freed from the harem to become voters. In a period of a month the use of the old Arabic characters was abandoned and Latin characters employed in writing and printing. In a day the entire nation began learning to read the new way. Bands of teachers were sent out, loud speakers were set up in the market places, and Kemal himself visited hundreds of schools encouraging Turks of all ages in their studies.

President Kemal has multiplied many times the expenditures for railroads and general improvements and has undertaken to restore ancient Turkish culture by opening art schools. He ordered the Koran printed in the language of the country and has reduced illiteracy from 90 per cent to less than half that ratio. For four years Turkey has balanced its budget, abolished unemployment, reduced imports and increased exports. Gen. Sherrill reports that Kemal has a splendid army and uses it as an instrument for peace.

As for Kemal himself, Stanley Howe, in the American Spectator, says that he is a man of iron who has never met his equal in reserve power—he can drink all night on occasion, take a horseback ride at daybreak, drive dynamically at his desk until nightfall, then make a good speech at a banquet and not miss a dance after dinner so long as an attractive lady is left on the floor.

Argentina Holds Credits.

To the favorable trade agreement concluded between Great Britain and Argentina last summer there recently has been added a British loan, in exchange for which Buenos Aires banks, holding impounded funds belonging to British subjects, will be permitted to release these credits from transfer restrictions to the extent of the loan. Other nationals now seeking exchange for their frozen credits find the Argentine government has ruled that it will not permit transfers to any nation on more favorable terms than those accorded to Britain.

In other words, money belonging to foreigners can not be sent out of Argentina except in amounts equaling a loan, or in amounts offsetting receipts for Argentine products purchased abroad. The British 4 per cent, 20-year loan amounted to approximately $62,000,000, which will be used for the liquidation of about one-fifth of the nation's unfunded indebtedness. The loan will facilitate release for remittance to England of the major portion of the funds due British-owned enterprises for imports and otherwise.

It is estimated that about $35,000,000 belonging to Americans is now held in Argentine banks. While no such legal restrictions have been promulgated, Americans report that in practice they can secure exchange permits only to the extent of 5 per cent of the available exchange, corresponding to the 5 per cent of Argentina's exports sent to the United States. Present conditions indicate that the greater part of the American funds will have to remain in Argentine banks indefinitely unless an American loan to the government is forthcoming.

Other nations are in a similar quandary regarding the money of their citizens retained in the southern republic. A proposal from Spain offers to purchase 15,000,000 bushels of Argentine corn with Spanish frozen credits. Argentina has corn to spare, but similar attempts to release credits by purchasing exportable Argentine products have been tried by Americans and Germans without success. The policy of the government amounts to a demand that the frozen credits be loaned to the national treasury, to be applied on the country's floating debt.

Opinions on the severity of the cold snap vary according to the age of the topcoat.

Canada's Divided Loyalty.

Duncan McArthur in November Current History.

The most important events in the recent economic history of Canada have been the Ottawa conference and the American national recovery program. Here is illustrated most significantly the division of Canada's economic allegiance between the British imperial system and the American continental system. Other British dominions, although to a less extent than Canada, manifest a similar cleavage of economic interest.

That this situation has, in turn, affected profoundly the policies of Great Britain was made clear at the London economic conference. Pressure exerted by the British dominions, led by Canada, prevented the alignment of Great Britain with the European gold bloc; the influence of Canada was employed to avoid a disintegration of the conference under conditions which would have aggravated the spirit of animosity toward the United States already apparent in Europe.

Similarity of natural environment and similarity of experience through the course of common historical processes have made the peoples of Canada and the United States akin in mental outlook on the problem of recovery from economic depression.

Prime Minister Bennett takes pride in the achievements of the Ottawa conference and in his own contribution in placing the commercial relations of the British empire on a more solid basis and thereby strengthening the unity of the empire. Perhaps the crowning event of his political career will be the negotiation of a treaty of commerce with the United States which will remove many of the barriers preventing a profitable trade between the two neighboring countries. But to harmonize the attractive forces of the American continental system with the counteracting tendencies of the British imperial system, while still preserving intact the foundations of Canadian industry, will tax the ingenuity of any Canadian statesman.

MR. ROCKEFELLER ON LIQUOR ADS.

John D. Rockefeller, jr.'s, commission would ban colorful advertising of liquor after repeal. It would limit all whisky advertising to a simple statement of the brand and price, with no slogans, catch phrases or adjective barrage.

* * * *

Mr. Rockefeller's students of repeal problems fear an advertising orgy that will portray liquor as having all the virtues of a hair polish, a dentifrice, a corn remover, a health builder and the secret of social and business success.

* * * *

Mr. Rockefeller wants no testimonials reading, "For 30 years I couldn't make any headway socially. Then, thanks to a casual friend, I heard about Blotto's Pure Rye, and am now the life of the party at all really elite gatherings."

* * * *

He wants no magazine pictures of beautiful debutantes confessing that they were wall flowers until they heard about Perfection Brandy.

* * * *

All of which has come like a bombshell to the skilled advertising writers

* * * *

"Where does this Rockefeller get a license to tell the country what should be done after prohibition?" asked P. Jervis Fitchwanger, ace advertising writer, today. "The idea of curbing liquor advertising! Why, my man, I have just completed 37 slogans for the whisky trade, the best of which I think is this." Here Mr. Fitchwanger held up a picture of a quart bottle under the inscription, "The Kind Mother Used to Make."

* * * *

He seemed quite proud of it. "Perhaps you like this better," he said, holding up a drawing of a demijohn held in the hand of a beautiful girl, exclaiming, "The gin for fastidious people everywhere."

* * * *

Other whisky slogans of which Mr. Fitchwanger seemed very proud were, "Not a headache in a jugful." "The gin that develops personality plus" and "Why suffer from an inferiority complex when you can drink Red Tiger Rye?"

* * * *

Just Befuddled, That's All.

Kansas City Star.

In response to a question by the National Economic League as to what caused the depression, economists have given a wide range of varied answers. Some agree on one thing, others on another, but altogether there is lacking the harmony of opinion that would make for clear understanding and definite remedies. It is understood all around, however, that the economic conditions, the political conditions and a few others were all out of joint, probably being due to the one fundamental that humanity has not yet reached the stage of perfection.

GERHART HAUPTMANN.

The foremost living German writer. Dramatist, novelist, poet. He celebrated his seventieth birthday in 1932 by composing a long drama called "Before Sunset" corresponding to his first drama in 1889, called "Before Sunrise." This play of 1932 showed an old man trying to live with a young girl, with the usual success. Some 40 years ago, Hauptmann attained a world-wide reputation by his plays, "Lonely Lives," "The Weavers," "The Sunken Bell," "Hannele," all of which have been played in the chief modern languages.

In the autumn of 1911, in the Hotel Adlon in Berlin, I stepped out of the elevator directly into the arms of Herr Hauptmann, who was attempting to enter it. I recognized him by his pictures, and he graciously granted me an interview the next day. I think he knows English, but we conversed only in German. When his little son came up, however, he asked me to address the boy, about 10 years old, in English; and the boy replied without a trace of foreign accent.

I asked Hauptmann which of his plays he liked the best, and without hesitation he replied "And Pippa Dances." I asked him if he gave his own opinions in his dramas; he said "No, not my opinions; but any one who reads four or five of my plays ought to know easily enough what kind of a man I am." He said the true artist must never write to please the public or for financial success; he must write only to express what is really in his mind. He impressed me as absolutely sincere, and he was certainly unaffected and simple and gracious. I asked him to write his name in one of his books that I had with me and he wrote his name and the sentiment "Art is Religion."

Another Letter From a Bald-Headed Dad to His Red-Headed Daughter

By Robert Quillen.

My dear Louise:

For the first time in your life you are on your own. You have been away from home on short visits, and you have been without guidance here at home while we were away; but leaving home to attend school gives you a degree of responsibility that is new in your experience.

As the old-timers used to say, life is holding your feet to the fire for the first time—and now I shall learn what stuff you are made of.

The two greatest tests of character are prosperity and liberty, and we never know how we shall survive either until we try it.

Of course you haven't complete liberty. Perhaps you think the rules give you very little. But those rules are a part of the game and your reaction to them is the test.

You can't get away from rules—ever. They are necessary restrictions, suggested by experience, and every game you play will have them.

They are so necessary, in fact, that it becomes a point of honor to obey them and a violation of good sportsmanship to break them.

Anybody could win by breaking the rules of honesty or the rules of tennis or bridge, but breaking rules is cheating and the cheat is the lowest form of animal life.

I don't mean that your character will be ruined if you break one of the rules in school. Many a fine youngster does it. But there are different ways to break rules and the method determines the harm.

To break a rule openly and boldly, with your chin up and your conscience clear, is merly a mild adventure. It leaves your self-respect still clicking.

But if you sneak—oh, my dear, there is nothing more shameful under heaven. It makes you an inferior, cringing from a master.

Pride and honor and a clear conscience never sneak. Why should they? Sneaking is the role of the fearful, the guilty, the low. It does something to your soul. You simply can't sneak and keep your self-respect unscarred.

There are innumerable thousands who sneak to break the rules of society and not one in the lot can look the world in the face with the calm assurance that rewards a clear conscience and the pride of decency.

I have no great awe of rules. Some of them are silly. But, if you must break a rule, bust it wide open in broad daylight. Don't let a foolish little rule make a sneak of you.

Love, DAD.

Dealing With Farm Strike.

Brooklyn Eagle.

The farm strike that started on Sunday lost some of its initial impetus when new Federal measures intended to improve farm prices were announced. The effort to start a farm strike on anything like a Nation-wide scale has yet to become formidable. It has made more than one abortive start before now.

There are two ways of dealing with moves to call the farmers of the country out on strike. One is to do everything possible to make farmers feel that the Federal Government is on their side and helping them all it can. The other is to draw the line somewhere and see such a strike through in case it occurs.

Without question the more amiable method has met with success thus far.

Except as an interested spectator America is not concerned with international squabbles, jealousies and contentions among the Europeans. Their bickerings are their own affair, and in the merits of this or that cause we have only an academic interest, unless troubles threaten to boil over and affect us. So far this year they have not, and the whole effort of Washington, as officially set forth, is to steer a course which will not incite in them a tendency to do so. Today the United States is friendly with all parties to the prevalent row across seas, and while we may have our own opinions about the way some of the participants are behaving, and be chagrined because of the hopeless upset and termination of a great peace endeavor, as a nation we sit carefully on the sidelines.

Carlisle Bargeron

THE ultimate aim of the Tennessee Valley Authority, or what we have come to call the "long pull," is to give the world the greatest race of steel workers and dam builders that is has ever known. The developing of the valley is only incidental to this higher purpose. In fact, any other project might as well have been selected, but the climate of the valley lends itself to work the year-round, and also there was the question of appeasing Senator Norris.

BARGERON.

So while these two very practical matters entered into the decision to experiment with these men on Muscle Shoals, it must not be thought for one minute that the work is the main thing. It is only the vehicle, so to speak.

* * * *

AND while we are thinking of the "long pull," I should like to point out that there is a very important purpose in the insinuating of this term into our vocabulary. It only recently crept up on us, you know, but most of us have adopted it in natural stride without stopping to consider where it came from and how it got with us.

It came from the administration psychologists, and with a very definite purpose. Some people were fretting that the revolution was moving rather slowly; that the promised redistribution of wealth was not taking place—in brief, that the millenium seemed reluctant to our bidding. Notwithstanding the administration's disclaimer of being able to effect miracles, something in the nature of them was expected.

It was necessary to shift the psychology, to get the people's minds from impatience to a slow determination. The term "long pull" was the result.

* * * *

YOU can readily see how the thing works. The population, keyed up for a while to a pitch of expectancy has now adopted the slow and sacrificial philosophy which is a corollary of the "long pull." Without our recognizing it, this term has given us the sturdiness and the determination to keep our faces uplifted and to the front, to move along slowly as an army moves against the enemy, but always with the conviction that it is forward we are moving.

But to get back to the long pull purpose of the Tennessee Valley project, one can only regret he likely will not live to see the outcome. Not in my time or yours, I am afraid, but our grandchildren stopping to watch the steel workers engaged high above the streets will have a delightful sight.

Apollos, all of them, the steelnicians will be, moving with the precision and rhythm of body that really will be a treat. There will be poetry in the way in which they toss the flaming steel bolts back and forth and their language will be the philosophic meditations of Plato and Aristotle. Manifestly, the resultant structure will be a symphony of art that is good in man, a beauty that comes with such cultural attainments as they will have.

THE noonday luncheon recess, my friends, will be an intellectual forum worth coming many miles to get in on. Perfect bodies and perfect minds, discussing their work in the language of the classics, speaking of a rivet with the caress of a woman and putting a song into every beam.

The dam builders, now contemplate them as they work out over the stream in that happy contentment that comes from a good book one has just put down, the harnessed waters swishing lyrically about them. No more will there be the rough language which a man doing rough work uses to express his emotions of elation and despair. A workman striking his thumb with a hammer instead of yelling an unprintable epithet will exclaim in Latin or Greek.

* * * *

FOR a long time, or at least since the Harding regime, we have boasted to Europe that our workers were the most efficient and the highest paid. Wait until the Tennessee Valley Authority has accomplished its purpose and we present to the world our trained seals.

Just Folks.

Old Age.

I used to think that growing old was reckoned just in years,
But who can name the very date
when weariness appears?
I find no stated time when man, obedient to a law,
Must settle in an easy chair and from the world withdraw.
Old Age is rather curious, or so it seems to me.
I know old men at forty and young men at seventy-three.

I'm done with counting life by years or temples turning gray.
No man is old who wakes with joy to greet another day.
What if the body cannot dance with youth's elastic spring?
There's many a vibrant interest to which the mind can cling.
'Tis in the spirit Age must dwell, or this would never be;
I know old men at forty and young
men at seventy-three.

So much to do, so much to learn, so much in which to share!
With twinkling eyes and minds alert
some brave both time and care.
And this I've learned from other men, that only they are old
Who think with something that has passed the tale of life is told.
For Age is not alone of time, or we should never see
Men old and bent at forty and men young at seventy-three.

London Moves Toward New Tokyo Alliance

Roosevelt Negotiations to Recognize Soviet Are Among Causes.

London, Oct. 27 (U.P.).—President Roosevelt's opening of recognition negotiations with Soviet Russia was regarded in diplomatic circles today as responsible for signs of renewal of the Anglo-Japanese alliance.

Observers pointed out that the alliance was allowed to expire in 1922 as an amicable British gesture to the United States. At that time the United States was engaged in promoting arms control, particularly through the Washington Naval Conference.

Three developments now, however, have been noticed since Mr. Roosevelt advised Moscow of his willingness to receive an emissary to discuss recognition in Washington.

Tokyo Grows Moderate.

Japan's acceptance of an annual quota on Japanese cotton goods imports into India.

A more moderate tone in Tokyo toward Moscow.

Intimations in the British Admiralty favoring a revival of the alliance with Japan.

The Japanese government hitherto has branded Soviet Russia as a menace. A dispatch in the morning post today from Tokyo, regarded here as an "inspired message," said:

"Neither Russia nor Japan desires a serious crisis in their relations at present."

Better Feeling Sought.

A Tokyo dispatch in the London Times said that the Japanese leaders are planning to improve their relations with the United States, Russia and China.

It is generally known that a powerful section of the British admiralty as well as some leading Conservatives wish to revive the British alliance with Japan, but so far have been unable to overcome the stronger pro-United States influences.

$30,000,000 Asked For Sea Airports

Public hearing on a comprehensive plan to establish landing stations for airplanes at six different points on the Atlantic Ocean between Europe and the United States will be held at 10 o'clock this morning before the Technical Board of Review of the Public Works Administration.

The project was proposed by the Seadrome Ocean Dock, a corporation of Wilmington, Del.

The proposal was accompanied by a request for $30,000,000 from the PWA to construct the landing stages.

Mr. Morgenthau's Stock Ticker

Government Financial Wizards Attend It as an Oracle

By William Harlan Hale.

No, I have never seen it. But I know it is there. It is one of those suavely clacking machines spewing forth a paper ribbon endlessly, in the way a spider spins the thread of his web. The only difference is that no spider's web could get as tangled up as the web spun by a stock-ticker . . .

It stands there in the office of Henry Morgenthau, jr., the farm credit man. But by now Mr. Morgenthau's interests have far transcended mere agriculture. He is concerned with the very core of our Nation's structure, for he is a member of that small and exalted group that has formulated the new monetary policy.

He is, so I understand, the current favorite at court, together with Prof. Warren, late ornament of Cornell University.

There is no reason why Mr. Morgenthau should not have a ticker in his office. Only a hysterical radical would think that its presence there symbolized any direct connection between Mr. Morgenthau and Wall street. Nonsense! Not only is there no direct connection, but there seems to be a direct opposition.

But I gather that Mr. Morgenthau gets a lot of use out of his own private ticker. His office seems to have become a meeting-place for the wizards of the new money policy. Between purchases of train-loads of gold they foregather there in a close circle around the mysterious instrument. Coming over from their offices after another epochal decision, they draw up their chairs around the noisy little robot and see how it reacts.

Can't you imagine what fun it must be? First you announce a move that you know is going to affect the financial markets one way or the other—only you are not quite sure which way. Then you quickly grab your hat and dash up into Mr. Morgenthau's rooms just in time to watch the street begin to get in commotion. Ah! An upward trend on the exchange! Dollar beginning to decline on the world market!

Next day you repeat the move you made before, grab your hat again, and dash into Mr. Morgenthau's door just in time to see the machine begin to sputter more changes. Ah! A downward trend on the exchange! Dollar beginning to rise on the world market!

Almost every day you get a different result. There's no telling what it may be, until you actually get in front of the machine. Economic laws may look as though they were temporarily suspended, but that need not worry you because the ticker will reveal new sequences of cause and effect almost by the hour. It is a very modern and sophisticated variety of crystal-gazing that you engage in. And, if it does contain some magic and unaccountable elements, it is not after all as reprehensible as astrology.

I am a very naive fellow, with little understanding of the quantitative theory of money, the qualitative theory (there is one, isn't there?), the mechanics of inflation, deflation, and reflation, and of the mental processes of monetary experts in general.

But I could go a very long way if I could just be given a free hand with the Nation's finances, and a ticker at my elbow. I would toss all the books of theory out of the window, and simply start experimenting. And if I kept at it long enough, as a ticker tape covered my floor several feet deep, I'd be sure to get a result that would be so good we could simply close down the Treasury Department as a superfluous institution.

3 New Materials Discovered In Petroleum by 6-Year Study

Scientist With Bureau of Standards Tells of Long Work.

Ordinary oil, whose by-products contribute motive power and lubrication to the automobile, bothers scientists today because despite its widespread use, they do not know what it really is.

It took a Washington scientist, Dr. Edward W. Washburn, chief chemist of the Bureau of Standards, to offer real clews to the mystery.

According to his report issued yesterday, crude petroleum contains three new materials which he said never before had been reported. Just stop at the next filling station you see and ask them. They are dimenthyl-cyclopentane, methyheptane and hemmimellitene.

Considered Important.

He said this information would be of great value to the oil industry, explaining it held the secret of knockless gasoline, and would explain why oil is sli[ck].

Washburn's staff of five men went to plenty of trouble in establishing their conclusions. But he reported progress as he spoke before the American Petroleum Institute.

Most investigators to date have used simple distillation in studying oil, and the evidence for the existence of most elements in oil has been inadequate.

Study Took Six Years.

That oil study was not simple is evidenced by the fact that the problem of oil has been given a special name, "Fundamental Research Project, No. 6," on the Oil Institute's program.

After six years of research with operators on a 24-hour schedule, in the laboratories in the Bureau of Standards with the aid of the Oil Institute, Washburn predicts that when the true composition of petroleum is known, many products now made from petroleum, including the commercially important benzene and tuluene, "may well be obtained from petroleum."

An interesting future development of the work on lubrication will be the possibility of being able to determine the properties of individual constituents, alone and mixed, to improve knowledge of what constitutes a good lubricant.

Insull Decision Delay Extended

Satisfy Justice, Not U. S., Is Prosecutor's Plea to Greek Jury.

Athens, Oct. 27 (A.P.).—Samuel Insull heard his case adjourned today until 5 p. m. Tuesday, instead of Saturday, when a decision had been expected.

The prosecutor said Insull should be returned to Chicago, not to satisfy America, but to satisfy justice, and denied that the former Chicago utilities magnate is wanted in the United States for political reasons.

While listening to speeches in a language he could not understand, Insull frequently questioned a lawyer when he heard his name mentioned.

Forest Harness, of the United States Attorney General's office, was refused permission to be examined as a witness.

The prosecutor emphasized that the question of extradition must be decided here regardless of the outcome of the case in the United States.

"Window Washer" Sacks Home.

A man who posed as a window washer yesterday ransacked the apartment of William G. Boden, 1422 Clifton street northwest, and escaped with a diamond ring valued at $100, he reported to police.

Gen. Lytle Brown Gets Dern's Praise for Work

A letter of appreciation from Secretary of War Dern to Brig. Gen. Lytle Brown, who was transferred from his post as chief of Engineers to the Panama Canal Zone, was made public at the War Department yesterday.

Secretary Dern stressed the importance of the work directed by Gen. Brown and said much of the success of the work was attributable to his efforts.

Sarraut, Aids Try to Balance French Budget

New Ministry Striving to Reconcile Senate Chamber Views.

Paris, Oct. 27 (A.P.).—Only a few hours old, Premier Albert Sarraut's ministry of "convalescence" plunged today into the task of balancing the French budget.

Finance Minister Georges Bonnet, "guardian of the franc," and Abel Gardey, new budget minister, studied prospects of bringing finances into equilibrium, from the viewpoints of both Senate and Chamber or Deputies.

M. Gardey, influential member of the Senate, has been urging financial restoration for months, and is expected to develop plans to satisfy the Senate, while M. Bonnet will reflect the Chamber's attitude.

Sarraut, who early today named a new cabinet to succeed that of Edouard Daladier, wants a fully balanced budget, but insists the bill must be satisfactory to both houses.

He took his cue from the ill fortune Daladier's government suffered at the hands of the Chamber when it denied him a vote of confidence on a taxation and economy program designed to get France's ledgers balanced.

M. Sarraut brought to them "new, even novel," financial ideas, his advisers said, and a conviction that "almost anything can be done if necessary."

It was generally believed that former Premier Edouard Herriot would have taken the foreign affairs portfolio—given again to the veteran Joseph Paul Boncour—if Herriot had not been ill.

Sarraut's cabinet will make its first appearance before the Chamber on November 3 to ask a vote of confidence.

$386,655 Taxes Abated By U. S. on 4 Estates

Overassessment of $386,655 in taxes on four estates was announced yesterday by Guy T. Helvering, Commissioner of Internal Revenue.

The bureau ordered the following abatement on estates: $48,939, Hans Dierks, Kansas City; $273,494, George F. Getty, Los Angeles; refund of $32,313 and abatement of $722, John E. Pilcher, St. Louis; $31,185, Orlando A. Jones, handled by Chase National Bank of New York.

Hull Will Delay Trip to Meet Litvinoff Here

Start for Montevideo Is Postponed Until November 11.

When Soviet Foreign Commissar Maxim Litvinoff arrives in Washington, probably a week from Monday, he will be able to renew the acquaintance begun last summer in London with Secretary Hull.

Hull announced yesterday he would not start for Montevideo until November 11 and that he would proceed to the scene of the Pan-American conference direct, leaving his projected visits along the west coast of South America until his return trip.

Also, should Litvinoff be interested, which he presumably is not, he probably would be able to see Sir Frederick Leith-Ross, chief British war-debt negotiator, while in Washington.

Rumor Is Denied.

Rumors that Sir Frederick and his colleagues were dissatisfied with slow progress in the negotiations and were planning to leave for London were denied at the British Embassy yesterday afternoon where it was stated the discussions with the Treasury were to continue.

A number of important matters were said to have contributed to Hull's decision to postpone his departure. Unquestionably Litvinoff's imminent arrival is one of the more important ones. The debts question may be assumed to have played a part.

Upon the final make-up of the delegation to accompany Hull to Montevideo, the Secretary referred questioners to the President and the President sent them back to the Secretary. There exists a possibility that one of the members of the party may be a woman.

Faces Difficulties.

Hitherto it has been assumed that Hull would be supported by Jefferson Caffrey, Assistant Secretary of State; Butler Wright, Minister to Uruguay; J. Reuben Clark, former Ambassador to Mexico, and Spruille Braden, New York copper man.

The American delegation, whatever its final make-up, will be up against virtually the same difficulties faced at London last summer. Reciprocal tariff agreements and ways and means of stimulating trade are bound to be uppermost in the minds of many attendng the conference.

Bishop Lauds Post Religious Articles

Dr. Freeman Asserts Ellis Feature Aids Teachers.

Commenting on the W. T. Ellis feature that is appearing each Saturday on this page in The Washington Post, the Right Rev. James E. Freeman, Bishop of Washington, said:

"The weekly articles by Dr. William T. Ellis in the form of commentaries on the international Sunday school lessons, which appear on the church page of The Post, should be of interest to all engaged in teaching Sunday school classes. Dr. Ellis writes with a human touch and from a wide knowledge of Biblical subjects.

"One of the younger laymen in Washington who is conducting a Bible class recently told me he always reads these articles as part of his Saturday preparation and that they have helped him answer questions which are asked by members of the class."

In connection with this statement, Bishop Freeman expressed his appreciation of all that The Post is doing to give publicity to significant activities of religious interest in the Capital of the Nation.

How to Keep Well

By Dr. W. A. Evans.

That Shoulder Pain.

Pain in the shoulder, with pains radiating down the arms, is one of the most frequent disorders. In many cases tingling and numbness in the fingers is added to this symptom. In the old days it was customary to dub this combination of disagreeable sensations with the same neuralgia of the arms and shoulders. As we grew more learned, we abandoned the use of the word neuralgia to the old-fashioned folk and in our parlance neuritis was the word employed. Probably the latter term was no better than the former and in any event it called attention to an effect rather than a cause. It has been suggested that the term be changed to bursitis.

The shoulder is a very important joint. It has much work to do. Not infrequently it is subjected to great strain. It has a far greater range of motion than is the case with the hip joint, the corresponding joint in the leg, and in certain emergencies the greatest strain falls on the joint when the bones are in unusual positions. Important blood and lymph vessels, nerves, ligaments, and tendons are closely packed together as they run over hard, bony surfaces. Many ligaments in the vicinity are anchored to bones—a necessary but not an ideal arrangement. In order to protect these tendons and ligaments where they glide over bone, certain pads, called bursa, are provided. There are several of these around the shoulder.

One of the duties of a bursa is to take the blows that life brings, suffering themselves that the bones and their coverings, the joints and the tendons and ligaments may escape. In consequence of their vulnerability, including their location, bursitis of the shoulder region as the result of trauma is very frequent.

In the 1932 congress of physical therapy Dr. M. Weisblum gave it as his opinion that much the greater part of the shoulder trouble encountered in practice was bursitis. The pain down the arm and the numbness and tingling in the fingers resulted from pressure of the enlarged bursa on the nerves.

When there are pains in the arms of the kind commonly known as neuritis or neuralgia the shoulder region should be examined. Heat, light, electricity and other physical therapy applied there will help more than if given in the arm and hand.

Shingles.

W. P. F. writes:

1. What brings on shingles?

2. Is it a contagious disease? I have been suffering for the last six weeks with pains through the left side of my face and head, my nose being the parting line. I was told it was shingles, and was advised to use an ointment, which I have done, but I still am troubled all the time with very sharp pains in my head and face and find sleeping at night almost impossible.

3. Can you advise me what is best to do to relieve the pains so that I can sleep?

4. How long does it take for a case of shingles to heal?

REPLY.

1. It is due to an infection of nerve roots with a virus or a microbe.

2. No.

3. The pain of herpes is apt to be considerable. It is often controllable by the internal use of the salicylate preparations.

4. Most cases of shingles are cured in less than a month. In many, the neuralgia, and in some, the eruption, holds on for months.

Making Up for Your Mistakes.

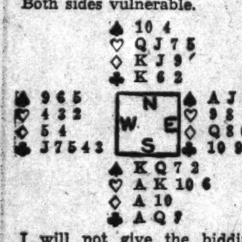
Even the experts are not perfect. Quite frequently in their striving for maximum results, they arrive at distinctly bad contracts. On the hand below, played in the recent Individual Masters' Tournament, Messrs. Oswald Jacoby and Howard Schenken, playing at different tables in an effort to score as many points as possible arrived at six no-trump. A glance at the two hands will show that six hearts is an absolute lay-down, and this contract should and can be reached by simple Approach bidding.

North, Dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.



I will not give the bidding at either table, as it was distinctly bad in both instances. At one table, Mr. Jacoby, sitting North, was the final Declarer at six notrump, and at the other Mr. Schenken, sitting South, was Declarer. Both made their contracts by very fine play and tied for top score on the board.

Mr. Jacoby, sitting North, received the Ten or clubs opening, which he won in Dummy, and proceeded to play three rounds of hearts, ending in his own hand. On the third heart he got a low diamond discard from East, and, knowing the East player very well, immediately marked him with the Queen of diamonds. Therefore he now led a low card of that suit, finessing the Ten-spot in Dummy. This held, but Mr. Jacoby now saw that he did not have two more safe cards of reentry to lead twice up to the King and Queen of spades and at the same time cash the third diamond in his hand. He returned to his hand with another heart and led a low spade, East quite properly playing small. The Ace of diamonds was now played, followed by two rounds of clubs, ending in the North hand. East had to discard on the third club, and was forced to blank either his Ace of spades or his Queen of diamonds. He chose to throw a low spade, and Mr. Jacoby then led a spade, East was forced to win and lead a diamond up to Mr. Jacoby's tenace.

Mr. Schenken, sitting South, also fulfilled his contract, but by a different line of play. Instead of guessing the diamond finesse and following with the end play as Mr. Jacoby did, he found a very fine squeeze on the East hand. He, like Mr. Jacoby, also received a club opening, which he won in his own hand, and, to Dummy with the Queen of hearts, immediately led a spade. East quite properly ducked this lead, the Queen winning. Three more rounds of hearts were followed by another spade lead up to the King, and this time East won with the Ace, returning the Knave of that suit. Three rounds of clubs gave East the usual difficulties. He had to keep the high spade and had to keep two guards for his Queen of diamonds. Rather than give up immediately, he threw another low diamond, deciding to give Declarer the guess. Mr. Schenken, however, had a perfect count on the hand by this time, and went up with his King of diamonds on the second round, dropping East's Queen, and winning the last trick with the Knave.

Although six notrump was made in both instances by very fine play, my advice to Contract players is on hands similar to the above to get to the correct and simpler contract of six hearts, which can be made without any complicated squeezes, end plays, or finesses.

'Personal Liberty' Seen Ended

As Churches and Sabbath Schools Plan Observance of World's Temperance Sunday, Liquor Issue Has Fresh Aspects, Ellis Says.

By William T. Ellis.

All over this wide earth, millions of persons are recognizing World's Temperance Sunday. The anniversary is one of the permanent achievements of the long and patient movement for total abstinence from intoxicants. Strong drink has become a world-wide issue. Today the "temperance question" is anew a public question, receiving more attention from the printed page and spoken word than ever before in history. No other subject is being more vigorously debated.

Here arises a paradox. Abroad, in the lands traditionally devoted to strong drink, the use of alcohol is steadily diminishing. In Great Britain, Germany and France, statistics show a tremendous decrease in the drinking habit, to the alarm of distillers, brewers and vintners.

At the same time, in the United States, prohibition has suffered an overwhelming defeat. From the signs that dot the highways and communities, one might suppose that "beer" is the most important word in the language. Emboldened by the defeat of prohibition, liquor forces, disregarding all of their previous professions, openly plan for the return of the discredited saloon.

Issue Found World-Wide.

As millions of members of Sunday schools turn anew to a consideration of this subject, on the basis of the Bible's teaching, we should first of all stress significance of the fact that the issue is a world-wide one. The overthrow of prohibition in the United States has not made liquor any the less a problem. All the world is grappling with it, in one way or another. Even in Moslem lands the drink issue has arisen, to concern public-minded persons.

One hopeful sign is that people generally nowadays are being forced to do their thinking in large units. The rise of Communism and Fascism and new forms of nationalism, like the NRA, simply has compelled the indifferent masses to give serious heed to things in the large. The depression has tremendously accentuated this.

All over the world, men and women who have not been accustimed to do any serious thinking outside of personal and neighborhood affairs have been stirred to real thought concerning big themes. The welfare of society as a whole has rather suddenly become the issue transcending all other issues.

Inevitably, this means that, in larger measure than ever before, the temperance question will get consideration in its world-wide social aspects. So the annual World's Temperance Sunday this year comes more opportunely than ever before.

Old Theme in New Arguments.

Because mankind is awaking to the whole world in which it lives, an entire brood of new arguments arise in the discussion of temperance. One of the claims of the wets has been prohibition was a cause of the depression. But even the most casual reader of newspapers knows the depression has been worse in the lands where liquor is legally sold than it has been here.

"Personal liberty" is a slogan that has been worn to a frazzle. Now it is as plain as a pikestaff that the old conception of personal liberty is, perforce, dying a rapid death all around the globe. The bonds that bind men together have so increased and tightened that today the welfare of the state and of the entire social order has taken precedence of individual rights. The restraints and prohibition of the NRA, for example, make the liquor prohibition laws seem rather mild.

New considerations of public health and common well-being are being given right of way over old-fashioned individualism. Germany, with its drastic law for the sterilization of the socially unfit, has crystallized a world-wide sentiment. Social legislation has marched to the fore everywhere.

If liquor hurts human bodies and minds and impairs human efficiency it simply can not stand up in the new day. Once upon a time, when the drunkard reeled home on his own feet he was a problem principally for his own family. Nowadays, however, when he travels in a high-powered automobile, the law takes cognizance of him.

As usual, this rare genius, the Apostle Paul, with his penetrating brain and his consecrated conscience, penetrates to the core of the whole question of personal indulgence, which, of course, is the heart of the liquor issue. He saw that it all roots in religion. The Christian man lives by a higher law than that of self-pleasing. Paul gave the NRA its charter when he wrote, "None of us liveth to himself, and none dieth to himself." Again he wrote, in a succinct statement of the purpose of the death of the Redeemer, "He died for all, that they which live should no longer live unto themselves."

Christ Remedy for Everything.

Paul's comprehensive remedy for everything was—Christ. In this whole business of appetite and personal habits he prescribed "Put ye on the Lord Christ." Live by His motives for His ends. Share His life, even in its vicariousness. If the Christ spirit contravenes any habit, then away with the habit. "Destroy not with thy meat him for whom Christ died."

Let it be granted that the major motive for total abstinence is the Christian motive. It is the practice of Christ's own concern for the well-being of humanity. And Christ died that even the least of mortals might live, in new, clean, joyous lives.

There is a parallel in the figure of the great Boulder Dam, now being built on the Colorado River. It will impound more water than any other dam in existence, creating an almost incredible new source of power and fertility. This vast power is equal to, and will be applied to, vast enterprises; but it is not too great for the smallest individual needs.

So it is with the Power of Christ. It can make over the whole social order; and it can transform into clean unselfishness the individual drunkard. It can set up a whole new conception of life for nations; and it can make over the thoughtless person's spirit of petty self-indulgence into the fine altruism of the Christian gentleman and lady. As Boulder Dam and Muscle Shoals promise a new order of life for great stretches of territory, so the Spirit of Jesus is our only hope for a voluntarily sober, selfless world.

"Punishment," Lesson Of Christian Science.

"Everlasting Punishment" is the subject of the lesson-sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, tomorrow. The golden text is from II Peter 2:9: "The Lord knoweth how to deliver the godly out of temptations, and to reserve the unjust unto the day of judgment to be punished."

Among the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible:

"Ye lust and have not; ye kill, and desire to have, and can not obtain; ye fight and war, yet ye have not, because ye ask not. Draw nigh to God, and he will draw nigh to you. Cleanse your hands, ye sinners; and purify your hearts, ye double-minded. Humble yourselves in the sight of the Lord, and he shall lift you up." James iv:2-8-10.)

The lesson-sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science text book, "Science and Health With Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy:

"We acknowledge God's forgiveness of sin in the destruction of sin and the spiritual understanding that casts out evil as unreal. But the belief in sin is punished so long as the belief lasts." (Page 497.)

Radio Waves and Ripples

WE went over to the Earle Building yesterday to have a look at WJSV's new floating studios.

They aren't particularly impressive unless you talk to Mr. Johnson, who has made floating studios his life work. We haven't any data on who first thought of studios as floating, but Mr. Johnson's zest for the phrase merely goes to show what imaginations these men really have. Actually, of course, the whole business, if shoved off the point at Hains Point, would sink without a moment's warning. But to Mr. Johnson the studios float, and after listening to him a short while we began to see where he is right, in a sense.

Each studio—there are two, one big enough to take care of a 40-piece band—is like a box within a box, detached from the firmer, more vibrant parts of the building by several tons of wool and goat hair. We weren't able to find anyone who could tell us exactly how much wool and goat hair has been used, and in what proportions, so we let it go at Mr. Johnson's "two or three" estimate.

Wrapping studios in wool and hair is what men like Mr. Johnson mean by floating. Everything in the WJSV studios floats except the door frames. Mr. Johnson said that these might have been floated, too, but WJSV thought the extra expense a little unnecessary.

As they are now, the studios are probably as sound proof as anything in the country. And as for the acoustics, well, you should ask Mr. Johnson to shut the door and clap his hands to appreciate that.

There's one item the WJSV minds made certain no one overlooked—"studio in use" lights over studio doors. That's to keep visitors from walking right in during a network broadcast, as they often did in the Shoreham Building, which WJSV starts leaving today.

R. C. A. goes to the mat with the Federal Radio Commission Wednesday to block assignment of WPRO, Providence, to WMAL's air channel at 250 watts. WPRO is now operating at 1210 kilocycles, 100 watts. The commission granted the Providence application, WMAL appealed. The minds are afraid WPRO interference will cut down their broadcast area, hurt business.

WMAL wanted to be mysterious about the male lead for a new play series it is opening at 5:45 tonight.

The direction is in charge of Mrs. Wilmer Flood. The male lead is Mr. Flood.

The minds thought that looked as though they were encouraging nepotism.

Around the WOL studios, completion of the A. B. S. sale before Monday is predicted. If the deal goes through, the minds say the former Wynn chain will be bigger financially than C. B. S. or National. Sale value of the network is believed to be boosted by membership of the only available stations in Washington and Baltimore, important broadcast points.

Group Hospital Plan Defended

Himes Denies Move Will Hit Private Practice of Physicians.

Washington's program on group hospitalization will not conflict with the practice of private physicians, Joseph H. Himes said yesterday in reply to charges made Wednesday night before the District Medical Society. Mr. Himes is president of Columbia Hospital and a member of the board of incorporators which will establish an organization to administer group hospitalization.

Dr. Seth A. Brumm, Philadelphia, criticized this and similar contract plans in an address to the medical society.

"It is our purpose to maintain the highest ideals and ethics of the medical profession," he said. "It is not contemplated to provide a contract between a patient and a doctor, but between a patient and the hospital."

Woman in Gold Hoarding Freed

Case Dismissed on Return of Metal to Trade.

Fresno, Calif., Oct. 27 (AP).—United States Commissioner Samuel F. Collins today dismissed charges of gold hoarding against Mrs. Effie L. Martin, accused of withholding $85,000 in gold and gold certificates.

"After conferring with the Attorney General in Washington and United States Attorneys Pierson Hall and H. H. Powell, assistant United States attorney, moving for dismissal.

Judge Rules 3 May Ride Here On 1 Auto Seat

No Law Against It, Court Finds in Emergency Control Charge.

Three p[illegible]s riding in the front seat of an automobile does not constitute a violation of District traffic law, Judge Ralph Given ruled in Traffic Court yesterday.

In dismissing charges of "no emergency control" against Julius R. Earl, of 2013 Allen place northwest, who was accompanied in the front seat of his automobile by his wife and sister, Given said:

"There is no law which states only a certain number of persons may ride in the front seat of an automobile."

The question arose when Earl was stopped on M street northwest by Policeman J. H. Dellinger, who charged him with "no emergency control" when he found three persons riding in the front seat. The policeman observed also the rear light on his car was not burning. Judge Given took Earl's personal bond on that charge.

Earl testified his wife and sister were small and did not take up much room.

Post Sleeps in Auto To Escape Publicity

San Antonio, Tex., Oct. 27 (AP). Wiley Post, aviator, who holds the globe-girdling record of five and a half days, arrived in San Antonio today en route to Mexico.

The famous flyer slept in his automobile in a garage in an effort to dodge publicity by registering at a hotel. He said he was going on a bear hunt in Mexico.

King Suggests Nation-Wide Bread Inquiry

Figures Here Indicate Need Says Senator, Calling Meeting to Decide.

Investigation of bread prices throughout the country may be sought by Senator William H. King (Democrat), Utah, following a meeting next week with District, Justice, Labor and Agriculture administration officials.

Arrangement of the meeting was begun by Senator King, following receipt of a report on District bread costs and prices from Robert E. Lynch, assistant corporation counsel.

Although called primarily to consider local conditions, the meeting may develop facts which justify a Nation-wide inquiry, the senator said. In that event he will ask the Senate District Committee to authorize such an inquiry.

Cursory study of the figures submitted by Mr. Lynch indicates that it will be necessary to pursue the inquiry further, Senator King said, and a decision is expected at the forthcoming meeting.

COOKING SCHOOL

We thought once of calling this a Cooking School de Luxe, because it has so many wonderful features, but we discarded the idea for fear you might think the lessons weren't practical! But PRACTICAL they ARE—there isn't a recipe or a suggestion that you can't duplicate right in your own home. And does Miss Chambers know her foods and how to prepare them! One glance at her swiftly moving hands as she stuffs a shoulder roast, one sniff of tantalizing fragrance from a delicious dish she has just prepared, to hear her just once describe her methods, will convince you.

Mrs. Simone Stecker Weds Walter Washington, Tokyo Attache.

Word has been received of the wedding on September 29 of Mrs. Simone Stecker to Mr. Walter Washington, secretary of the United States Embassy in Tokyo. The ceremony took place at 5 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. W. Fleisher, in Sendagaya, Japan. Later a reception was held in the garden. Among those present were the United States Ambassador to Japan and Mrs. Joseph Grew and members of the American Embassy staff and close friends of the bride and bridegroom.

Over her face there will be a shoulder-length veil, and she will carry a shower bouquet of gardenias and lilies of the valley.

Mrs. Newell, mother of the bridegroom, will be costumed in brown satin and lace. Her bouquet will be of Johanna Hill roses.

Upon their return from a wedding trip through the South, Mr. and Mrs. Newell will make their home at the Wyatt Apartment in Washington.

Bishop in High Gaiters Upset White House Guard

News of the campaign on foot to abolish the traditional short clothes and gaiters worn by bishops of the Church of England recalls an incident that happened to the Lord Bishop of London, the Right Rev. and the Right Hon. Arthur Foley Winnington-Ingram, while he was in America for the first time, some 25 years ago.

Bishop Ingram was a guest of President Theodore Roosevelt at the White House. As he strolled through one of the private corridors of the Executive Mansion, a guard sighted him and took him to be a bicycling tourist invading the sacred precincts of the family quarters of the President.

"Look here, my man," he said, "you can not come in here. Please leave."

Bishop Ingram looked at him quizzically and, with his winning smile which had won him the title of "Chuckles" in his homeland, he answered quietly:

"But, you see, I am a house guest of the President. I am Bishop Ingram."

With a dismayed glance at the short trousers and the high gaiters of the prelate, the guard retreated, visibly stricken by his mistake.

Danish Copper Adds Cozy Glow To Eating Place

Old World Setting and Tiny Booths Lure Romantic "Twosomes."

By Ruth Anne Davis.

Burnished copper and brass, in queer foreign shapes, gleam from the walls of a Seventeenth street restaurant. Most of those pieces were brought from Denmark by the manager when she came to this country fifteen years ago. Since 1920 she has delighted Washington palates with dishes from her native land as well as delicious American food.

The long, narrow room has a warm, cozy atmosphere. Tables and booths are arranged on each side of a high, dark wooden partition. Flowers and plants, in copper and colorful earthenware pots are placed at intervals on the partition's top.

Some of the booths were made for "twosomes," as their diminutive seats and steep backs will hold only one person. With a soft light casting a glow over the table in these small booths, an air of romance is achieved. There are large booths also, that easily accommodate four diners. Other tables and gay cretonned-back chairs stand in neat rows.

Weinerbread, a rich, fruity coffee cake, and Danish apple cake will thrill jaded appetites.

Hours are consumed in the making of the apple cake. We wheedled the manager into giving us an inkling of what goes on in those hours. It's something like this: A certain kind of roll is slowly toasted to brittleness; then ground to fine crumbs, blended with butter, and molded into the shape of a cake. Applesauce, piquantly seasoned, is spread on top. Whipped cream is the crowning glory of this delicious dessert.

A 45-cent luncheon, consisting of meat, two vegetables, hot bread and beverage, is served every day. A typical 50-cent dinner menu is cocktail or soup, entree, hot bread, two vegetables, choice of desserts and beverage. The same restaurant serves appetizing breakfasts.

"How many lumps, please?"

"Oh, about five," says the tea guest. No; she isn't a sugar fiend. She's noticed that her hostess is serving diamond dice sugar. These tiny squares, about half the size of ordinary sugar cubes, are imported from Canada. Only one store in Washington has them. They're mighty amusing for bridge parties or after-dinner coffee.

The price is 38 cents for a 2-pound box.

In a shiny green kitchen is baked an intriguing variant of the old-fashioned cinnamon roll. Called tidbits, they look just as good as they taste. Sweetened light dough is rolled thin, then spread with fruits, sugar, cinnamon and butter. This mixture is carefully cut into strips. Then each strip is rolled into a compact oblong and baked. The result is a breakfast dainty that puts vitality into the first meal of the day.

These rolls are priced at 30 cents a dozen.

Warm water, a can opener and a certain can are the only ingredients needed to bake a batch of gingerbread that will cause the man of the house to beg as vehemently as the youngsters for a third helping.

Flour, molasses, shortening, eggs, spices and baking powder have been blended into a flour and canned. When warm water is added, a pan of gingerbread, 10 by 12 inches, is the happy result.

The can sells for 25 cents.

Pineapple layer cake, with heaps of pineapple butter cream icing, is an unbeatable combination when expertly baked. We found this delectable pastry in a small shop that caters to big appetites. The cake is baked in two layers, weighs 2 pounds, and costs 50 cents.

The same shop has delicious mocha cakes. They all have the flavor of "the kind that mother used to make."

Some people learned long ago that cafeteria style is delightful from other standpoints than that of time. It's a spur to a lagging appetite to walk past rows of steaming meats, succulent vegetables, and chilled salads. Those who haven't had their turn at carrying a tray and selecting a dish here and a dish there, may have a comfortable initiation in home-like surroundings on Seventeenth street.

The manager, a trained dietition, sees that the underground vegetables and those from the top of the ground balance. As if that weren't enough to keep one person completely busy, she also devises attractive color schemes with her vegetables.

Square and round wooden tables are scrubbed to whiteness. Green chairs have cane seats. Tapestries are hung on the walls and an iron grill stairway leads to a gay little balcony.

In this restaurant one may select a satisfying luncheon for 35 cents. A dinner may be had for 40 cents.

Hull Names Woman Delegate To Pan-American Congress

Sophia Breckinridge Professor of Social Welfare at Chicago.

The State Department said yesterday that Miss Sophia Nisba Preston Breckinridge, professor of social welfare administration at the University of Chicago, had accepted the invitation of Secretary Hull to be a delegate to the seventh Pan American conference at Montevideo.

Miss Breckinridge has been active in civic and philanthropic work for more than 30 years. Her especial interest has been the status of women in industry and world affairs.

"The conference will consider the question of independent nationality of women," she said in an interview. "I recently have been in favor of the Administration's policy of protecting women in industry."

Since 1906, when she was chairman of the women's exhibit of the antisweat shop exposition in Chicago, Miss Breckinridge has been active in the National League of Women Voters and the Immigrant's Protective League.

A slight, white-haired woman of scarcely more than 5 feet, her educational and social work keep her so busy she has little time for other interests, although she confessed a great liking for music.

"When I find time I like to listen to Walter Damrosh," she said, with a smile. "With a little practice I probably could sing worse than any one else in the country."

The elderly educator's brother, Desha Breckenridge, is editor of the Lexington (Ky) Herald.

Miss Breckinridge said she would sail for Montevideo November 12.

Patou Uses Simple Lines in New Gowns

Skirts Are Draped, Necklines High in Front, Colors Sober.

Paris (U.P.).—The dressmaking profession has gotten way off its beat, according to M. Jean Patou, who says of his own winter of 1934 collection, "I have aimed at what is youthful, simple and Parisian, thus directing our profession to the place it should occupy."

His day silhouette has undergone less change than the evening one, and all his efforts have been concentrated on backs. Fronts are high, day or evening, for the bodice, and the front of the skirt is more drapery than dress. By means of highly studied cut and with a judicious use of fabrics, Patou has obtained his desired results.

There are no gaudy clothes from this house. "We are in winter," he says. "Days are gray and the season does not lend itself to gaudy clothes."

Patou coats have very sober lines, all of the originality lying in the sleeves and fur trimming. Some of them are belted and others either wrapped around or allowed to hang loose—but not too loose as to look sloppy.

Why?

By Katherine W. Smith.

Flowers lie, tear-wet and breathing
Beauty, where the deep
Snows of winter-love once rested
Shivering in sleep.

Though I stoop to crush the blossoms
Swiftly with my hands,
You may wonder, you may question—
Satan understands.

French Match Wine And Ladies' Gowns

But We Have No Moonshine Crepe or "Corn" Satin.

One edge the French have on the Americans is the accessibility of fine wines to which colors may be matched for women's dresses.

Now it seems that this season we will be pretty much out of the French mode if we can't walk into the parlor in a new velvet evening gown of Bordeaux red. Of course you probably could get away with a Burgundy red out in Grand Rapids or some place far away from the Rue de la Paix.

With all of those designers at work on the other side of the Atlantic, wouldn't you think one of them would have created a "white mule" satin, or a "corn liquor" tea gown? An "applejack" broadcloth might be a suggestion for a new sprinting suit in Bridgeport, and a "moonshine" flat crepe ought to be fine for a Louisville pajama.

Congressman Rogers Walks for Health

Representative Edith Nourse Rogers, of Massachusetts, keeps in good health by daily walks. Instead of riding in her own car to the Capitol each morning when Congress is in session Representative Rogers walks from her home near Connecticut avenue to the House Office Building. She seldom uses the subway car between the House Office Building and the House of Representatives wing of the Capitol. She prefers to walk across the plaza, no matter how inclement the weather may be.

Church Ladies Exhibit Heirloom Bridal Gowns

Charlottesville, Va., Oct. 27 (Spl.). A shawl, brought from New Orleans to Virginia in 1812, was a highlight of the exhibit of wedding gowns, dating back to 1841, held in the First Methodist Church of Charlottesville.

Most of the quaint old bridal dresses were modeled by the granddaughters of the original brides.

The shawl, brought to Charlottesville more than 100 years ago by John Muse, was worn by his great-niece on her wedding day in 1898.

Washington Woman in Plane Wreck Routs Cannibals With Fountain Pen

Miss Mary A. Mosset leveled her fountain pen, gun fashion, at cannibals when they surrounded her in the African Transvaal, and scared them almost out of their wits. Her lovely young protege, Virginia Jane Blake, was with her when their airplane crashed.

Miss Mary Mosset and Lovely Young Protege, Globe-Trotting, Have Hair-Breadth Escape in Heart of Africa.

By Virginia Lee Warren.

Armed only with a thermos bottle of tea, a fountain pen, and a bamboo stalk, a white-haired Washington woman held hundreds of black savages of a cannibal tribe at bay in the African Transvaal.

In an exclusive interview, Miss Mary A. Mosset, just returned to this country, told how she brandished the thermos bottle and ordered vicious-looking blacks to "go home," while her 16-year-old protege, Virginia Jane Blake, and a young Englishman calmly played Russian banque in the shadow of their wrecked airplane.

"On our recent African trip, we were flying from Victoria Falls to Johannesburg in a passenger transport airplane when, as a result of engine trouble, we literally fell into a tribe of cannibals," Miss Mosset explained yesterday, as she recounted her adventure amid the calm luxury of her Wardman Park apartment. "My white hair was what saved us from being made into stew.

"In my excitement at seeing those hideous savages swarming upon us from every direction, I took off my hat and grabbed a bamboo stalk that was on the ground. Those natives had never seen white hair. They thought I had dropped from heaven and that the airplane was my celestial chariot.

Reassured by Bicycle.

"I was terrified at first, when I realized that we were stranded in the African jungle, without food or water, and surrounded by staring, jabbering, gesticulating blacks. They were so filthy we couldn't have stood the odor if the wind hadn't been in our favor.

"But when one black boy came on a broken-down bicycle—heaven knows where he'd gotten it—a little of my fear left me. That wreck of a bicycle represented civilization. The airplane pilot swooped upon it and set out for the nearest settlement, 25 miles away.

"It was after the pilot had gone that my protege and the Englishman, a passenger on our airplane, settled down to their game of Russian banque. I kept the blacks at their distance, with the bamboo stalk. When I had been there brandishing it and holding them at bay for several hours I grew confident of my ability to control them. I made motions to the women that they must cover themselves above the waist, for they had not a stitch on them but some sort of makeshift skirts. Virginia Jane doubled up with laughter as I waved the bamboo at them to make them understand what I meant.

"I noticed that one boy looked as if he understood what I was saying. He did. He had picked up a little English from some African hunter. With him as interpreter, we engaged eight men to guard the plane and keep the fires going that night. The fires were to ward off lions and leopards.

Fountain Pen Scares Them.

"But I wanted the other grinning, jibbering blacks to go away. I told them to go. The boy told them to go. They stayed. Finally I opened my bag and with a flourish took out my fountain pen. 'So you won't go away, eh?' and I pointed the pen as if it were a gun. Evidently they had seen a gun and knew it was a deadly weapon. They turned and ran.

"We were huddled miserably in the plane for the night when the pilot returned with an automobile. Our ordeal had lasted nine hours."

Miss Mosset, accompanied by her protege, has traveled all over the world. "We've had lots of adventures, but none quite as thrilling as the one in the Transvaal."

Miss Blake, a senior at Immaculate Seminary, Wisconsin and Nebraska avenues, doesn't talk much about those adventures. She did confide in Miss Mosset, however, that she "wouldn't trade that African experience for $1,000,000."

Rapid Fashion Changes Unjust, Says Coutourier

Styles That Change Every Month Result in Badly Dressed Women.

Paris (U.P.).—"Is it both illogical, artificial and out of keeping with conditions of today to require, or expect, that a woman be content to wear a costume that will be out of style in a month?"

This is a fair enough question that M. Heim, of the house of that name, very frankly asks of his clients. And he answers it himself.

"The always changing revolutions in fashion are not natural. They lead to uncertainty; unnecessary expense, and what is more, disharmony and ugliness of design. They leave no time for a smooth and logical evolution of the mode and the result is that women are not satisfied either with what they buy, or with their coutourier, and they tire of a dress before they have worn it half a dozen times.

"If a dress is easily copied and becomes a 'best seller' everywhere, again the client is dissatisfied. And why shouldn't she be? This leads to a condition where a coutourier is forced to offer his models to his clients, rather than having them seek his designs, because of his knowledge of line and harmony.

"This is putting the cart before the horse. The dressmaker should be making serviceable clothes, not cheap, but which, because of their wearableness and quality, are worth the price asked."

Wide Variety In New Glove And Bag Styles

Velveteen Gauntlets Have Kid Palms; Rust Color Popular.

New York, Oct. 27 (AP).—Gloves, bags and neckwear are keeping up with fashion as to novelty of materials and new designs. Ribbed or plain velveteen gauntlets have suede or kid palms. And so do some of the corduroy or wool crepe gloves.

A favorite new color for gloves is rust.

The crocheted wool glove—with elastic—fits the hand more closely than usual and is worn with woolen dresses.

There is also the handmade crocheted mitten, with ruffled cuffs or plain ones, which fit tightly around the wrist and end there.

Even the fabric gloves of plain material are sometimes shaped into gauntlets, which, from the wrist to the end of the flare, are of chrocheted chenille, usually in stripes. On some of these gloves the chenille is fitted over the fabric background.

Crocheted Gloves.

Probably the crocheted string glove, wool lined, affords the most warmth of all. It comes in dark shades and eel gray.

The hand-stitched fabric glove is still good—and practical. Some other fabrics used are satin, velvet crepes and bengaline.

Navy blue kid gloves, with red trimming, are popular. Pigskin gloves in brown are a practical novelty.

For evening wear, palm and hand contrast may be in a black satin with a mesh palm, seen in all colors and trimmed with a single row of ostric feathers. The long kid glove with 16 buttons is seen in blue, white and brown. Elastic is being used in evening gauntlets also.

Bags of Alligator.

For bags, alligator, wool and seal—which looks like pigskin, though somewhat rougher—are among the popular new materials.

Wool bags dotted with gold embroidery, and of envelope style, are finding favor in the winter mode. Of pure American design is the bag of hexagonal shape.

Two other popular new bags are the "kick-off" bag, in bright colors, which is shaped like a football, with a talon on top; and the skirt bag, which has a general outline of the envelope, yet which is of a circular or skirt effect in its outside layers of leather.

Wide Range for Daytime.

For daytime use, other shapes range from little frame bags to pouch effects; and other materials include antelope with marquisette, reindeer leather, calf skin, pin calf and pin seal, and Morocco leather, also satin and silk finish.

Corduroy and velveteen scarfs are popular. And many different collars—mostly of plaid silk or taffeta, which tie in front—are recommended to brighten and change the appearance of a dress.

At night, brilliant lame and sequins hold sway.

Sofa Beds, Attractive and Comfortable, Turn Living Rooms Into Extra Bedrooms

Directed by Amos Parrish.

Information as to where articles of the type illustrated and their variations are available in Washington will be given by the Fashion Department, The Washington Post, on request.

New York Oct. 27.—Aren't there many times when you'd like to say to a guest, "It's late. Why not stay here all night?" But you can't because either there's no guest room, or it's already occupied, and the living room sofa isn't big enough.

The sofa bed (or day bed or studio couch) is certainly a fine modern convenience, adding, as it does, an extra bedroom while fitting harmoniously into almost any living room ensemble.

Probably the most popular, because of its simplicity of operation, is the well-known box spring on legs with a mattress and three comfortable back pillows.

This type is made in single or double size, the latter either one large or twin beds.

With Foot Pedal.

One of the newer improvements on it is a pedal on which you step to push out automatically the second bed unit.

Some studio beds of this type have modern end tables attached at both ends, or detachable bookshelf and lamp tables.

Love Seat Type.

The single size love seat type sofa bed is another satisfactory one. It looks like the popular Lawson sofa, with straight arms and two back pillows and double boxed seat cushions.

The arms open outward and the seat cushions fold out over them to make extensions to the mattress. Remove the back pillows and you have a comfortable single bed.

New this year is a full size sofa bed with arms and back. The seat pulls forward, lowering the back to make a full size double bed.

Part of Group.

When using one of these sofa beds in a living room it should be treated as a sofa and made part of an attractive grouping. The illustration shows one way of doing this, combining a comfortable chair, end tables and coffee table.

Leaflet on Furniture.

There are other pieces of furniture, too, besides sofa beds, which do double duty in a home. If you'd like to know what these are and how to use them, fill in and mail us the coupon.

N. D. Baker Aids Memorial

Shepherdstown, W. Va., Oct. 27 (Spl.).—Newton D. Baker, of Cleveland, formerly of Martinsburg, W. Va., is among those contributing to a fund for erection of a Confederate memorial monument here, it was revealed last night at a meeting of the Sons of the Confederacy.

Tailored Waist Newest Style For Evening

Gleaming Lame Popular With Slim Velvet Skirts.

The tailored shirtwaist for evening wear is one of the most radical ideas in a season noteworthy for its departure from the conventional. No matter how severe the lines of the shirtwaist, the material must be the quintessence of elegance. Lame, metallic and other gleaming materials are used with sensational success.

The brighter the shirtwaist, the duller the skirt, seems to be the rule. Long, slim skirts, designed for these unusual bodices, are best when in mossy crepe, spongy woolen, or dull, deep-piled velvet.

Some of these two-piece evening costumes have jackets to match the bodie or shirtwaist. Most women seem to prefer a dark, dull jacket to match the skirt.

Gray's the Thing Whether Mouse, Smoke, Granite

And You Can Match All Tones With One Pair of Shoes That Blend.

Paris (U.P.).—Just plain old common shoe leather suddenly becomes terribly intriguing. One of the most original is a kidskin which so craftily imitates the appearance of the tweedy fabrics of the winter suits, with flecks of gray and white or brown and beige, &c., that even a trained eye finds it hard to tell the difference.

There are signs that Paris will be faithful to several old friends of last year this fall. Little woolen suits will be as correct as ever for any informal gathering. Berets have discovered new tilts and trimmings to warrant their staying with us this fall, and the high-cut kidskin shoe will still reign in the realm of smart footwear.

We heard a fashion critic the other day remark that the general outlook was gray. She didn't mean depressing, however, but only that the color aspect of things smart for the moment was of that particular tone—mouse, armor, smoke, lead, iron, granite and gun—to be specific.

If, however, you select a pair or two of shoe of the new taupe colored kidskin you will find that they will blend with whatever gray your suit may be and as a result the main problem of your footwear is solved.

White Frosting

2 tablespoons butter
3 tablespoons hot cream
½ teaspoon vanilla

Women Conduct Talking Community Chest Drive

The members of the Woman's Crusade for the Community Chest are having a glorious time at woman's favorite occupation—talking for a cause.

One thousand women are busy in a talking drive to acquaint the people of Washington with the needs and services of the 62 agencies in the Community Chest group. They are not asking for money, they are simply missionaries spreading the gospel far and near of the Community Chest and its place in the modern scheme of welfare and social service.

The Woman's Crusade did not engage idly in the task. The members listened to special lectures on the agencies involved, studied their operations and the general needs of the moment. On November 9, a mass meeting of the Woman's Crusade will be held in Constitution Hall, with Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, wife of the President, as the principal speaker.

Southern Negro Life Told in Nonfiction Book by Julia Peterkin.

Few authors know the life of the Southern Negro as thoroughly as does Julia Peterkin. On that topic she has just written 60,000 words of description, study and anecdotes, which will be published next month by Ballou under the title, "Roll, Jordan, Roll." For illustration, the book will reproduce 60 full-page photographs taken by Doris Ulmann.

The "little wars" in Europe since 1918 are to be studied and put into a book by Vincent Sheean, who sails soon for Germany. He has been best known in recent years as an author of short stories in Harper's and the Saturday Evening Post. But although he is only in his early thirties, he has already occupied the public eye in other ways.

At 21 he was European correspondent for the Chicago Tribune. Later he traveled all over Europe and Asia as a special correspondent of the New York World, reporting the Rhineland Separatist War, the Ruhr occupation, the Lausanne Conference, the Fascist march on Rome, Primo de Rivera's assumption of the Spanish dictatorship and many conferences of the League of Nations at Geneva. But his chief feat was during the war between Spain and the Rif tribes, when he penetrated to the heart of the Rif, fell prisoner to the Berbers, and yet succeeded in reaching and interviewing Abd El-Krim and carrying his peace conditions in person to Primo de Rivera. These latter experiences Mr. Sheean told in his first book, "An American Among the Rifi."

During his journalistic career, Mr. Sheean wrote four books, two of them novels, as well as many short stories and articles. Yet his intimate reputation is that of a time waster. As his friends say, "All he wants to do is to sit up late and make people talk." Which, along with his own recollections, has provided him with enough material to spend the past two years at free-lance writing. His latest novel, "The Tide," has just been published by Doubleday-Doran.

Indian Country.

A study, "ADVANCING THE FRONTIER," by Grant Foreman; University of Oklahoma Press, $4.

With his "Pioneer Days in the Early Southwest" (1926), Mr. Foreman opened up the history of a region the early annals of which were almost unknown. This region is that called the Near Southwest, and includes roughly all of the present Oklahoma, with adjacent sections of Kansas, Arkansas and Texas. In "Indians and Pioneers" (1930) and "Indian Removal" (1932) the author continued his illuminating exposition, and it is now further augmented by the present volume.

No section of the country had in its early days a more colorful and exciting history. Turmoil was constant, with battle, murder and sudden death on every hand. Within this region the Government induced or forced some 60,000 Indians of the semicivflized tribes of the South to settle. Intertribal antagonisms divided them; factions within the tribes strove against one another; the wild tribes of the plains, hotly resenting the encroachments on what they deemed their own territory, harried the settlements; and the whites of the frontier, wanting the newly granted lands for themselves, joined in the general melee.

To keep the peace the Government established Fort Smith in 1817, at the western border of Arkansas, and in 1824 followed with Fort Gibson, near the junction of the Neosho and Arkansas Rivers. Other posts were added—Forts Towson, Coffee, Wayne, Washita, Camp Arbuckle and Camp Holmes—but throughout the most turbulent period Fort Gibson remained the military and administrative center. From this capital troops to quell disturbances and peace commissioners to make treaties were dispatched in all directions. Usually, however, the results were negligible. The small number of soldiers available could not properly police the vast territory, and the most solemn vows of peace and friendship made by the wild tribes when in council would often be broken before the commissioners had returned to the fort. All the circumstances led to conflict, and only after a long period of years were peace and order established.

The one-time capital of No Man's Land was, a century ago, a favored goal for Easterners who wanted to see something of the wild West. It was the place where Washington Irving ended his tour of the prairies in 1832, and it was the last home of Montfort Stokes, soldier and statesman of North Carolina. Nearby, in baronial splendor, lived, with his two Indian wives, the famous Col. Auguste Pierre Chouteau, of St. Louis. The gallant Nathaniel Pryor, one of the sergeants of the Lewis and Clark expedition, spent his last years in the vicinity, and the great Sam Houston was for a time a near neighbor. Noteworthy is the roll of its soldiers who afterward won distinction—among them Zachary Taylor, Stephen Watts Kearny, Jefferson Davis, Henry Dodge, Braxton Bragg, Philip St. George Cooke, E. V. Sumner, David Hunter, A. J. Smith, R. B. Marcy and B. H. Grierson. Red and white mingled in the social life of the post. Officers brought in their families. Young women from the East, who came to visit their friends, often remained to marry. Cherokee maidens of winsome charm and grace and sometimes of fair education also found husbands among the soldiers and a number of notable Oklahoma families are descended from these unions.

It is a many-sided view of the early Oklahoma scene that the author depicts. But the work, though absorbingly interesting, is not a story book. It is a history, documented and authentic. Mr. Foreman, aided by his talented wife, is an indefatigable searcher among the files of the Indian Office, the War Department and other archival collections for records bearing on the near Southwest. The work is of sterling merit and should find a wide circle of readers.

Meat Cookery Gathers Many New Wrinkles

Science Has Invented More Healthful Ways to Serve Meat Cuts.

By Ruth Chambers.

Cooking his meat over a camp fire was primitive man's way of preparing his dinner, and although we've come quite a few centuries along the path of knowledge, we've never found a better, more completely satisfying food to take the place of meat.

However, science has had its say about the reasons and the methods of cooking that food, and many old-time ideas held even by our more recent ancestors have been thrown into the discard of late years.

Why We Cook Meat.

Meat is a food which must always be cooked, but different kinds are cooked for different reasons, and in different ways. For the juicy pieces, such as steaks, the result to be aimed for is to keep in those juices. Therefore dry heat is used, as in broiling, pan-broiling and roasting.

On the other hand, meat may be cooked to extract the juices in order to make soups and stews. This is done by putting the meat on in cold water, increasing the temperature, and cooking it slowly for a long time.

Another reason for cooking is to soften the fibers of the less tender cuts. Instead of dry heat, which would harden this tissue, the cooking is done slowly for a long time in moisture. Examples of cooking in water are stewing and braising.

Don't Cover Roast.

When using dry heat, as in roasting, do not cover beef, pork or lamb. A cover on the pan means a condensation of steam, and the result is a pot roast rather than a true roast. For veal, however, make an exception to this rule. Veal lacks fat and will become too dry unless it is roasted in a covered pan.

Did you know that tests show that a covered roast shrinks more than one which is left uncovered?

Another idea long held but now discarded is that searing keeps in the juices and keeps a roast from drying out. Tests have shown that searing does not do that. A constant oven temperature may well be used in roasting. In fact, a roast may be put into a cold oven, if it is more convenient to do so, with no loss of juices or flavor.

Sear for Flavor.

Searing, however, gives meat an attractively browned appearance, and it improves the flavor of the outside, browned portion. If you prefer a nicely browned roast, therefore, sear it from 20 to 30 minutes in a hot oven (500 degrees F.). After the roast has been seared, the temperature should be reduced to that of a slow oven (300 degrees F.).

Keep in mind the fact that a constant low temperature gives better results in roasting than a constant high temperature. A roast cooked at a high temperature will lose four or five times as much weight as one cooked at a constant low heat. Of course, the time in the oven is greater at the low temperature.

When to Season.

The seasoning may be added when the meat is put in the oven. Some cooks prefer to add the salt after the meat is browned, as salt tends to keep the meat from browning.

For broiling, used for tender beef steaks and lamb chops, have the oven preheated ten minutes. The meat should be placed so that it is about 3½ inches from the heating element. Since searing does not keep in the juices, the steak need not be browned first on one side and then the other at the beginning of the cooking period. It may be cooked to a nice brown on one side and turned only once.

Don't Boil Meat.

About boiling—don't! Meat should never be boiled. The water in which it is cooked should be kept under the boiling point. If it is boiled over a long period of time the connective tissue is dissolved and the meat will be "stringy," but if it is simmered, the connective tissue will be softened sufficiently and the meat will be juicy and well flavored.

Standard Method of Roasting Beef.

Select a two or three rib standing roast. Wipe it with a damp cloth. Sprinkle with salt, allowing ½ teaspoon for each pound, then lightly with flour. Place the roast in an open pan without adding any water and with the fat side up. As the fat melts and cooks out, it will baste the meat. Sear the meat (if you desire) for 20 or 30 minutes in a very hot oven. Reduce the temperature to about 300 or 325 degrees F. and continue cooking until the roast has reached the desired degree of doneness. A three-rib roast will probably require 16 minutes to the pound to be rare, 22 minutes to the pound to be medium, and 30 minutes to the pound to be well done.

Yankee Pot-Roast.

Select a 3-pound pot-roast from the shoulder arm roll. Wipe the meat carefully with a damp cloth. Try out some suet, or melt a little fat in a heavy kettle or Dutch oven. Brown the meat in the fat, turning so that all sides may be browned. Add 2 small onions and a few small carrots. After meat is well browned add 2 fresh tomatoes, or 1 cup canned tomatoes, 1½ teaspoons salt, 1 bay leaf, 2 cloves and ⅛ teaspoon pepper. Cover closely and simmer slowly until the meat is tender. For a 3-pound roast, 2½ hours will be required.

Needlework Guild Aids Children

Emergency aid is given within an hour after the request has been received at the First Needlework Guild of Washington, according to its treasurer, Mrs. L. W. Eugster. This guild, the oldest in the city, has headquarters at 2 Du Pont circle. All workers give their services voluntarily.

Winter demands of clothing for children and adults are now being taken care of by the guild members. Each is contributing two or more new garments or the equivalent in money.

Cranberry Punch, Ice, Jelly and Roly-Poly Pep Up Any Meal With Their Color and Flavor

By Ann Barrett.

Any time you're in a mood to count your blessings one by one, according to a certain fine old hymn, do count in the cranberry. For it is something to be grateful for all winter long—the way the gorgeous color and tart flavor of cranberries pep up eating. In cranberry and raisin pie, for example—a favorite of Representative Bertrand H. Snell, of New York. In cranberry punch and ice and jelly and old-fashioned, new-fashioned roly-poly.

For cranberry and raisin pie, here's how: Cut 3 cups cranberries in halves. Then add 1½ cups sugar mixed with 1½ cups seedless raisins, ¼ teaspoon salt, 1½ tablespoons flour and 1½ cups of water. Cook this mixture gently 20 minutes. Next, add 1½ teaspoons vanilla and turn into a 9-inch unbaked bottom crust. Cover with whole top crust or strips of pastry and bake 10 minutes at 450 F. Reduce heat to 350 F., bake 20 minutes more and serve warm.

Cranberry Punch.

Cranberry punch (slick with dainty assorted sandwiches for an informal bridge) goes like this: First put 1 quart of cranberries to cook in a covered pan with 2 cups water. Cook 30 minutes. Strain and measure. In another pan put 2 cups of water and 2-3 as much sugar as you have cranberry juice. Boil up this sugar and water 5 minutes to make a sirup. Chill this sirup and the cranberry juice. Then combine them with 1 and 1-3 cups of lemon juice, 2 cups orange juice and 1 No. 2 can of shredded pineapple. Serve very cold over cracked ice. (Ace-high!)

Cranberry Ice.

Here's the cranberry in another colorful role—cranberry ice. (Especially nice with roast fowl as a change from the molded cranberries or cranberry jelly.) First cook 1 quart of cranberries with 2 cups water till tender. Then strain through cheesecloth. While still hot stir in 1 tablespoon gelatin first soaked in 4 tablespoons cold water. When cool, add 6 tablespoons lemon juice. Next make a sirup by cooking 2 cups sugar with 1 cup water for 2 minutes. Cool this, and add to cranberry mixture. Freeze in crank freezer or turn into tray of automatic refrigerator, stirring frequently while freezing. When almost frozen, turn mixture out into bowl and beat vigorously with rotary beater. Then return to tray and complete freezing.

Cranberry Roly-Poly.

Another old-fashioned new-fashioned dessert is cranberry roly-poly, made as follows: Mix and sift 2 cups pastry flour, 1 teaspoon salt, 4 teaspoons baking powder, 2 tablespoons sugar. Cut in 5 tablespoons lard and ½ cup milk. Roll this dough out ¼ inch thick, cover with 4 tablespoons melted butter, then spread with cranberry mixture (2 cups cranberries cooked with 1½ cups sugar till thick like jam. Roll up like jelly roll and bake on greased tin at 450 F. for 10 minutes. Reduce heat to 350 F. and bake 30 minutes more. Serve warm (cut in slices) with hard sauce, lemon sauce or plain cream.

You see, I'm taking it for granted you know how to make cranberry jelly. But I do want to point out how much prettier this jelly looks when it's molded in a fancy, generous-sized shape like that shown in my picture. (The mold cost only 10 cents.)

Rose Percy, Famous Doll, In Red Cross Museum

Treasured in the museum of the American Red Cross Building in Washington is a famous doll, Rose Percy.

This doll has a complete wardrobe, furs, jewels and even stationery of her own.

The girls of a New York boarding school dressed Rose Percy for a "sanitary fair" for a charity and she was sold for $1,200. One of her owners decided to give Rose Percy to the American Red Cross and now she is the proud center of its museum.

Mah Jong Returns, But Gamblers Are Gone

Mah jong, that fascinating lottery of ivory and bamboo pieces, flowers and prevailing winds and all the mystic jargon of the East, is invading Washington society again, pushing even bridge aside in many leading households of the Capital.

Five or six years ago, mah jong players among the Four Hundred were almost countless. Then the game almost disappeared. Now it is back again and once more Senators may be seen engrossed in the play, diplomats talking about it in various tongues. But, alas, there are no multimillionaires left to play for a dime a point. The golden days of mah jong gambling are gone. Perhaps, now that is true, the game will be played more for its own sake in these days of its revival as a pastime for the smart set.

Macaroni Seashells for Soup and Fancy Limas Here From Italy.

This morning the Marketer found lima beans that are a little fancier than the ordinary ones, without an additional fancy price. They are called Fava beans and come from Italy. In the same stall with the beans you can get macaroni that looks like tiny delicate sea shells, and some that is shaped like a gentleman's bow tie. The Marketer was enchanted. Can't you see those shells washed up on the edge of a soup plate? Or the ties surrounded by a collar of cheese?

For Saturday's menu you can get the liver for 15 cents a pound at a northeast market. The same butcher sells smoked ham at 17 cents a pound. His week-end special will be chickens, roasting ones, for 23 cents a pound, and stewing for 19 cents.

Onions are 3 pounds for 10 cents. Brussels sprouts are 20 cents a quart, string beans, 10 cents a pound and 2 pounds for 15 cents. Beets, carrots and turnips are all 5 cents a bunch. You can buy turnips with the greens on them and have two vegetables in one.

Grapefruit sells seven for 25 cents at the northeast market. Oranges, 15 cents a dozen. Tokay grapes are 2 pounds for 15 cents.

Tomatoes for Sunday's salad are 2 pounds for 15 cents, cucumbers, 5 cents each. Lettuce, home grown, 5 cents a head, iceberg, three for 25 cents. Radishes, three bunches for 10 cents. Young onions, four bunches for 10 cents.

A 6-pound ham will last a family of four three or four meals. This will bring the cost per meal down to about 24 cents. It is upon this basis that the Marketer calculates Sunday's meat costs.

Mrs. Fowler's Pumpkin Pie Recipe Wins

All Dressed Up in Party Style, It's Good Idea for Halloween.

Pumpkin pies all dressed up for Halloween can well form the center of Halloween parties on Tuesday night. Mrs. Mary A. Fowler, 1346 Irving street northwest, will win the gratitude of many Halloween hostesses with her prize winning recipe for "Halloween Pie."

Not only is this pie delicious to the taste, but it also appeals to the eye, an important essential in preparing food for Halloween parties.

The recipe is as follows:

Halloween Pie.

2 cups pumpkin (strained)
¾ cup sugar
1 cup milk
½ teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon nutmeg
½ teaspoon ground ginger
Yolks two eggs (save whites for meringue pie crust)
1 cup flour
½ teaspoon salt
Rounded 1-3 cup shortening
Enough ice water to mix

Work shortening into flour which has been sifted with salt and slowly, add enough of the water to enable you to make a dough, then roll out with as light a touch as possible and line individual deep pie pans.

Beat egg yolks, add sugar, seasoning, pumpkin and milk. Fill pans almost to the top and bake in a moderate oven for 35 minutes. When done take out and allow to become cool and then spread cranberry jelly over each one to the depth of about ¼ inch, and pile in center of each a large spoonful of meringue which has been previously made with the whites saved from those used in the filling. Put back in the oven for about 15 minutes with slow heat, or until meringue is well browned.

For the meringue, whip whites and gradually add 8 tablespoons granulated sugar, beating until well blended. Add few drops of vanilla before using.

Pie Delicious.

1½ cups flour
¼ teaspoon salt
½ cup lard
3 tablespoons cold water

Mix flour and salt. Cut in lard with knife. Mixing with knife add water. When stiff dough forms, roll it out until thin and fit into deep pie pan. Prick sides and bottom with fork and bake 15 minutes in moderate oven. Add filling.

What Today Means

"Scorpio."

If October 28 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 11 a. m. to 12:20 p. m., from 4 to 5 p. m. and from 10:30 to 11 p. m. The danger periods are from 8:45 to 10:15 a. m., from 2 to 2:40 p. m. and from 6:40 to 7:40 p. m.

You will be inclined on this date to let your past creep up on you and worry you with your mistakes. Don't let yourself get dragged back mentally to the things that you have risen above. Reach out for the good that is all about you and claim it for your own. Obey your intuitions on this day and listen to the dictates from within.

The child born on this October 28 will be inclined all through life to burden himself with other people's problems and worries. He must be taught to perfect his own armor before attempting to protect others. He will succeed at those things which interest him, so do not try to push this little one into anything against his will. Corporeal punishment will prove harmful.

If October 28 is the date of your birth, you are a person who will struggle on and on through life, even though you never come within striking distance of your goal. It is certain that you will find a worthy cause to which to devote your noble efforts. Without seeing just where you are going, you will know that a right and good purpose and fight will win the right of way, and you will allow no discouragement to creep in. In your quiet way you will do much to encourage others to make an uphill fight. One word from you at the right time will give the needed power and confidence to another. Life to you is in no sense of the word a gamble; it is a game, and you feel that if one follows the rules absolutely, victory will be won. You never fail to give another a hand. You do not feel that you are competing with others, and it will probably be your experience that cooperation in its highest and most perfect sense brings the greatest rewards.

Born on October 28, your desires are very simple insofar as material things are concerned. You will always have an abundant supply of necessities. You will devote a great deal of time to your family; but all your thoughts and acts will be of an impersonal nature, and you will feel that whatever you do for them you would do for all others if the occasion presented itself. You are quite unemotional.

Stocks Rally As Grain Rises Under Buying

Prominent Issues Recover Part of Losses; Sales, 1,139,140 Shares.

New York, Oct. 27 (AP).—A rally in wheat, backed by reports that the Government relief agency had again gone to market, put stocks back on the upward track today after early detours into irregularity.

Most of the more prominent issues about recovered what they had lost Thursday.

Farm implements, alcohols and chemicals were particularly responsive, repeal issues showing to good advantage even during the uncertain forenoon. Cotton moved up with stocks and grains.

Action of Exchange.

Foreign exchanges worked in the opposite direction of dollar depreciation, notwithstanding the R. F. C.'s increase in its gold price, which today was $31.76, a jump of 66 cents from the London quotation and of 22 cents above yesterday's Washington level.

So far America's domestic control operations have had little effect on the world price, as determined in London, and the conflicting spread between the dollar's gold value in the world market and the value given it by the R. F. C. has increased.

Some observers are pointing out that uncertainties surrounding France's ability to maintain a gold standard have not yet been dissolved. Today the franc weakened and other currencies dipped with it, giving the dollar a rally, so that deflation of the latter experienced some unexpected difficulties.

Pace Is Slow.

The stock market's pace was slow. Until the last hour, when wheat had established itself 3 cents or so higher, trading dragged along sluggishly at a somewhat lower average price level, though activity picked up a bit when the rally started. However, sales for the day were only 1,139,140 shares.

Allied Chemical, American Smelting and Case gained more than 2 points.

National Distillers drew enough support to put it 4 points higher, while Montgomery Ward, duPont, Sears-Roebuck, Union Pacific, Santa Fe, Southern Pacific, American Telephone, American Can and Bethlehem Steel were up a point or more. Gold-mining issues were spotty, though narrowly so.

Steel Gains Slightly.

U. S. Steel gained slightly. Wall street assumes that its third-quarter earnings, due next Tuesday, will make a favorable comparison with the preceding quarter, since that has been the experience of other major producers; whether all charges were fully covered by the corporation is open to conjecture, although there have been reports that something was earned on the preferred stock.

Maintenance of the latter's 50-cent dividend is regarded as assured in most quarters.

Last week's freight loadings were under those of the preceding week, but still maintained an improvement over a year ago; the gain amounted to little more than 1 per cent. As for general trade, Dun & Bradstreet's reported that more seasonal weather had helped retail distribution.

Wall Street Briefs.

New York, Oct. 27 (AP).—A small volume of State and municipal financing is scheduled for next week. Daily Bond Buyer estimates the total at $6,415,027, which includes a call for tenders on Tuesday of $5,000,000 in State of New Jersey emergency relief bonds to bear interest at not more than 5 per cent.

Freight cars in need of repairs totaled 295,056 on October 1, a decrease of 9,146 compared with a month ago, the American Railway Association announced today. Locomotives in need of repairs on October 1 totaled 10,735, or 21.5 per cent of the number in use. This was a decrease of 265 from last month.

A lull in the rush of highway contract lettings dropped the total of heavy engineering construction contracts for the week ended October 23 to $27,521,000, says Engineering News-Record. This compares with $46,208,000 for the previous week.

On the basis of steel company reports for the third quarter published so far, Wall street is looking for a considerable improvement in the operating results of the United States Steel Corporation when the figures are released next Tuesday. Independents which have made known the quarter's results show substantial gains over the second quarter and the same period last year, although some continued to operate in the red. Similar expectations are held with regard to the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, which will announce its third-quarter report tomorrow.

F. S. Kimerling has been named resident and general manager of the A. C. Spark Plug Co., a subsidiary of General Motors Corporation, succeeding Harlow H. Curtice, whose appointment as general manager of the Buick motor division of General Motors was announced October 23.

Announcement is also made of the appointment of D. E. Ralston as general manager of the Olds motor division of General Motors, Lansing, Mich.

Shares of the Roan Antelope Copper Mines, Ltd., an African property, have been listed on the New York Stock Exchange. The stock previously was traded on the curb exchange. In its listing application the company disclosed that for the year ended June 30, 1933, net profits amounted to £53,205 after expenses, interest, depreciation and taxes. For the ten months ended June 30, 1932, the company had a deficit of £30,759.

The American Smelting & Refining Co. today advanced the price of lead .15 cent to 4.30 cents a pound. A similar increase was posted yesterday.

Farm Program Difficulties

Loan Offers Are Pin Money Compared to Inflationary Hopes

By Ralph West Robey.

That the administration would extend its attempt to peg all important agricultural prices has been more or less certain since the adoption a few weeks ago of the plan to lend 10 cents a pound on cotton. The announcement of its willingness to lend 50 cents a bushel on corn, accordingly, is not a surprise. This fact, nevertheless, should not be permitted to cloud the significance of this further move in the program being carried forward in this manner. It is a program for which, in one form or another, there is considerable precedent, but all of the earlier attempts have resulted in dismal failures.

At the time the cotton-lending program was announced, just about a month ago, cotton was selling in primary markets for approximately 10 cents a pound. This meant that on the farm it was worth only 9 or 9¼ cents. Even taking this figure, thus, the margin between the actual price and the amount that the Government was willing to lend was small. Lifting of the price, in consequence, should have been comparatively easy, or at least easier than would be the case with a wide spread. At the time there was wide expectation that the price would rise to the Government figure.

Price Recently Has Been A Little Below Month Ago.

Actually, however, the price rise did not take place. On the contrary cotton recently has been selling a little lower than when the plan was announced. As a price-raising scheme, therefore, the offer to lend 10 cents a pound has been entirely unsuccessful.

The reason for this failure, perhaps, is largely the string tied to a farmer who accepts one of these loans. This is that he must reduce his acreage. Of course the Government pays him a rental on the land thus taken out of cultivation for cotton, but even so there are strong reasons for not cooperating and taking a loan.

Primary among these reasons is the fact that if the Government is successful in its campaign to raise prices the farmer would be better off in being free to grow as much cotton as he likes. This does not mean that with only 10-cent cotton he would gain by such freedom, but remember the broad price plans of the Administration do not place any such modest limits on the ultimate level. The cotton farmer, accordingly, if he thinks the recovery program is going to succeed, doubtlessly is anticipating something considerably in excess of 10 cents.

Corn Plan Will Encounter Same Kind of Opposition.

The same difficulty will be encountered in the current proposal on corn. The offer is to lend 50 cents a bushel. At present the price is 47 to 48 cents in the primary markets, and, of course, substantially less on the farms. In consequence, a few corn raisers probably will accept the loans and make an agreement to curtail acreage. It seems probable to me, however, that the majoritiy will wait to see how much better they can do by taking advantage of any inflationary rise that occurs.

In a word, then, what the Department of Agriculture is offering in the way of loans is just pin money compared to what the Administration program as a whole is offering. Small wonder, accordingly, that farmers sit back, just as others are doing, to see how the larger program works. If the larger program succeeds, the farmers who are free to raise as much as they like will benefit; if it fails, presumably the Administration will offer them something else.

Bond Market Is Unchanged; At 74.8 Level

Some Foreign Loans Rise as Sales Are Cut to $10,946,000.

New York, Oct. 27 (AP).—Except for a few foreign issues, interest in the bond market was at a low ebb today and prices generally drifted without displaying any definite trend.

Sales totaled $10,946,000, par value, and the average for 60 domestic corporate loans was unchanged at 74.8.

Italian 7s jumped 3½ points on a relatively heavy turnover following reports that the government would emulate Sweden and announce a refunding offer for some $87,000,000 of the issue which is outstanding.

Swedish Bonds Rally.

The Swedish 5½s, which rallied sharply yesterday on the government's conversion proposal, reacted 1¾ points on profit taking. There were rumors that some other governments might attempt to convert their dollar loans.

Dominican Republic 5½s, up 5⅝ points, may have responded to refunding hopes.

Gains of around a point or more were also shown by bonds of Brisbane, Australian Commonwealth, Denmark, Italian Public Utilities, Rome City and Norway. French government 7s and 7½s were off 1½ and 2½ points, respectively, probably due to selling on reports of recent heavy gold withdrawals from the republic.

Gold Program Puzzles.

The administration's gold-control program continued to puzzle both traders and investors in the domestic sector and cautious commitments were the rule.

Nervousness was again displayed by United States Government securities, most of which sagged 1-32d to 6-32ds of a point. The Federal list was also a little more active than in recent sessions.

The majority of corporation maturities were listless, with unimportant gains and losses about evenly divided in all categories.

Bank in West Virginia Will Be Reorganized

Clarksburg, W. Va., Oct. 27 (Spl.). Plans have been approved in Washington for a reorganization of the First National Bank of Philippi and its reopening in full. The institution was placed in the hands of a conservator March 28 last, since which time a reorganization committee has been working on plans for its reopening.

Under the plan, depositors will receive 50 per cent of their deposits, amounting to $30,000, and the remainder will be paid in installments as frozen assets are thawed out. A new capital structure is to be raised with a capital stock of $50,000 and a surplus fund of $12,500. There is now only one other fully open bank in Barbour County.

Curb's Prices Close Firm at Higher Levels

Better Tone Develops as Trading Volume Falls to 152,000 Shares.

New York, Oct. 27 (AP).—A better tone developed in the late curb market dealings today and with the exception of mild irregularity in oils, prices were generally steady to firm at the close.

Extreme dullness ruled the forenoon trading and a scattering of realizing sales that carried over from the previous session gave the list an uneven appearance. A demand for alcohols that increased near the end of the noon hour gave impetus to a moderate forward movement that broadened in the last hour.

Hiram Walker, National Distillers new and Distillers Corporation-Seagrams finished 1 to around 2 points higher. Creole Petroleum continued in good demand among the petroleum issues, but minor reactions occurred in Humble Oil and Standard Oil of Indiana. Newmont Mining gained ½ point, while Lake Shore Mines was about steady. Aluminum Co. of America closed 2½ points higher and the Swift issues were firm.

Transfers declined to approximately 152,000 shares, compared with 266,000 for Thursday.

Output of U.S. Gold Is Highest in Years

New York, Oct. 27 (AP).—American gold production rose sharply in September, the American Bureau of Metal Statistics reported today.

Output totaled 271,000 fine ounces, the largest in recent years, and compared with 181,000 in August, making an increase of 49.7 per cent. The total for September, 1932, was 246,000 ounces.

The rise placed the United States, for the month, in second place among the gold producing nations of the world, displacing Canada. South Africa comes first. Usually this country is third.

Women's wear—There is an active trade in coats, dresses, but other major lines are rather quiet, according to jobbing interests. Reorders on coats are running in good volume.

Office equipment—It is reported in dealer quarters that buying continues on the upward trend. Shipments in some divisions of the industry are said to be nearly double those for the corresponding period last year. Tabulating machines, typewriters and time clocks are making a particularly good showing.

Shoe production—There is talk of early resumption of full operating schedules in leading manufacturing centers, based on an increasing volume of orders.

Cotton goods—Textile circles hear that production is being curtailed to some extent owing to a falling off in forward bookings at the mills and to the reluctance of manufacturers to pay processor taxes on cotton to be used in making up stock goods.

U. S. Dollar Turns Up on Markets

New York, Oct. 27 (AP).—The American dollar moved up substantially against leading exchanges today despite the fact that the Reconstruction Finance Corporation again cut the dollar's domestic gold value by advancing the price of the yellow metal 22 cents an ounce to $31.76.

The price discrepancy was exemplified by the French gold franc, which dropped .06½ of a cent, at 5.79½ cents. In terms of the franc the dollar was worth approximately 67.64 cents. As computed by today's R. F. C., gold price, the dollar was valued at about 65.1 cents. Dealers, however, attached little importance to this apparent gap, explaining that the exchange market was extremely thin and unusually quiet.

Among other foreign moneys, the British pound sterling declined 3¾ cents at a cable rate of $4.70¾. Dutch guilders were off .80 of a cent, at 59.70 cents, and Belgian belgas and Swiss francs were down .25 and .40 of a cent, respectively. German marks, the Scandinavians, Canadian dollars and Japanese yen were moderately lower.

U. S. Steel Income Gain Is Predicted

New York, Oct. 27 (AP).—Dow, Jones & Co. said today that the report of United States Steel Corporation, for the third quarter, to be published next Tuesday, "will be much better than the preceding quarter and will show substantial improvement over the third quarter in 1932."

"However," it added, "like all other steel manufacturers, the corporation will reflect the steady falling off in output during August and September.

"The question of the preferred dividend will not be finally decided until the meeting next Tuesday. However, there has been no informal discussion of any change in the rate. Interests in the company are looking for a continuation of the 50-cent dividend, even though the report may show that deductions for interest, depreciation, etc., have not been fully covered as in the case of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation."

Gains Expected On Activities of Building Body

Institute Is Standing First in Membership Quota; 34 Get Certificates.

William H. Dyer of Perpetual Building Association, president of Washington Chapter, No. 51, American Savings, Building & Loan Institute, predicts that this will be a successful year for the activities of the organization. Although the local chapter is less than one year old, its affairs have been so aggressively carried on that it now stands in first place in the United States in point of membership quota filled.

The chapter completed the first semester's work of a prescribed three-year course the early part of the summer. At the organization meeting this fall certificates were presented to 34 students who successfully completed that portion of the course. The course includes the following subjects, building and loan fundamentals, bookkeeping and accounting, real estate appraising, commercial law and allied subjects. The curriculum is directed by the American Savings, Building & Loan Institute which is the educational branch of the United States Building & Loan League.

The development of the American Savings, Building and Loan Institute is interesting in that, while it is the educational agency of a business 103 years old, the institute is less than 10 years old. The first building and loan association in the United States started business in 1831. The idea became popular and institutions of this type were started in all sections of the country, progressing steadily and continuously until at the present time there are more than $8,000,000,000 invested in these associations, these funds being used to finance the purchase of millions of homes.

So purely local in character were the associations, each operating its chosen plan, that no need was felt for educational facilities until about 1917, and eight years later the first textbook was published. The remarkable growth of building and loan, especially in the past 15 years, has emphasized this educational need. Further, the legislation of the past two years, creating the Federal Home Loan Bank System and the system of Federal Savings and Loan Associations renders a broad educational program essential to the proper conduct of the business.

The local chapter has the unqualified support of the building and loan leaders in this city, and it is anticipated that from time to time the present courses will be supplemented to enable the chapter to render up-to-date service to its members.

Lead Production Rises.

World lead production in September totaled 116,368 short tons against 98,988 in August and 99,686 in September, 1932, reports the American Bureau of Metal Statistics. September output in the United States was 28,021 tons, compared with 18,611 in August.

NRA Bankers' Manual Being Sent to Members

New York, Oct. 27.—A manual for regional bankers NRA committees under the bankers code of fair competition has been completed and placed in distribution by the banking code committee of the American Bankers Association, it is announced here today by Ronald Ransom, executive vice president Fulton National Bank, Atlanta, Ga., chairman of the committee.

"Gratifying promptness is being shown by bankers in all parts of the country in carrying out the practical application of the code through the rapid formulation of local rules governing fair-trade practices, the adaptation of existing clearing house and other associations to the requirements of the code and the organization of new clearing house associations to cover territory where they are not already in existence," Mr. Ransom said.

U. S. Demand For Diamonds Steadily Rising

Diamond shipments from Amsterdam to the American market have steadily increased since the beginning of the year, according to a report from Consul F. Van Den Arend, made public by the Commerce Department.

Exports during the month of September aggregated 7,170 carats, valued at $376,000. With only one exception this was the largest amount shipped to the United States since November, 1930.

The total volume of diamonds shipped to the United States in the first nine months of 1933 was 40 per cent in excess of shipments during the corresponding period of last year. However, monthly shipments during the current year averaged less than 4,000 carats, as compared with an average of nearly 15,000 carats in 1929.

The extent to which Amsterdam's diamond trade with the United States has been reduced since the depression is strikingly revealed in figures for declared exports for the years 1929 and 1932. In the former period they were valued at nearly $19,000,000 while the total for last year was less than $2,000,000.

While a general improvement has occurred in the Amsterdam diamond industry since the low level of the first months of 1933, conditions are still far from normal, the report states. It is felt in the trade that a full measure of recovery can not be looked for until there is a general improvement in economic conditions throughout the world, especially in the United States, the largest buyer of diamonds.

Increased demand for diamonds in evidence during the past two or three months, it is pointed out, has been ascribed in part to a growing tendency to invest in diamonds. Confidence in the value of the diamond has recently been further strengthened by stricter agreements among producers to furtail the volume of uncut stones released to commerce within the limits of what the market can readily absorb.

Apple Crop Is Reported To Be Under 1932 Yield

Hagerstown, Md., Oct. 27 (Spl.). With the apple-picking season nearing an end in the Hancock belt of Washington County, growers reported today that this year's crop would be about 80 per cent of the 1932 crop, which was not a normal one.

A survey completed in the Hancock belt by G. F. L. Carpenter, president of the Maryland Horticultural Society and in charge of production for the American Fruit Growers, which owns extensive orchards in the Hancock area, bore out this estimate of production.

Coal Trade In Newcastle Seen Reviving

The outlook for the coal trade of Newcastle-on-Tyne during the coming winter is favorable, according to Consul Paul C. Squire, in a report made public by the Commerce Department. A marked improvement, he states, was noted during the month of September and it is expected that this progress will be continued.

Northumberland steam coal has been in steady demand, but, on account of proposed high prices for October to December, foreign buyers are holding orders in abeyance. No improvement has occurred in the demand for Durham coal and supplies are reported plentiful. Better business at home is anticipated following the approach of longer nights and colder weather.

The application of an increased quota, the report states, has been approved, and Northumberland and Durham have been granted increased allowance of 300,000 and 350,000 tons, respectively. Better trade with Scandinavia, it is pointed out, accounted for the necessity of augmenting the quota. Production of coal increased in September of last year by 18 per cent in Northumberland and 10 per cent in Durham.

Wool Goods Turn Quiet In Past Week

New York, Oct. 27.—Wool goods markets were quieter this past week than for some time, according to the New York Wool Top Exchange Service. Spot activity was almost at a standstill, and a few mills were forced to adjust options on spring men's wear fabrics placed some time ago. Despite the let-down in sales, prices held firm, and there was little or no talk of insides, concessions, or reductions.

"The steady strength of raw wool prices is the mainstay of the piece-goods market at present," says the exchange service, "since sales agents are not inclined to reduce prices when raw materials show no signs of weakening. Some buyers pressed for deferred shipments of goods on orders but did not seek to force price reductions. Retail clothing business continued to show seasonal expansion in many localities. Topcoats sold in heavy volume. Women's tweed suits continued in brisk demand, and better business was done on dressy coats. Men's suits were in active demand in parts of the country where the weather has been cool."

"Mill operations are irregular. Some mills have started up additional machinery on tops, yarns and cloth while other plants have shut down machinery. Curtailment was particularly noticeable this past week in mills specializing in women's cloakings and dress goods. The industry as a whole, however, is running at a fairly high rate."

Exports Drop In Black Sea Soviet Ports

Exports from Russian Black Sea ports passing Istanbul during the first nine months of the current year declined 13 per cent as compared with shipments during the corresponding period of 1932, a report to the Commerce Department from Commercial Attache J. E. Gillespie reveals. The total volume exported during the nine-month period amounted to 5,999,201 long tons as against 6,864,300 long tons in the corresponding period of the preceding year.

The decline in Russia's Black Sea exports, the report points out, is due to decreased shipments of cereal and petroleum. During the first nine months of 1933, 486,006 tons of cereals were shipper against 1,072,398 tons in the nine-month period of 1932, a decrease of approximately 54 per cent.

Shipments of petroleum products declined from 3,866,829 tons in 1932 to 3,282,202 tons this year, or over 16 per cent. Exports of minerals on the other hand have increased from 1,337,100 tons to 1,655,955 tons, or about 23 per cent; shipments to the United States of coal, iron ore and manganese were conspicuous. Of interest also was a shipment of 6,000 tons of steel rails to Persia.

Black Sea exports passing Istanbul in the month of September totaled 882,474 tons, a decline of about 3 per cent as compared with the September, 1932, figure. During this period Russian cereal shipments were resumed on a larger scale than at any time during the current year, the bulk of these exports going to English ports. This development, it is pointed out, marked the resumption of English-Russian trade relations.

Argentina Peanut Crop Sets Record

Argentina's peanut crop during the 1932-33 season reached the record figure of 78,287 tons, the largest in the history of the country, according to advices from the American consulate general, Buenos Aires, made public by the commercial department. Average annual production during the last six years, the report shows, was 63,563 tons.

In spite of enlarged output, prices obtained by peanut growers are still below normal, it is pointed out, in many cases insufficient to cover the cost of production.

The principal effect of the increased production, according to the report, will be upon sales of olive oil imported from Spain and Italy. Over 90 per cent of the peanuts harvested in Argentina are used in the production of peanut oil, which is substituted for, and in many cases preferred to, olive oil.

Baltimore Bankers Plan To Change Firm Name

Baltimore, Md. Oct. 27.—The name of the investment banking firm of Mackubin, Goodrich & Co. will be changed to Mackubin, Legg & Co., on November 1, it was announced yesterday by George Mackubin at the company's building in Baltimore. The name of John C. Legg, jr., who has been a partner in the company since 1905, replaces that of the late G. Clem Goodrich, who died in March, 1932.

Mackubin, Goodrich & Co. is one of the oldest investment banking houses in Baltimore. It was formed in 1899 after Mr. Mackubin had started alone in business for himself. Mr. Goodrich, who was cashier in the National Union Bank, joined Mr. Mackubin in that year, bringing to the firm a thorough knowledge of banking and a host of friends in the banking fraternity.

Wheat Bounds Upward Again As U. S. Buys

Speculative Dealers Appear in Trading; All Grains Advance.

Chicago, Oct. 27 (AP). — Grains bounded upward late today, and wheat scored a maximum jump of 4⅜ cents from an earlier low level.

Evidence that United States Government-sponsored purchases of wheat had been resumed was the main stimulating factor.

An advance of the Washington gold price to 40 cents above Wednesday's figures fell flat as a market influence, action of gold appearing to have exhausted itself temporarily as a spur for values of grain.

Wheat Closes Strong.

Wheat closed strong at almost the day's top, 3⅜@3⅝ above yesterday's finish; corn, ⅝@1½ up; oats, 1¼@1½ advanced, and provisions at 2 cents to 12 cents decline.

Reinstatement of some large speculative lines of wheat that were abandoned of late accompanied the sudden upshoot of prices. This came chiefly in the final hour of trading and after the fact became apparent that numerous carlots of wheat were being bought here and elsewhere for interests which often represent the Federal Government.

Helping also to give upward impetus to wheat values were moderate purchases for domestic mills, with notice taken that receipts of wheat at primary centers were again showing a small total.

Friends of higher prices for wheat made capital, too, of trade reports estimating the 1933 Canadian wheat crop at only 222,000,000 bushels, compared with recent unofficial estimates of 247,000,000. On the other hand, the fact was emphasized in various quarters that for the first time Russian wheat exports were approaching 2,000,000 bushels a week.

Some uneasiness was expressed over unseasonably high temperatures in Santa Fe and Cardoba Provinces, Argentina, where the wheat crop is in the dough stage, and can easily be damaged.

Corn and oats were sluggish almost the entire day, but turned upward in sympathy with wheat in the late dealings.

Provisions averaged lower, responsive to late setbacks of hog values.

American Silk Mills to Build Weaving Plant

Orange, Va., Oct. 27 (Spl.).—The American Silk Mills, Inc., which has been operating continuously in range since 1929, will erect a new weaving plant here, it is learned today. Work will start on the new building about November 1.

The cost of constructing the weaving plant approximates $30,000. An additional 100 men and women will be employed and this will increase the pay roll $100,000 a year. The satisfactory condition of hiring labor in this section is said to be partly responsible for the expansion of the present mill.

The weaving plant will be conducted in connection with the original throwing-off mill, which employs on the average 300 people and which has been importing raw silk direct from Japan. The raw silk is treated chemically and then spun on spools from skeins, by electrical machinery. After the spools are wound they are packed and shipped to nearby weaving plants in Virginia and Pennsylvania, the thread to be woven into silk cloth. When the installation of the weaving plant is completed, clipping the spools of silk will be unnecessary owing to the fact that the weaving plant will finish the product ready for market.

The throwing-off mill has operated over three years on three eight-hour shifts. The "graveyard" shift from 12 o'clock midnight to 8 o'clock the morning was eliminated when the NRA code went into effect.

Norfolk & Western Railroad loadings for week ended October 21 were 22,932 compared with 23,862 the previous week and 22,822 a year ago.

Champion Liar Source of Fun At Loew's Fox

Jack Pearl, Munchausen; Downey Hit at Earle; Other Programs.

"MEET THE BARON." Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picturization of a story by Herman J. Mankiewicz and Norman Krasna, adapted to the screen by Allen Rivkin and P. J. Wolfson, featuring Jack Pearl, Jimmy Durante and Zasu Pitts, with Ted Healy, Edna May Oliver, Ben Bard and Henry Kolker. Directed by Walter Lang. Music by Jimmy McHugh. Reviewed Friday morning.

Here is the completely lunatic epitome of "nut" comedy—an insistently and, at times, thunderously insane recital, a little coarse, a little suggestive and now and again just a trifle too blatant in its humor, but an hilarious laughing spree, in familiar surroundings, at that.

Familiar surroundings, because unembellished by a musical treatment that owes much to the splendid example set by Maurice Chevalier's "Love Me Tonight" and the infrequent introduction of a group of especially dazzling young women, "Meet the Baron" would be a thoroughly trite repetition of a time-honored and hoary comedy formula.

There have been lost explorers before now who have bogusly assumed the names and identities of greater men to reap undeserved plaudits upon their return to civilization—even to delivering lectures at the various "Cuddle Colleges" which the cinema would have us believe dot the land, all inhabited by feminine enrollments that none but a Flo Ziegfeld of a George White could matriculate.

In form and substance, then, "Meet the Baron" is frankly old stuff. In the manner of its performance, however, it is distinctive and distinguished, in a ribald and lowbrow way, of course.

Boys Go Over Big!

To be brief about it, Baron Munchausen, the counterfeit, is deserted and left to die in the African jungle, with his man McGoo, by the real Baron Munchausen. By a droll trick of Fate, the Baron and his ostensible "manager," this same Joe McGoo, beat the real Baron back to New York and are accorded a reception that would dwarf those accorded Gertrude Ederle, Col. Lindbergh, Wiley Post, and the rest of Gotham's noted guests all rolled into one! Strictly in the spirit of Munchausen's indifference to fact, this.

The Manhattan ceremonies over with, it seems that the chief errand of Baron Munchausen and his manager is to make that speech at Cuddle College, presided over by Edna May Oliver and peopled by as gay a bunch of chorines as ever shed a spangle or bared a knee! What happens at the college when the boys put in an appearance and run afoul of Ted Healy, the janitor, and his three stooges is about what you would expect if you have been around the rowdier places.

Expert Dialectician.

Jack Pearl, making his first important screen appearance in the role of Baron Munchausen, mutilates the King's English after the manner of one of the foremost of the surviving dialecticians and revives a great deal of his various "acts," even going so far as to deliver one of the old-time cross-fires with his former straight man in vaudeville, Ben Bard, as a broadcasting bit in the picture. The impeccable Mr. Bard appears as the Charlie, made famous by Master Pearl's inevitable "Vas you dere, Sharlie?"

Teaming with Pearl most of the way, though, is Jimmy Durante, who only occasionally is as funny as he can be. Edna May Oliver is a college dean, whose liberality of viewpoint goes so far as to sanction some extremely cutaneous displays on the part of the young ladies for whose higher education she is responsible. The shower bath number is a unique conception that fails to become as startling as you expect it to when the water is suddenly shut off! When Mr. Healy and his stooges arrive on the scene to make repairs, however, things are quite as shocking as anyone has any right to anticipate.

The Love Interest.

ZaSu Pitts, as the chambermaid object of Baron Munchausen's—who in reality is the best pants presser in Hoboken, or somewhere—amorous ardor, plays the susceptible slavey with her accustomed fluttery humor and magnificent indecision in the matter of what to do with her hands. The remainder of the cast and all of the chorus are above reproach in their contributions to an indelicate and high-power symposium of rapid-fire comedy gags.

On the stage, Ted Lewis returns with virtually the same elaborate revue with which he was last seen in the Capital—an impressive example of consummate showmanship in which the talents of many clever people, led by the "high-hatted tragedian of jazz" himself, are employed.

Of Ted Lewis and his band nothing remains to be said. They are in a class by themselves and seem to grow steadily better from year to year. Assisting the old master on this visit are Doris Deane, Mildred Gaye and Esther Pressman—although your reviewer has not the faintest notion which is which; the Dixie Four, a colored male quartet; Charles ("Snowball") Whittier, of "Me and My Shadow" and "Peanut Vendor" fame; Paul White, Ted Lewis, jr., and Carroll and Shalita, dancers.

The bill is completed by the Fox Movietone News and Phil Lampkin's "Faust" overture—and a very excellent fun-and-frolic bill it is, too.

"EVER IN MY HEART." Warner Brothers' picturization of a story by Beulah Marie Dix and Bertram Millhauser, starring Barbara Stanwyck, supported by Otto Kruger and Ralph Bellamy. Directed by Archie Mayo. Reviewed Friday morning.

With Barbara Stanwyck painting in broad, clear strokes the genesis and effects of illy begotten wartime prejudices and with Morton Downey singing in top form, where would one look for something to criticize?

Striking out in a different mood, but yet in a role admirably suited to her talents, Miss Stanwyck depicts the tragedy descending upon her happy married life with a naturalized German by the advent of the war. Painfully realizing that though an American citizen he will never be an American, he forsakes home and adopted country and returns to Germany to fight, but with his wife "ever in my heart."

Though divorcing Hugo, Mary goes abroad to serve in the canteens, with Hugo also "ever in my heart." Hugo turns up as a German spy behind the American lines. About to be captured, Mary saves him, only a little later to join him in self-inflicted death.

Shows Repression.

Not the raving Miss Stanwyck of some of her earlier pictures, but a subdued, deliberate Miss Stanwyck here comes to the front—a change wholly for the better. While retaining all of the desirable Stanwyck traits and capabilities, she stands forth now as an actress able to make her role the dominating one by sheer force of thoughtful, powerful delineation.

As the ill-fated German-American husband is Otto Kruger, in a role that is not only in full keeping with the spirit of the picture, but an admirable complement of Miss Stanwyck's in repressed craftsmanship. Ralph Bellamy plays the part of a mutual friend untouched by war prejudices. Others in the cast include Ruth Donnelly, Laura Hope Crews, Frank Albertson, Donald Meek, Elizabeth Patterson and Florence Roberts.

Morton Downey, heart-palpitator for thousands, never sang better either over the air or footlights than he did yesterday. All pepped up and r'aring to go, Mr. Downey gave and gave, and even after "Sweetheart Darling," "It's the Talk of the Town," "The Last Round Up," "Love Is the Sweetest Thing," "The Rosary," and "When Irish Eyes Are Smiling," the audience voiced in no uncertain terms its hearty disapproval of the stage hands' closing the gold traveler! Phil Philips accompanied at the piano.

Though Mr. Downey's contribution could have been all and satisfied the patrons, it was not. With Guy Wonders acting (via the p. a. system) as mistress—pardon, master—of ceremonies, Mulroy, McNeese and Ridge opened the show with a roller-skating act that was unusual for the tap dancing presented. Hunter and Percival (the latter a charming blonde), offer a line of songs and chatter entitled "Wopology," from Hunter's murderous assaults upon the English tongue.

Harriet Elkind, violin virtuosa, in "Perpetuum Mobile" (Novacek) and "Mighty Lak' a Rose" shows a complete mastery of the instrument. Unusual for an act of this sort, Miss Elkind's accompanist, playing from the orchestra pit, is our own Robert Stickney. The last act is Don Lee and Trunida in two dance numbers, of which "Le Serpent" is the more startling in conception and thrilling in execution. Tiny Rosen, the dancers' trumpeter, toots a mean horn and adds tremendously to the snake number.

Nell Paxton at Organ.

Not the least surprising and acceptable of the week's innovations is Nell Paxton's return to the console, joining forces not only with Charles Frederick Clark and the boys in the "Faust" overture, but doing the accompaniment for Mr. Downey's "The Rosary."

"A Day With Dick Powell" may be mentioned as a diverting short subject, narrated a la Pete Smith, even though it is a plug for "Footlight Parade." A release of the Universal News rounds out the program.

Columbia

"THE HEADLINE SHOOTER." RKO-Radio picturization of a story by Agnes Christine Johnston and Allen Rivkin. Featuring William Gargan, Frances Dee, Ralph Bellamy and Jack La Rue, with Gregory Ratoff, Dorothy Burgess, Purnell Pratt, Franklin Pangborn and Robert Benchley. Directed by Otto Brower. Reviewed Friday afternoon.

The dangerous and thrilling existence of a news camerman is personified in Bill Allen, who always "gets his shots." He is fond of gals, likker and excitement, with the usual cinema moments of repressed he-man sentimentality.

Jane Mallory is a sob sister with a predilection for borrowing cigarettes and an uncomfortable habit of bemoaning the hard-boiled life thrust upon cameramen, newspaper women and others of the ilk that supply the public's insatiable demand for excitement in the world of news. She longs for peace and security but finds that she is unable to resist the call of a good "scoop" and the dare-devil fascination of her cameraman.

Frances Dee isn't quite sure of the part of Jane Mallory. She leaves the impression of being the star pupil of the journalism class who is out busily engaged in gathering collegiate gossip for the campus newspaper. William Gargan, as Bill Allen, is the latest of the Hollywood wisecrackers. Vaguely reminiscent of William Haines in his heyday, and that later favorite in the world of flippancy, Lee Tracy, he fails to produce the dynamic charm which characterizes those stars.

However, "Headline Shooter" is bolstered up by some exceptionally fine photography and a supporting cast that has all too little to do. Ralph Bellamy appears as the suitor who can furnish the peace and security Jane feels is necessary to her happiness. Wallace Ford, as Mike, the ill-fated cameraman with the ever-present whisky bottle, does a splendid bit. Jack LaRue, Dorothy Burgess, Gregory Ratoff, Henry B. Walthall, Franklin Pangborn and Kitty Kelly appear in brief bits that are nicely polished—as does that eminent comic, Robert Benchley.

A screamingly nonsensical Edgar Kennedy comedy, a Paramount News and a Song Hit Story, entitled "Slow Poke," featuring Stepin Fechet, complete the bill.

Metropolitan

"THE KENNEL MURDER CASE." Warner Brothers' picturization of the story by S. S. Van Dyne, starring William Powell, with Mary Astor, Frank Conroy, Robert Barrat, Jack La Rue, Frank Morgan, James Lee, Helen Vinson and Eugene Pallette. Directed by Michael Curtiz. Reviewed Friday afternoon, second week.

Among the authors whose works have been the most maltreated by motion picture adapters is S. S. Van Dyne, but in "The Kennel Murder Case," the latest Philo Vance story, both in book form and on the screen, the greatest of all modern ratiocinators gets a well-deserved "break."

Second only to "The 'Canary' Murder Case," as literature, is the present work, yet despite unwarranted freedom taken with the titular implications, this picturization is easily the best screen transcription which has been made.

As the picture stands, it ranks high among its kind, depicting the solution of a seemingly insoluble double murder—just the sort of thing that you would expect the great Philo Vance to do. With care and deliberation, Vance undertakes the case and pursues it, clew by clew, to a successful close.

Picture Follows Book.

In all essential details, save one, the picture follows more closely than usual the printed narrative. In the book, however, it is through Vance's knowledge of the American Kennel Club and the "psychology" of dogs (especially Scotch terriers) and their reactions to various types of masters that he is led to the correct solution.

Notwithstanding this discrepancy, cinemadicts will revel in William Powell's return to the role of Vance. With the same suavity that characterizes his work, as well as the very person of Philo Vance, Mr. Powell paints so convincing a picture of the detective that more and more he himself seems to be actually Vance—as William Gillette is indeed the incarnation of Sherlock Holmes.

One by one Vance takes the characters and psychoanalyzes them, so to speak, seeking a solution for the mystery, the murder of the brothers Coe, played by Robert Barat and Frank Conroy.

Rounding out the program is "Rufus Jones for President," an all-colored revuelet with Ethel Waters singing her famed "Am I Blue?" in a parody on "Ot Thee I Sing," a Betty Boop cartoon and the Paramount News

Maxwell Anderson Talks Poems and "Big Bad Wolf"

Dramatist Says Great Plays Must Wait on Verse Writer.

Maxwell Anderson, the dramatist, who this week gave Washington playgoers an intimate view into the life of Mary of Scotland, believes that moving pictures do not count as part of our Nation's art and that the "Three Little Pigs" and their nemesis, the "Big Bad Wolf," have more significance than all the picture dramas that Hollywood has produced or ever will produce.

Current drama of significance there is none, Anderson said, but as he was granted an interview only once before to newspapers he refused to be quoted.

A former newspaperman and dramatic critic, himself, with an undisguised dislike for copy paper and pencils, he explained yesterday why he avoids reporters. An engaging conversationalist, he discussed in his room at the Carlton Hotel the reasons for his stand.

"Lines from his plays may be quoted. Yes. All his political philosophy is contained in his Pulitzer prize play, "Both Your Houses," in which he says that all government in the modern sense is thoroughly corrupt. He is contemplating no plays on the current political scene because in his play, "Both Your Houses," he sums it up with:

"The sole business of governments is graft, special privilege and corruption, with a by-product of order, because they have to keep order or they can't make collections." These are the words spoken in the play by the veteran congressman to a young politician.

Anderson believes that the greatest dramas were produced in the days when there were no critics—the eras that gave Aeschylus, Sophocles (whose Greek tragedy, "Oedipus Rex," is Anderson's favorite), Moliere and the Elisabethan playwrights, Shakespeare and Ben Jonson, to the stage.

On the only occasion when Anderson has allowed himself to be quoted, he said, "If we are going to have a great theater in this country, somebody has to write verse, even if it is badly written." And America may produce great dramatists in the next 10 years, provided they write in verse, he predicted yesterday.

Newspapers no longer interest Mr. Anderson, and he has given up paying any attention to their daily enthusiasms and tales of corruption. He dislikes them because he thinks they print the same things day after day with an appeal only to the mob.

But he thinks there have been flashes of greatness in plays that have had no box-office appeal. These, he concluded, contained bits of poetic greatness in the form of verse.

Wide Response To Contest by Capital Poets

Marie Dressler's Birthday Inspires Many Rhymed Felicitations.

The recent announcement of the Marie Dressler birthday poem contest brought forth a response that sets a new record—both in numbers and in sentiment!

Looks as if everybody loves the veteran Miss Dressler—and wants to express that affection in poetry.

And then again, maybe, that $250 national prize with the local cash and ticket prizes is an inspiration, too!

Just in case you have not read about it as yet, here are the bare facts: The Post, in conjunction with Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer and the Loew theaters, is offering cash prizes for the best four to eight line poems extending birthday greetings to Marie Dressler. On November 9, the entire country is celebrating the sixty-second birthday anniversary of this beloved screen star—with President Roosevelt and Mrs. Roosevelt leading in the unusual tribute.

So The Post is giving Marie's Washington admirers a chance to express their sentiment in poetry—and compete for substantial cash awards. The first prize, picked from poems sent in throughout the country, is $250. Miss Dressler will pick this winner herself from the best poems sent to her by each city.

In addition, local prizes of $15 and $10 will be awarded, and guest tickets presented to winning contestants who do not succeed in winning any of th cash prizes.

Miss Dressler's birthday production, "Christopher Bean," will be the attraction at the Palace during Miss Dressler's birthday week.

The contest will continue until midnight Friday, November 3.

Post Will Aid High Students To Hear Opera

Reserves 6,000 Tickets for Verdi's "Aida" Nov. 25 Matinee.

Six thousand seats for a special matinee performance of Verdi's immortal opera "Aida" were reserved for high school students in the Capital area by The Washington Post yesterday.

To give music students of high school age opportunity to hear an outstanding opera without interference with their classroom work, the International Opera Company, which is bringing to the Capital a week of the world's finest operas, has scheduled "Aida," one of the most important of the Verdi compositions, for performance in Washington Auditorium the afternoon of Saturday, November 25.

With the cooperation of principals and teachers in Washington and nearby Virginia and Maryland counties, The Post will distribute reserved seats for this performance at 40 and 25 cents.

"Aida" will be sung by a cast from New York's Metropolitan Opera Company, leading roles being assigned to Martino-Rossi, barytone; Emilia Vergeri, dramatic soprano, and Fortunato De Angelis, tenor. The opera will be staged in the Metropolitan manner, with full scenic and lighting effects, ballet, chorus and orchestra. It will be conducted by Gabrielle Simeoni, the International Opera Company's ace conductor.

In bringing "Aida" to high school music students at the lowest prices in Capital opera history, Maurice Frank, director of the opera company, follows in the footsteps of the late Oscar Hammerstein as one of the few native-born American grand opera impresarios who believe in grand opera as a medium of cultural entertainment for all.

With the same opera Mr. Frank tested his theories in a presentation in the Kingsbridge Armory in New York before an audience of 35,000. At this performance 5,000 disabled war veterans, the same number of gold-star mothers, and pupils from 48 schools were admitted free. From 1922 to 1932 Frank set a record for open-air operatic performances with a series in the Polo Grounds, New York, with an average attendance of more than 10,000.

Louise Proctor Engle, of The Washington Post, has been placed in charge of ticket allotments to the schools.

Retreat Conducted Nov. 3-5.

A retreat will be conducted November 3-5 by the Third Order Fraternity, Capuchin College, at 4000 Harewood road. Dr. Feliz M. Kirsch, Catholic University, will be in charge. The retreat wil linclude conferences and religious services.

U. S. Expected To Denounce Steel Rail Bids

Eastman Will Make Public Letter Protesting $37.75 Fine.

Joseph B. Eastman, rail coordinator, will make public today a letter to steel magnates concerning bids submitted on steel rails to be bought by railroads with public works money.

This letter, it is understood, will score steel manufacturers for their reported failure to cooperate in carrying out the proposed buying program.

Following a conference yesterday afternoon between the President and Eastman, it was announced at the White House that Eastman would make public his letter to the steel companies.

A proposal was put forth a month ago to finance the purchase of more than $36,000,000 worth of new steel rails.

President Roosevelt then conferred with steel magnates at the White House and was assured they would offer competitive bids.

On October 4, the administration asked for bids from four steel companies on 844,525 tons of steel rails for 47 railroads.

The similarity of bids received on the rails, all in the neighborhood of $37.75 a ton, indicated they were not as "competitive" as the administration expected.

President Rosevelt has been of the opinion the price of steel rails was too high, and that the situation was retarding railroad trackage improvement.

Secretary Ickes, administrator of public works, grinned broadly when asked if he considered the bids "competitive."

Hitler's Fall Seen By Henry J. Allen

Former Kansas Senator For Soviet Recognition.

Lawrence, Kans., Oct. 27 (AP).—Prediction of a political change in Germany soon with Hitler being overthrown was made here today by former Senator Henry J. Allen, of Kansas, in an address before a University of Kansas convocation.

Allen returned recently from Europe, where he studied conditions in Russia and Germany. He advocates recognition of the Soviet government, saying "it has always been the American policy to recognize any country that could sustain itself."

Found!

Science Discovers a New Chemicla in Nerves.

Woods Hole, Mass., Oct. 27 (AP).—New signs of a chemical activity in the nerves have been found at the Marine Biological Laboratory here.

One nerve action now known for many years is the slight electrical charges of partly chemical origin carrying the nerve messages to various parts of the body.

The newly found chemical also is a messenger, but it has the power to leave the nerves and carry orders to areas which have no direct contact with their nerves. It is a slow-moving messenger, taking hours or days to move a distance which the electrical impulses traverse in the hundredth part of a second.

But this new chemical is apparently a repair man, and study of its movements promises new light on hitherto unrecognized body mechanisms.

Colonials Rout West Va. Wesleyan, 33-0, Before 9,000 in Night Game

Eyes of East on Army-Yale and Fordham-Alabama Clashes Today

This Morning

With Shirley L. Povich.

UNDAUNTED, as the saying goes, I am leading with the old Povich chin again this morning. With no ceremony, no excuses and for no good reason, I am beating the second guessers to the punch by hauling off and letting fly with my prognostications of today's football games.

Yale-Army—This is no time to desert a winner, and Army's 6-0 victory over Illinois looks more impressive than anything Yale has done this season. And with $10,000,000 allotted by the Public Works Administration for the motorization of the Army, why pick Yale? Okay, then, Army.

Fordham-Alabama—Call it flying into the face of fate, if you will, but my operatives down in Tuscaloosa tell me the storm warnings are out. While the rest of the country is pondering Fordham's chances for the Rose Bowl game invitation, I am boldly declaring for Alabama.

Harvard-Dartmouth—Methinks the Dartmouth team that beat Penn didn't have much to beat, if you are still following me. More people are after Coach Eddie Casey's scalp than were after Custer's. Harvard must show something soon. Today should be the day. With a prayer, then, Harvard.

Notre Dame-Pitt—This one used to be easy for the experts. But I am reminded that the Irish have only scored 12 points this season. Pitt is packed with power this year despite that upset by Minnesota. It's Pitt, because Weinstock can kick field goals.

Penn-Navy—Lest it be forgotten, Navy was a crippled team against Pitt. Borries is back in the back field, and Borries is the berries. The Quakers are no great shucks this season. Neither is Navy, for that matter, but, as far as I'm concerned it's Ship Ahoy, Navy.

Princeton-Washington and Lee—There is nothing sophomoric about those Princeton sophomores on the football field. The Virginians are all right in their class, but they appear outclassed today. I'm not forgetting their win over Kentucky, but I can't get that 20-0 defeat of Columbia by Princeton out of my mind, either. Very firmly, then—Princeton.

Georgia-New York U.—The Violets are no longer violent. And Georgia is unbeaten. The Bulldogs are tough to beat on Georgia soil and N. Y. U. has shown little to recommend it. With very little fear—Georgia.

Minnesota-Iowa—The Hawkeyes are coming along in the Big Ten, but Minnesota is the team that beat Pitt. However, if 10,000 Swedes don't jump out of the weeds, I'll take Iowa, and don't say I didn't tell you.

Michigan-Chicago—Nice boys, those Maroons, but Michigan isn't trifling this season. The team that can beat Ohio State helps me to make up my mind. It's Michigan then, and they'll be seeing you in the Rose Bowl.

Wisconsin-Purdue—There's joy on the banks of the Wabash this season and sadness on the lake front. The Boilermakers should win this one comfortably, if not easier than that.

Georgetown-William and Mary. Those Hilltop cripples make it easy for me. With their best backs on the bench, the Hoyas are on the long end. Bill and Mary should take this one. If I'm wrong, it's okay with me.

Duke-Kentucky—The Dukes pack a wallop this year and Ol' Kaintuck ain't what she used to be. The Blue Devils are leaving the nether regions of football under Wallace Wade, and I'm stringing along.

Virginia-V. M. I.—The Cavaliers have been getting gay of late with close games against Columbia and Navy and this game has all the earmarks of a close one. V. M. I. is nobody's pushover, but methinks they will be pushed around a bit this afternon. Virginia, with hope.

Ohio State-Northwestern—This is making it tough for the pickers. But Ohio State should take the Wildcats on the rebound of the defeat by Michigan. I know Northwestern held Stanford scoreless, but I'm still picking the Buckeyes.

California-Southern California—It's hard to believe that the Trojans have deteriorated so much in one season. It's not going out on a limb when you pick a team that hasn't lost in 26 games. Anyway, who's afraid of the big bad Bears?

George Washington-West Va. Wesleyan—The Colonials ought to take this one by about five touchdowns. Watch Tuffy Leemans. He'll probably take the opening kick-off back for a touchdown, if Wesleyan chooses to kick, heh, heh.

Marions Practice.

The Marions will practice today at 1 o'clock on the Gonzaga Field. All players are requested to report.

Notre Dame-Navy Football Game—Baltimore, Md.—Sat., Nov. 4th, 1933.

TAKING its cue from the Navy Day aerial show in the milky-blue sky, far to the southwest of Central Stadium, McKinley Tech defeated a rugged Western High School eleven, 13 to 6, yesterday, with two well-timed tosses through the air to hang up its second interhigh game in as many weeks.

It has been quite a while since Hap Hardell's team has been so threatened by an interhigh opponent, not alone scored upon, and the Georgetown entry, minus the breaks that fate dished out to the plucky red team, might have galloped off with the game on a reverse count. Anyhow——

It was not the power house smashes that brought the Technicians into striking district of the Western goal line, but the sleeping secondary defense of Western that accounted for the two Technical scores. A blocked Western kick, recovered by a McKinley lad on the Georgetowners' 18-yard stripe, was followed by a long lazy heave thrown by Pisani into the waiting arms of Coiner, left end, who went over for the score.

Trick Works Again.

In the third period the same combination worked the same stuff by the airways—Pisano to Coiner—from the 22-yard line for the score. McLean, substitute Tech end, had recovered a Western fumble on the 22 for the immediate score.

The first frame was entirely with the Westerns, and it was one of those tough breaks that changed a touchdown into a touchback for the Manual Trainers. Love, Western guard, returned a punt from his own 57 to the Tech 21. Schneider made a first down on the Tech 9 and on the fourth play went over for the sure touchdown, but fumbled, Pisano recovering the ball for an automatic touchback.

Western's lone marker occurred half way through the final period, when Schleicker, on a hidden sneak around the left side of the line, advanced the ball from midfield to the McKinley 20. A short pass over the line, Corcoran to Schleicker, netted 5 yards and then the red-jerseyed Schleicker ripped off right tackle for the score.

One of the bright spots in the loser's line-up was this lad Bob

Major Teams Risk Clean Records

Pitt-Notre Dame and Harvard-Dartmouth Among Features.

Iowa-Minnesota Meet in Big Ten; Trojans Face California.

(Associated Press.)

EASTERN spices add the high touch of flavor to the Nation's football dish today as the West, the Midwest and the South gorge for the day on solid, substantial standbys of midseason.

While the undefeated Crimson Tide of Alabama rolls into the New York Polo Grounds for intersectional battle with Fordham's unconquered Rams, the Army marches on Yale, Dartmouth's ever-dangerous Indians tackle Harvard, and New York University moves against unbeaten Georgia at Athens.

Two of the East's mightiest move into the Midwest to add intersectional color to a day devoted otherwise in the plains country to mopping up loose ends in the Big Ten struggle and further clearing of the way toward the Big Six championship.

Pittsburgh's Panthers, unexpectedly whipped last week by Minnesota, return for revenge against the sorriest Notre Dame eleven South Bend has seen since the death of Knute Rockne. Syracuse, so far unscathed, wars against Michigan State, one of the two Midwest elevens to whip the Upstate New Yorkers last fall. Vengeance already has been visited upon Ohio Wesleyan by Syracuse.

Michigan Bucks Chicago.

With Ohio State, considered the greatest obstacle in Michigan's path to a second straight conference title, wiped out of contention last Saturday, the Wolverines concentrate on Chicago, less robust opposition. Purdue is paired with Wisconsin and Minnesota with Iowa in two hard, even matches.

Now that Oregon State has shown that Howard Jones' Southern California Trojans can be held even, California's Golden Bears are hopeful of victory for the first time since 1929 in the leading engagement on the Pacific Coast. Stanford is slightly favored to beat Washington while U. C. L. A. and Oregon lock in an even duel in two other Far Western headliners.

Nebraska, moving steadily along toward another Big Six title, encounters Oklahoma, while Kansas and Kansas State, advancing from the opposite side, fight each other to preserve their title chances. Missouri and Iowa State, both beaten, complete the Big Six feature in a consolation tussle.

With Alabama and Georgia devoting the day to intersectional combat, the South finds most of its nourishment in Tennessee's effort to come back against Florida after two defeats, and Duke's continuation of the victory parade against Kentucky. Texas Christian, not riding so high in the Southwest this year, bumps against Centenary's sturdy defenses, while Southern Methodist and Arkansas heave at each other in a duel which may decide the conference title.

Springsteel and Hope to Do Beat Winooka in Fast Sprint

THREE cheers for Winooka and a couple of bushels of raspberries, or the Australian equivalent, for Jockey Edgar Britt. That was the consensus of opinion yesterday as the Anzac champion ran a winning race and wound up in third position at nearby Laurel. Britt's ears must have burned as he passed the judge's stand behind Springsteel and Hope To Do. Winooka's long, flowing tail was hardly over the finish line before blame for defeat bounced from the horse to the jockey like a rubber ball.

Winooka was in front yesterday. Unlike last Wednesday when he faded back just before the stretch turn, the Australian champion now had the lead. From the three-sixteenth pole to the quarter pole, Winooka was setting the pace with a wide open track ahead. Yes, Winooka was redeeming himself.

A Workman, a Coucci, a Garner or a Bellizzi could have kept the big horse going on to victory, so say the experts. Winooka didn't falter but Britt did. He timidly rode his mount. A fraction of a second and Springsteel and Hope To Do bounded up. Instead of clear sailing, Winooka was now in tight quarters on the rail and, as was the case in Winooka's first appearance, Britt was pulling up at the finish.

The time of 1:11 3-5 for the six furlongs proves that Winooka is a much better horse than he showed last Wednesday, when he was nine lengths behind Mate in 1:12 4-5. Today Winooka carried 126 pounds, giving away much weight to his opposition. Some 26 pounds of the assignment consisted of lead strips in saddle bags, with Britt, of course, making up the rest.

Strangely, those who stayed to see the eighth race witnessed a revelation in horse racing. Trevallion, Winooka's stablemate, went to the post with Britt in the saddle. Thought to be little more than a stable pony, Trevallion outclassed a fair field of platers to come romp-

Horse Falls Dead On Laurel Track; Autopsy Ordered

Laurel stewards yesterday ordered an autopsy to be performed this morning on Rapscallion, 3-year-old gelding, owned by J. L. McKnight, which fell dead during the running of the seventh race.

The stewards' attentions were aroused before the race when Rapscallion acted crazily at the barrier and delayed the start for several minutes before he was placed outside the stalls for the break.

After 5 furlongs of the race, the horse reared, snorted and fell, throwing Jockey Burrill to the ground.

Track Veterinarian Dr. H. J. McCarthy notified Boyd Martin, Federal narcotic supervisor of the Baltimore district, and then ordered the autopsy. The Federal men have been active in investigating doping on American tracks.

Federal narcotic men, representatives of the Maryland Racing Commission and Laurel stewards will be present at the autopsy today. Specimens will be submitted to laboratories here and in Baltimore.

Last week, Rapscallion ran away for 6 furlongs before the start.

20 Ohio State Players Ask Radio Ban

Would Bar Sports Writer for Criticism of Coach Willaman.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Oct. 27 (AP). On the eve of their home-coming game with Northwestern, 20 senior classmen on the Ohio State University football team issued a statement attacking a State representative and former Ohio coach and demanding he be barred from broadcasting the game over the school's station. At the same time, the 20 players expressed confidence in Head Coach Sam Willaman and his staff. Yesterday Athletic Director L. W. St. John also expressed confidence in Willaman's ability.

In a brief statement, the players asserted they did not believe it "fitting and proper" that State Representative Grant Ward, a local sports writer, "be allowed to broadcast the home-coming game as the unofficial voice of the university." Ward, who has broadcast home games for the last three years on the university's own radio station, could not be located for comment.

Ward was line coach at Ohio State under Dr. John Wilce and in 1925, when the latter resigned, was not rehired.

For the last two years Ward has been conducting a campaign to oust Willaman as director of football by attacking his policies and coaching ability. The campaign reached its peak this week when, writing in the Ohio State Journal, he criticized the coaching staff for the team's failure to defeat Michigan.

In one article he said "Willaman is just another football coach * * * and for more reasons than one the writer is of the opinion that he has outlived his usefulness as coach at Ohio State University."

In the same article Ward hinted that he would institute a legislative investigation into the activity of the athletic department unless Willaman was replaced.

Two Maryland Teams Clash For Title

Baltimore Game Expected to Show Merits of Dull Elevens.

NEITHER aspirants for the national championship, nor proud possessors of undefeated records, but just a couple of mediocre football teams trying to settle the State championship, Maryland and Western Maryland will clash at 2:30 today at Municipal Stadium, Baltimore.

Not in a long time have Maryland's football fortunes been as low as this season. At the moment the lads are industriously accumulating one of the most depressing losing streaks in the school's history. The Terrapins trimmed St. John's, 20-0, in traditional opening-day style, and haven't won a game since. V. P. I., Tulane and V. M. I. stopped them on successive Saturdays.

Primed to Win.

Today Western Maryland hopes to extend the string another notch, and from all indications has an excellent chance to do so. The Green Terrors have won three of their four engagements with Maryland. It's getting to be something of a habit.

Western Maryland's current record is not all that could be desired, but it's much better than that of its rival, inasmuch as two of four games played went into the win column. St. Thomas and Duquesne tripped the Terrors, but decisions over Mount St. Mary's and Georgetown were sweet balm for the wounds.

The Terrors were most impressive in bowling over a crippled Georgetown eleven last week.

Panthers Favored Over Notre Dame

40,000 Expected to Watch Pittsburghers Win.

South Bend, Ind., Oct. 27 (AP).—A crowd of 40,000 spectators will settle in the Notre Dame stadium tomorrow afternoon to witness the battle between the University of Pittsburgh and Notre Dame, with a lot of apprehension as to what will happen.

The Pittsburghers, after a long workout today, displayed such sparkling form that their coach, Dr. John B. Sutherland, predicted a victory for his warriors.

Heartley Anderson, coach of the Fighting Irish, gloomily gave indication that Notre Dame would lose by two touchdowns.

There will be no shock troops starting tomorrow for Notre Dame after what happened last week against Carnegie Tech. Coach Anderson indicated, but there may be some of the shockers starting in there in the role of regulars.

Earnshaw's Sale to Red Sox Is New Report Despite Denials

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 27 (AP).—Old Man Rumor is again selling the star performers of the Philadelphia Athletics, but Connie Mack says the buyers and traders have not taken him in on the deals.

The latest reports have it that the A's are selling Robert Mose Grove, left-handed pitching ace, for $200,000; Second Baseman Max Bishop and possibly another pitcher. The Inquirer said tonight, however, it had learned from a "source at Shibe Park" that George Earnshaw, big right-hand pitcher of the A's—"and not Bob Grove"—would go to Boston, along with Bishop.

The paper adds that "in the last few days both Eddie Collins, general manager of the Red Sox, and George Earnshaw have been in conference with Connie Mack," and that after the conference Collins "hurried back to Boston."

Earnshaw was retired by Mack during the last month of the 1933 campaign, and at that time rumors were rife that Earnshaw was slated for sale or trade.

"There's nothing to the report about Grove," said Mack. "Tomorrow it will be somebody else. We'll have our whole club sold before the season starts. I hope they get plenty of money for us in these trades. We need it."

"I won't be put on the spot," said Mack today commenting on the reports. "I will not say I will or will not do this or that in the future for I do not know what the future holds for us. But right now there has been no sale, deal or trade for any member of my team."

G. U. Battles Indians at Stadium

Crippled Hilltop Team Hopes for Season's Second Victory.

BUFFETED about by adverse winds that have driven it upon the shoals of defeat twice this season and prevented it from reaching the haven of victory in any major engagement, a crippled Georgetown eleven will strive again to check its losing streak when it encounters William and Mary at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon at Griffith Stadium.

The last blow at Georgetown's pride was delivered a week ago today at Baltimore, where the Green Terrors of Western Maryland swarmed over the Blue and Gray to score a 20-0 victory. Before that was a 20-20 tie with Manhattan and a 6-0 defeat by Canisius.

Georgetown is handicapped by a small squad that has been stripped to the bone by a series of injuries. The Hoyas fought with their backs to the wall in the last two games, using players who ordinarily would be given more time for rest if the squad were larger.

Old Reliables Hurt.

A patched-up team will face the Indians this afternoon. Six shifts have been made in an effort to bolster the weak defense and ragged offense. Frank Williamson, a tackle suffering from bad wrists, will be used at center, replacing Capt. Fred Callahan, who is still out with a bad shoulder.

Muti will start for Chappa at end, Walacavage takes the place of Al Cohen; Hillery Costello has drawn the quarter back assignment in place of Saverine, Katalinas will replace Downer at tackle, and Joe Meglin will be at half back for Nick Viskovitch.

This Joe Meglin will bear watching today. It is his first opportunity in a starting assignment, but he has shown well the few times he was sent in as a substitute.

Indians Also Lamed.

William and Mary arrived early last night and proceeded immediately to the Roosevelt Hotel. Like their host, the Southerners have been hampered by injuries, but not as greatly as the Hilltoppers. Waddy Stewart and Gerry Quirk, tackles, who were out of the Guilford game because of injuries, will be back at their regular posts.

William and Mary's prize ball carrier is Ed Palese, a small but elusive half back and a triple-threater. He played an important role in the team's victory over Guilford last week. Chalko, quarter back; Worrall, half back, and Young, full back, round out the quartet.

Wake Forest Bows, 12-0, To C. U.

Jankowski Leads Cards to Victory After First Half Is Scoreless.

WAKE FOREST, N. C., Oct. 27 (Spl.).—Exhibiting a superior brand of football, Catholic University defeated the Demon Deacons of Wake Forest, 12 to 0. The smooth-working Notre Dame system pushed across two touchdowns, one in the third quarter and the final in the fourth quarter on a neatly executed lateral.

The first touchdown resulted from the fine running of T. Gearty, Oliver and Jankowski, although T. Gearty's passing gave his team two first downs in this drive.

After Oliver intercepted Martin's pass on his own 47-yard line, Jankowski and Oliver made a first down through the line which was followed by another first down on a pass, T. Gearty to Mulligan, to Wake Forest's 3-yard stripe.

On the second play Jankowski went around end to score. An attempted pass failed for the extra point.

Wake Forest muffed a golden opportunity to score in the first period, when after a sustained drive from midfield they placed the ball on Catholic U.'s 3-yard line. However, two 5-yard penalties, one after Martin had crossed the goal line, cost the Deacons the score.

Make Lone Threat.

This was the only time that Catholic's goal was threatened, although Wake Forest completed several passes for nice gains, but each time the strong Catholic line held for downs.

Catholic U. tallied again in the fourth from the 15-yard line on a beautiful lateral, T. Gearty to Jankowski, who ran the remaining yards without interference.

Karpowich, substitute tackle, stopped numerous plays attempted by the North Carolinians. He was ably assisted in the line by Lyons, White, T. Nally and Fleming, although too much credit can not be given to the entire forward wall of the Catholic team.

Wake Forest, playing without the services of three regulars and four substitutes, played one of their best games of the season. Time and time

55,000 Will Watch Yale-Army Battle

Cadets Favored, but Both Are Full Strength.

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 27 (U.P.). More than 55,000 fans are expected to swarm into Yale Bowl tomorrow to see the unbeaten Army and Yale football teams collide, despite threats of unfavorable weather. The cadets are favored, but the Elis have plenty of backers.

Both squads held brief practice sessions today at the bowl. They will be virtually at full strength. The entire West Point Cadet Corps will arrive by bus tomorrow forenoon and march into the bowl at 1:30 p. m. The game starts at 2 p. m.

Proof that football interest at Yale has been revived in a big way was given tonight when a monster rally was held. Dean Clarence Mendell, Head Coach Reggie Root, Adam Walsh and Capt. Lassiter were speakers.

LED by "Tuffy" Leemans, a whirling dervish with the mercury-like stride of a thoroughbred and the twisting, sliding motions of a barber shop pole, George Washington stormed through a weak little West Virginia Wesleyan team to a 33-0 triumph, its fourth of the campaign, at Griffith Stadium last night. A crowd of 9,000 fans draped themselves around the field, a blurred brown patch in a bluish haze of cigarette smoke.

It was Leemans who sealed Wesleyan's fate with a 97-yard run back of the opening kick-off for a touchdown; who later in the same period brought the assemblange to its feet with a brilliant 71-yard jaunt through a broken field for another touchdown, and who registered again in the second quarter, cutting a zigzag path 31 yards through a field of would-be tacklers.

Leemans in Hero Role.

Leemans was the ball game. He hiked the pigskin 181½ yards into enemy territory, for an average gain in excess of 10 yards. He did all of the kicking, and pegged the ball 37 yards to Finis Parrish, placing it in position for Johnny Baker's run that produced the final touchdown of the game.

How Wesleyan ever managed to check New York University and boot a field goal for a 3-0 victory will never be quite clear to the spectators who saw them thrust back into a tangled mass of arms and legs by G. W.'s mighty line, which yielded only 21½ yards in the entire game. Joe Hall, a Washington youth, played a whale of a game for the visitors, but Joe was on the wrong side of the line last night.

Hall accounted for the majority of what few gains Wesleyan made, and engineered the team's only scoring threat with two accurate passes to Rine and Spears. This was in the third period when West Virginia penetrated to the 23-yard line, where its running game refused to function and its aerials were either batted down or intercepted by an alert G. W. secondary.

Doose Romps 33 Yards.

Chris Doose, substitute full back, filling injured Don Bomba's shoes, exploded off tackle in between Leeman's second and third scoring runs, and romped 33 yards for G. W.'s second touchdown. Doose shared most of the ball carrying with Leemans, gaining 124 yards in 21 trips. Baker and Plotnicki were the only other backs to haul the pigskin.

Johnny Baker duplicated his run of the Auburn game, slicing through tackle in a reverse play, cutting back to the opposite side of the field for a 33-yard race to the goal line. G. W.'s linemen and

Winooka Runs 3d in Laurel Sprint Won by Springsteel in Fast Time of 1:11 3-5

Britt's Ride No Help to Invader

ing home at $32.40 to win, $27.80 to place and $18.20 to show. And if Britt rode a Marlboro race on Winooka, he certainly put up a Belmont Park ride on Trevallion.

Britt showed no timidity on Trevallion going to the first turn from No. 10 post position. He kept one eye peeled on the fast breakers of the field, stayed on the outside to the first turn, kept his mount out of trouble, moved into the lead and drew away. If he had ridden half as hard on Winooka in the stretch as he did on Trevallion, which was a good six lengths in front, the number of the Australian champion would have dangled from the results board in the win slot.

Trevallion's stake horse victory over selling platers turned the laugh on American horsemen. A check for $1,200 deposited in the claiming box before the race would have allowed any one to lead Trevallion away.

Aside from the fact that Winooka was walked to the paddock a full hour before post time, there was none of the flourish yesterday that accompanied his first start. Some curious dropped in for a close-up, but there was none of the crowding around the stall that had marked last Wednesday. A muffled boo here and there and a sprinkling of applause greeted Winooka and Britt in the prerace parade.

Britt evidently had orders to stay off the pace. When the field was away, he took up a wrap and pulled Winooka back to fifth. He had the horse glued to the rail on the trip down the backstretch, while De Valera and Dark Hope fought for the lead.

Britt Awaits Chance,

With Winooka settled in his stride, Britt rode a waiting race. He made no move until the big shuffle at the stretch turn. Springsteel and Hope to Do went to the outside of the now tiring De Valera, which was on he rail. De Valera swung wide at the turn and Britt drove Winooka through the hole. The Australian champion then bounded to the front and seemed to be traveling much the fastest. Britt appeared to bounce about the saddle, however, and Earl Porter brought on a charging Hope to Do and Will Saunders moved up a flying Springsteel.

The three horses were close to the rail, with Winooka on the inside. Hope to Do swerved a bit toward Winooka and Britt looked as if he pulled up. Springsteel and Hope to Do went on while Winooka dropped back, barely saving the show award by a nose from the groggy De Valera.

Winooka was well played, closing at 3 to 1 and paid a $5 show mutuel.

Freddie Miller Here For Sarron Bout

Freddie Miller, N. B. A. featherweight champion, who boxes Pete Sarron in a 10-round nontitle match at Portner's Wednesday, has arrived in Washington and will taper off training in a local gymnasium. The champ will be on exhibition for local scribes in a workout this afternoon.

Three sixes and a four of good caliber will support the main event. In the sixes, Bob Lowry meets Ernie Ceasar, Benny Mack engages Doug Swetnam, and Tom Palacio battles Tom Slaughter. Doug Keyes and Tom Slaughter, both making their professional debuts, will open in a four.

Strange as It Seems —By John Hix

For further proof address the author, inclosing a stamped envelope for reply. Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.

The most evenly matched race ever run was that over the Northern Jockey Club course, in New South Wales, on August 12, 1896, when Tom, the eventual winner, had to run three races to take first by a nose. In the first heat the three leading horses, Tom, Yellow Plush and Syndicate, ran a dead heat. To decide the winner, a second race was held, this time eliminating Syndicate, but Tom and Yellow Plush for the second time ran a dead heat. The third race was then run and Tom won it by a nose.

The old adage that people who live in glass houses should not throw stones, is hardly applicable to the glass house illustrated above. Nobody lives in it, and so far as it is known, nobody throws stones at it. There, however, a small size glass factory has been installed, showing just how its builders make things out of glass. Needless to say, there are no windows in the building.

Bricks used in the construction are hollow glass blocks which may be laid just like so many ordinary bricks.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—JUDGE SCHILLING, $6.20, $4.80, $3.40; LOTTA AIRS, $11.00, $6.40; MARION T., $10.00.

JUDGE SCHILLING, away in a tangle and forced to race on the outside for racing room, moved into a forward position at the turn, responded strongly during the closing stages and, finishing fast, was up in the last fifty yards. LOTTA AIRS, away poorly, weaved her way into a prominent position entering the home stretch and closed with a bold rush. MARION T. raced KANAL into submission, gained a lead in the final furlong pole, but weakened nearing the finish. STURDY ARK closed a good gap on the inside. KANAL had good speed for five furlongs and quit thereafter.

THIRD RACE—About two miles. Purse, $1,000. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 2:30. Off at 2:32½. Winner, J. E. Widener's ch. g. (5), by Meleana—Clarice. Trained by D. Byars. Value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 3:52 4-5 (14 jumps).

AZUCAR, going rapidly on the flat, made a poor landing at the tenth fence where Mauman lost his stirrup irons, recovered quickly as his rider restored his stirrup irons, moved clear after standing off tenacious efforts from WYANDANCH and AXON at the twelfth fence and drew out easily when WYANDANCH broke down. AXON, in the thick of contention and fencing stoutly, held on well after a stout bid in the last half mile.

Women Golfers Matched Today in Semifinals of Tournament for Post Trophy

Prize Round Slated for Monday

Miss Houghton and Mrs. Platt Paired Off in Last Double.

MISS ELIZABETH HOUGHTON, of Chevy Chase, will meet Mrs. Landra B. Platt, of the same club, and Mrs. M. E. Irwin, of Beaver Dam, will oppose Mrs. J. W. Beller, of Columbia, this morning in the semifinals of the match play with handicap golf tournament for The Washington Post Trophy at Columbia Country Club.

Daughter of the former Ambassador to Germany, Miss Houghton yesterday continued her rock-steady golf to eliminate Mrs. William Morrison Smith, of the host club, by 2 and 1, in an exciting match. An 11-handicap player, Miss Houghton conceded her opponent 7 strokes, and had to battle for dear life before salting away the verdict on the seventeenth green.

Mrs. Letts Yields.

Mrs. F. Dickinson Letts, 16-handicap entry from Congressional, conqueror of Mrs. J. Marvin Haynes, bowed to Mrs. Platt, 13-handicap player, by 2 and 1. Mrs. Platt was 4 up at the turn, had her adversary dormie 3, only to see Mrs. Letts score a birdie deuce on the sixteenth and halve the seventeenth.

Mrs. Irwin eliminated Mrs. McCook-Knox, of Chevy Chase, by 3 and 1, after shooting a fine 45, 46—91. A 14 handicap player, Mrs. Irwin was given one shot by Mrs. McCook-Knox, who rounded in 94. Despite the fact that she was laid several stymies, Mrs. Irwin coasted ahead by 1 up at the turn, and managed to add to her margin on the stretch.

Mrs. Beller Wins.

Columbia's lone survivor, Mrs. Beller, an 8 handicap player, spotted Mrs. B. D. Gamble, of Manor, 8 strokes, and triumphed by 1 up. Mrs. Beller had to stage a Garrison finish in order to overhaul Mrs. Gamble. The Columbia golfer was 1 down at the tenth, 3 down going to the twelfth, won the twelfth and thirteenth, halved the fourteenth, and fifteenth, won the sixteenth, halved the seventeenth, and won the eighteenth with a 5 to Mrs. Gamble's 6.

St. John's Here To Tackle American

Light Locals Expected to Yield Quickly to Annapolis Boys.

AMERICAN UNIVERSITY, sporting 20 American Eagle gridders, will meet St. John's, of Annapolis, at 2:30 today on the American University field.

This is the first home appearance of the local Feathered Friends, and from the relative strength of the two clashing clubs, the Saints are a heavy choice to cop the game. The Birds are extremely light on replacements and the weight that goes with them would stand little chance on a windy day.

The locals have practically a first-year line, with Porter, Gotteridge and Lowder, the only three who have seen service prior to this year. To date, American University has lost to Hampden-Sydney, 32-0, and to Bridgewater by a safety.

The Annapolis gridsters defeated Gallaudet, 31-7, but failed to matriculate across their opponents' goal lines on three other occasions. Hampden-Sydney held them to a scoreless tie, while Catholic University bumped them, 24-0, and Maryland won, 20-0.

The probable line-up:

| No. American U. | Pos. | St. John's Col. No. |
|---|---|---|
| 10 Porter | L. E. | Stevens 53 |

Shikat and Steele On Mat Thursday

Turner Signs Up Old Foes For Return Battle.

Another matchmaking masterpiece last night was credited to Promoter Joe Turner following his definite signing of Dick Shikat and Ray Steele for Thursday night's impending Auditorium rassle feature.

Remembered for their grueling and thrill-producing stand here two seasons ago, a rematch since has been attempted repeatedly.

Conqueror of Steele in their initial battle, Shikat will be hard put to repeat his victory.

Champion Jim Londos is due to return to this country in a few weeks, and Thursday night's victor may get a championship crack at the gorgeous Greek.

Woodward High Blanks Roosevelt Scrubs 38-0

Woodward High School ground out a 38-to-0 defeat over the Roosevelt High Scrubs yesterday on the Monument Grounds. Woodward used only two plays during the entire game—around end and off tackle. Loss of the ball on two fumbles cost the winners the possibility of two more touchdowns than were scored.

blocking backs hewed a wide pathway through the opposition. Baker went through untouched.

Bobcats' Passes Fail.

Wesleyan never gave up the fight, even as the final whistle blew they were doggedly charging into their heavier and more experienced opponents. The Bobcats went into the air in the fourth period in a desperate attempt to score, but their efforts were fruitless. They made connections on 5 of 18 passes for a net gain of 51 yards, in contrast to the 72 yards gained by George Washington in five attempts.

Stewart, Clark, Hickman and Rathjen acquitted themselves with honors throughout the fray, bringing down Wesleyan ball carriers with marked regularity, and opening up huge gaps in the hole for the backs. Leemans, however, who played the entire 60 minutes, was the mightiest. Roman of them all.

Navy Is Bolstered For Game at Penn

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 27 (Spl.). Confident of annexing the first major victory of the sesaon already running strong, Navy's football stock took a decided boost tonight when it became practically certain that the team would have the services of Buzz Borries, back field ace, for the Pennsylvania game on Franklin Field tomorrow, after all.

There was grave doubt whether Borries, who is a wizard in the passing attack, had recovered sufficiently from the injuries received in the Pitt game, and the medical department had frowned upon his playing.

Out in full regalia today, however, Borries remarked to a comrade that he felt like a "new man," and he looked as chipper as ever as he took his post with the big team and went through the whole run of plays in a brisk signal and formation drill that was the sole activity for the Tars on the eve of the battle. Head Coach Rip Miller may or may not give Borries the call in the starting line-up, but he is certain to swing into action if needed.

again the outweighed line of the Deacons tore through to throw the enemy back for losses.

With three regular backs out of the line-up, smooth coordination, shown in the preceding games, obviously was missing.

Jankowski, the speedy captain of Catholic U., played one of the best games seen on Gore Field in a long time. This boy, without interference, raced 15 yards, shaking off two tacklers, to cross the pay-off line standing up. He was also instrumental in the other C. U. score, blocking for Oliver and T. Gearty, as well as ripping through for some nice gains, and finally for the score.

Hitting the Headpin . . .

THE Silver Spring Skating Rink team, which is leading the National Capital League, took a toe hold on first place by winning all three games from Star Service Station at the Lucky Strike alleys last night, while all the other contenders for leadership were losing their matches against teams below them in standing. Joe Harrison of the Skaters was largely responsible for his team's success by pounding out an even 400 set, his fifth for the season. Bob Shanklin (Star), had a 143 game and 355 set.

The feature of the night's bowling was the return to form of the Lucky Strike team, which is resting uneasily at the bottom of the league. After tying King Pin in the first game, each having a 539 set, and losing the roll-off, the Lucky's came back to win the last two games of 655 and 652, for a total pinfall of 1,896 maples. Ben Hare (Lucky Strike) led the rush for recognition with a 413 set, while Paul Brill (Lucky Strike) rolled a 167 game, high for the night, and a 405 set. Ed Laake, another teammate, had a 165 game and 392 set.

Peoples Life Insurance Co., with Ed Nash smashing out a 393 set, upset Book of Washington by taking the odd game. Whip Litchfield led the losers with a 379 set.

Al Horowitz's Temple Hand Laundry team, aided by Lee Atwell's 385 set, bumped Judd &

Hopkins Denies Relief Agency Backs Crosby

Asserts U. S. Has Given No Support to Milk Plan of Congressman.

Denial that Representative Charles Crosby (Democrat), Pennsylvania, is an "agent of the Federal Emergency Relief Administration" and is authorized to purchase milk for distribution to the destitute was issued yesterday by Harry L. Hopkins, relief administrator.

This followed an announcement by Crosby that he was setting up a Nation-wide organization, sanctioned by the relief administration, to purchase milk surpluses. The representative quoted a relief official as saying $24,000,000 would be available.

Mr. Hopkins said: "Congressman Crosby, on invitation, called at the Federal Emergency Relief Administration offices Wednesday. He discussed with Jacob Baker, assistant to the president of the Federal Surplus Relief Corporation, his plan for milk purchasing.

"Mr. Baker told him if a plan can be worked out to increase consumption of milk by families now on relief, the administrator would be happy to have him submit it."

Another official said the distribution of milk will be carried out by the administration, rather than "through a congressman."

Attorney Demands Body of Euel Lee

Lawyer and Warden Take Dispute to Court.

Baltimore, Oct. 27 (AP).—Bernard Ades, attorney for the Communistic International Labor Defense League, and Patrick Brady, warden of the Maryland Penitentiary, today engaged in a legal contest for the body of Euel Lee, hanged for murder today. The outcome will be decided after a court hearing tomorrow.

"Lee's body is mine," said Ades, who defended the Negro during the two years between his arrest for the murder of a Worcester County farm family and his execution. "His will gives me the body.

"I'm going to take it to New York for a mass meeting to be held there tomorrow night."

"Ades will not get the body," contended Brady. "Under the law if the hanged man has no immediate relatives, the warden is responsible."

"Bar Saloon!" Pinchot Pleads

Dry Governor Says Politics Must Bar Liquor.

State College, Pa., Oct. 27 (AP).—Gifford Pinchot, Pennsylvania's dry Governor, today appealed to wets and drys to join in a fight "to keep liquor and politics apart."

The governor reaffirmed his position as a dry in an address before the Penn State Christian Association, but added that "nothing is more obvious than that the American people have decided against the eighteenth amendment."

He appealed for a "working combination" of wets and drys to prevent return of conditions that existed before prohibition. And he listed these objections:

"The saloon must not come back.

"Liquor must be kept out of politics.

"Liquor must be sold without restraint.

"The iniquitous high license law, which dragged our judges into liquor politics, must not return.

"The sale of liquor must be so handled as to discourage bootlegging by making it unprofitable."

Walt Mason, Himself

Coming Back.

When once a champion is whipped he ought to try to realize the diamond belt he lately gripped will never more become his prize. He should with dignity retire to some calm hollow in the ground, in peace to labor and perspire at humble tasks that there abound. Then haply passing swains would say, when he loomed up within their view, "He was a great man in his day, with sense to quit when he was through. Of pugdom's realm he was the king, he tore his foemen into shreds, and when he lost he quit the ring, and went to raising cabbage heads. He was a wise and prudent scout, this fighter of the lion heart; his cabbage makes the finest kraut that has been offered in the mart." Thus honored in his snug retreat he'd reach the age of 84, and youths would gather at his feet to hear him tell brave tales of yore. Alas, the champion, when licked, puts up a cheap and mournful wheeze; he cries, "I have been bilked and tricked by judges and by referees. As high as ever do I stack, I'm just as strong and just as good, and now I purpose coming back, to reach the height where once I stood." And so he picks an easy mark, and enters once again the ring; the lights go out and it is dark, he hears the little birdies sing. So he becomes a sorry jest without the faintest chance to win, and he appears, e'en at his best, like something that the cat brought in.

149,201 Here Attend Navy Day Program

Marines and Sailors Put on Annual Exhibit at Yard.

By Harold Stone
(Washington Post Roving Reporter).

Hey, mister, watcha lokkin' for?

Two small boys hung over the gunwales of a boat in the Washington Navy Yard slip, yesterday, and hurled the question at a deep sea diver. Now, the diver had just broken the surface of the water after a trip to the depths and, naturally, had a water proof and sound proof living suit on. There was no answer.

"See, I told ya!" exclaimed the youth in disgust, "There's nobody in that thing."

The pair departed content with the thought that they caught the Navy fooling visitors who came to the yard for the annual Navy Day celebration.

A little old lady with a shawl about her shoulders, whose eyesight had been dimmed by the years, timidly touched a gob on the sleeve. Could he show her the replica of the Constitution — the Constitution Junior—and would he take her where she could see a real fighting ship.

Youngsters Interested.

A moment before the gob had spotted several good-looking girls who he was about to help "do" the Navy Yard. He turned and looked down at the old lady, cast a glance at the girls heading in the direction of a shipmate and said, smiling, "Sure, Mother, I'll show 'em to you."

That was the spirit of the organization at the yard, yesterday. Literally millions of questions were asked by the 149,201 persons who came to visit the Navy's workshops.

The youngsters were interested in the deep-sea diving school and the submarine experimental section where a model of the ill-fated S-4 was on display in a tank.

In the huge tank where sailors are subjected to the same pressure as that of the ocean depths, both adults and children found a common object of interest. The tank, it was explained, was used for two purposes. First, to aid in bringing back to normal a man who is suffering from "caisson disease," the effect of prolonged periods at great depths and to test the stamina of deep-sea diving sailors who seek instruction.

Plane Catapulted.

Out on the river a tug brought a navy yard catapult up into the wind and, with a puff of smoke, an airplane was shot from its bow

The marines demonstrated machine gun and howitzer attacks. The Coast Guard put on a life-saving demonstration and a whaleboat race, which was won by the crew from the Mendota.

Award for the whaleboat race was made by Rear Admiral H. V. Butler, U. S. N., after which the crew paraded to their ship.

The day ended with a parade of the units at the yard, reviewed by Admiral Butler, Capt. F. D. Berrien, Col. C. B. Taylor, U. S. M. C.; Lieut. Col. H. M. Smith, U. S. M. C.; Commander W. J. Keester, of the U. S. C. G. ship Mendota; and Lieut. Comdr. O'Neil, of the Apache.

Admiral Butler had as his guests John A. Remon, manager of the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co., and Col. E. G. Bliss, U. S. A. R.

Hikers Will View Mountain Glories

Club Members to Visit Sugarloaf Ridge.

Autumn glories of the Shenandoah Mountains will be viewed by the Potomac Appalachian Trail Club tomorrow on a trip to the new Range View Shelter on Sugarloaf Mountain.

The expedition will leave by bus from the rear of the Treasury at 7 a. m. and at the head of Keyser Run will begin the climb to the ridge by the Little Devil Stair trail. L. R. Sweetman, of 279 Twenty-second street, will lead the hike.

The new Range View Shelter is the third to be completed in the Blue Ridge section of the Appalachian trail. The Little Devil Stair trail ascends a narrow valley along a mountain stream. On the return from the shelter the hikers will follow the Piney Ridge trail and the Piney Branch road, a distance of about 10 miles.

No Slum Jobs Approved Yet, Kohn Explains

Projects Still to Be Worked Out, Public Works Official Says.

The Public Works Administration has not yet approved any housing projects for Washington, Robert D Kohn, director of housing in the P. W. A., stated yesterday.

"An unfortunate impression has gained ground," he declared, "that one or more projects for the City of Washington actually has been approved by the Public Works Administration. Actually such projects are still to be worked out and their economic validity proved before they even can be submitted to the administrator for his approval.

"Much work is to be done both in research as to suitable sites and in the actual economic study of the cost of production and the rentals that can be attained. It is for the purpose of correlating this research and making these studies that certain committees of Washington citizens have been asked to cooperate with the housing division of the Public Works Administration."

The advisory committee announced Thursday was formed not by the Public Works Administration but by Commissioner Luther H. Reichelderfer at the suggestion of Chairman William H. King of the Senate District Committee. This group will act as a clearing house for local coordination as to suitable sites and other matters of community interest.

Other bodies cooperating with Mr. Kohn's office are the committee headed by Frederic A. Delano, which will submit projects found to be economically feasible, and the Allied Architects' committee, undertaking architectural and economic studies of certain projects that have seemed to justify detailed consideration.

Industrial Exhibit Will End Tonight

C. of C. Puts Attendance at 75,000 Persons.

Final opportunity to view the ninth annual industrial exposition in the Washington Auditorium will be given the public today. The show closes this evening. Doors will open at 2 p. m., and at 7:30 p. m.

Attendance including last night's session was estimated at 75,000 by the Chamber of Commerce, sponsor of the show.

The Anton Kasper School of Violin and Instrumental Music tonight will present the final program. Artists at last night's showing were pupils of Frances Gutelius Studios.

Fall Foliage

City Parks Don Perennial Autumn Attire.

The Capital's parks have donned their perennial autumn attire and visitors will find them a spectacle of rare beauty, parks officials announced yesterday. Trees and shrubs have shed green for varihued foliage. Rock Creek Park and the Mount Vernon highway are particularly attractive.

Parks officials estimate the autumnal colorings will remain at their height about ten days unless heavy rain, wind of unseasonably cold weather cause the leaves to fall earlier.

No Free Beer

Commissioners to Back Board in "Bowery" Case.

District Commissioners yesterday agreed with the Beer Board and decided to send a letter to the United States district attorney telling him they believe serving of free beer in the Palace Theater was a violation of beer regulations.

Walter Fowler, assistant corporation counsel and legal adviser of the Beer Board, presented the matter to the Commissioners and was instructed to prepare a letter for signature.

Management of the theater served free beer in connection with its showing of "The Bowery." Police reported the district attorney had advised that, inasmuch as the beer was not charged for nor advertised, it was all right to serve it. The Beer Board pointed out a prohibition against giving beer away in any place to which admission is charged.

U. S. Employes Gain Support

68 in Congress Pledge Aid to Restore Salaries, Babcock Says.

Sixty-eight members of Congress have promised to vote for restoration of the 15 per cent Federal wage slash, E. Claude Babcock, president, American Federation of Government Employes, declared last night at the American Federation of Labor.

He announced support was pledged by 9 senators and 59 representatives, while another senator and 7 representatives indicated they favored elimination of the cut without making any promise. Babcock added other favorable replies were expected.

"You may get an idea of the change in sentiment," Babcock said, "from the fact that we already have more favorable replies than the total that voted against the economy act."

Babcock stressed plans to demand elimination of payless furloughs and new classification legislation.

Two Women, Man Get White Slave Sentences

Expressing regret that the maximum sentence was only two years, Justice Joseph W. Cox, in District Supreme Court, yesterday gave Ada Mae Bryant, Sadie Reed and Earl Pannell sentences of from 4 months to 2 years. This, under the new "maximum and minimum" law here, is the longest possible term for the charge against them—conspiring to violate the white slave act.

Justice Cox declared their crime was "sordid and revolting."

Crowded-Cell Solution Seen In Group Plan

Police Suggest Bringing Prisoners to Court in 3 Divisions.

Complying with a request from Police Court judges, a plan for relieving the crowded condition of Police Court prisoner cells has been tentatively agreed upon, Assistant Superintendent of Police Edwards said yesterday.

The plan calls for the arrival of prisoners at court in three groups. The first group will arrive at 9:30 a. m. and others will follow at 11 a. m. and noon. The precinct stations are to be divided into three groups, and prisoners from each group are to be taken to court at a prescribed time.

The staggered plan eliminates the transporting of the day's docket to the court in one group and the crowding of the cells, which accommodate only 60 prisoners.

Another advantage of the plan, Inspector Edwards said, would be that policemen appearing as witnesses would have to be in court only when prisoners from their precincts are due. The present practice calls for the appearance of officers in court when the docket is called and waiting until their cases are called.

The plan is yet to be approved by Superintendent of Police Brown and court officials. In the event it is accepted, it will go into effect November 6.

Spider Bite Victim Gaining in Hospital

Mrs. Catherine Cochran, 26, spider-bite victim, was reported improving at Casualty Hospital last night. Mrs. Cochran was bitten by the insect, which resembled a tarantula, at her home in East Riverdale, Md.

She was rushed to the hospital by a cousin, H. D. Fletcher, Thursday night, when the wound showed signs of infection.

Two Traffic Charges Draw Fine of $200

Pleading guilty to two charges of driving while drunk on the same day, George R. Jones, 42, of 230 Twelfth street southeast, was given a fine of $200 or jail sentence of 40 days in Traffic Court yesterday.

Jones' second arrest for driving while drunk occurred soon after he had been released on bond for the first offense.

NRA Ball

Officials and Employes to Forget Codes and Play.

Dignitaries of the NRA are expected to forget their codes and cares Friday night at a huge ball for Recovery Administration employes in the Mayflower Hotel.

Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, Recovery Administrator, yesterday was invited. He will give the dance committee an answer today. Arrangements have been made for 800 in the main ballroom.

Music will be offered by Leon Brusiloff and his orchestra.

Sponsored by employes in NRA headquarters, the dance will be the first social gathering in the brief history of the organization. Reservations will be restricted to NRA employes and friends.

A spotlight will play on the crowd. Each time the moving light stops the dancers caught in its rays will receive prizes.

D. C. Weekly Relief Budget Up to $60,000

Director Reports 18,839 Supported Here by Public Funds.

The Public Welfare Board yesterday increased from $50,000 to $60,000 the weekly allotment for emergency relief work.

The increase was authorized at a meeting at which Leroy A. Halbert, director of emergency relief, reported 18,839 persons receiving emergency aid on October 14. This was an increase of 86 during the week.

Expenditures increased from $61,531.87 the week before to $64,797.41. Money expended in the emergency relief work has exceeded the former $50,000 weekly limit for some time, but the effort has been to bring expenditures down to that limit. An effort will be made to bring expenditures down to $60,000 a week.

75,356 Persons Helped.

Relief officials reported there has been a slight decrease in the number of white collar workers receiving aid but this decrease has been more than offset by an increase in the number of laborers given aid.

Welfare officials estimate that each person on the aid list represents, on the average, a family of four. This would mean 75,356 persons in the District were depending on emergency relief. The total expended for relief work since July 1 was $884,102.61.

Plans for aiding indigent transients were mapped out at the meeting. Arthur Rosichan, transient relief director, reported several families wree lodged in homes and lodging places, such as the Salvation Army.

Single Transients Ignored.

Unmarried transients are to be left to shift for themselves until the transient relief units in Baltimore and Richmond begin to operate. It was feared that word that wanderers would find food, shelter and clothes in Washington would bring more to Washington.

An allotment of $12,000 was received from the Federal relief fund to launch the transient relief work.

Two Police Officers In Attack Dismissed

William R. Laflin and James A. Mostyn were dropped formally from the rolls of the Police Department yesterday. The men are in jail serving terms for assaulting James Henry Harker, whom they had arrested while investigating a robbery.

The men were convicted in District Supreme Court in November, 1931.

Garnett on Stand In Bank Suit Trial

Former Attorney Witness in Mrs. Chambers' Case.

Trial of suit in which Mrs. Louise T. Chambers is asking damages of $300,000 from Riggs National Bank, as successor bank to Farmers & Mechanics Bank, of Georgetown, proceeded yesterday with Leslie C. Garnett, former attorney for Mrs. Chambers, on the stand.

Summoned by attorneys for Riggs, Garnett, who is prominently mentioned for the post of United States attorney for the District, declared when he entered the case Mrs. Chambers had signed a power of attorney for Harry V. Haynes, former president of the bank.

Mrs. Chambers' suit is based upon alleged mishandling of her funds by Haynes, and the bank is brought into the case on the theory that it was responsible for his actions.

Logan Circle's Inner Sidewalk Loses 10 Feet

Shade Trees Also to Go in Thirteenth Street Widening Plan.

Ten feet will be taken off the inner sidewalk of Logan Circle under a street widening project, contract for which was awarded yesterday by the District Commissioners.

Cutting down the size of the center parking of the circle is to be a part of the work incident to widening Thirteenth street roadway from Massachusetts avenue to the circle to give more space to fast traffic.

Widening of the street also will mean destruction of the shade trees which now line its curbs.

Contract was awarded to McGuire & Rolfe, Inc., for $72,770.

Plans for widening Benning road from Minnesota to Central avenue northeast were approved by the Commissioners.

Drafting of plans for the new Woodrow Wilson High School, to be built in Fort Reno, are expected to be completed by December 1, Maj. John C. Gotwals, engineer commissioner, said.

Boy's Leg Fractured When Struck by Auto

Agent Pleads Guilty in Fake Policy Drive

Will Be Sentenced Nov. 4; Insurance Bureau Trails Others.

The campaign against bogus insurance companies operating here gained momentum yesterday when an alleged representative of the National Accident Society entered a plea of guilty in Police Court to three charges of false pretense.

Sidney F. Tomes, who pleaded not guilty to the charges when arraigned last week, reversed his plea before Judge Isaac R. Hitt. Sentence was deferred until November 4 to permit probation officers to investigate Tomes' operations. Meanwhile, he is free on $600 bond.

Tomes, according to investigators from the District insurance department, told insurance prospects he represented a company in Illinois, which investigation showed, had no license to operate in the District. He is alleged ot have taken money from several persons on small policies.

One Fails to Appear.

Brode E. Odom, arrested with Tomes on three charges of false pretense, failed to appear and his case was continued until Monday. He was released on $600 bond when he pleaded not guilty at arraignment last week.

The appearance of the two men in court follows the first of a series of arrests expected by Herbert L. Davis, superintendent of insurance, who is conducting the drive. Davis claims there are about 20 "fake" companies operating in the District.

Most of the "fake" companies require no physical examination, offer cheaper rates, and offer highly decorative emblems, Davis said, and most of them use the mails. For these he will ask fraud order.

Their major offense, according to Davis, is failure to live up to the terms of their contract when an accident or death occurs.

Have Large "Sucker" Lists.

"The company will offer a small part of the total sum of the contract, and then if a complaint is made will invite the beneficiary to visit the home office—usually thousands of miles away—to make further settlement," Davis declared.

Most of the "fake" companies have large sucker lists here and in many instances have no substantial assets and no intention of carrying out their contracts, it is charged.

Royal Group on Special Float Leads Parade Tuesday Night.

Mary Yates, 18, of 2342 Ashmead place northwest, will be the Queen of Halloween.

Entered in a contest by the Washintonians, she was selected from a group of 18 by a committee of judges at Board of Trade headquarters yesterday afternoon.

Byrle Shaner, of 4318 Thirteenth street northwest, entered by the Mid-City Citizens Association, was awarded second place, and Mrs. Ernest K. Wade, of 211 Delaware avenue southwest, third.

Reigning on a special float, with the other contestants surrounding her, the queen will lead the Halloween parade Tuesday night. She will be the guest of honor of the Mayflower Hotel at a dinner Wednesday night.

The queen judges, selected by the Greater National Capital committee, were: Clifford Berryman, C. Powell Minnigerode, William J. Slade, Genevieve Herrick and Nora Huffman.

Mt. Rainier Firemen Add Automatic Doors

Payment of a second dividend of 30 per cent to Commercial National Bank depositors will begin about November 15, it was indicated yesterday.

The dividend, amounting to $1,850,000, is made possible by a loan to the closed institution by the Federal Deposit Liquidation Board.

Exact date of payment will be announced when it is determined the incidental clerical work can be completed. Robert C. Baldwin, receiver of the bank, which closed February 28, will prepare checks and receipts. The bank paid its first dividend of 20 per cent, or $1,030,601.70, September 27.
